R. H. EDDY, Esq.—Dear Sir: You procured for me, in 1840, my first patent. Since then you have acted for and advised me in hundreds of cases, and procured many patents, reissues and extensions. I have occasionally employed the best agencies in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, but I still give you almost the whole of my business, in your line, and advise others to employ you.

Some heathen are not as much of the heathen as we think; read a Mahometan proverb, "God has bestowed the good things of this world on relieve our necessities, not to reward our virtues; these will be rewarded in another world." We know of no greater necessity to be relieved, than a stubborn cold, and we know of no better relief than Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Comdr. George D. B. Glidden died at his father's home in Cambridgeport, Mass., Jan. 20th.

Don't Give Up Yet.

It doesn't follow that a patient will die because the doctors have "given him up," or that he will recover because they promise to "pull him through." It is never too late to try the great virtues of Parker's Tonic. Mr Michael Guilfoyle, of Binghampton, N. Y., was cured of rheumatism by it after ten years of unspeakable suffering. Mr R. W. Mosher, druggist, of same city, certifies that he has sold over a thousand bottles of Parker's Tonic through its reputation for this and other cures.

Settled Consumption Cured.

Several years ago a severe cold settled on my lungs. The most popular physician that ever practiced here attended me for a long time but to no avail. After a consultation he said I had settled consumption and gave me up. I was advised to try Dr Seth Arnold's Cough Killer, and to my own and friends' astonishment, it cured me, and I am now a well, hearty man.—Thomas D. Paine, Jeweler, Woonsocket, R. I.

Miss Anna Jaques, who by a gift of $25,000 established the hospital in Newburyport which bears her name, died at her home in Newbury, Saturday, Jan. 24th. She was noted for her benevolence. She was the last surviving member of a family of two sons and two daughters, none of whom were ever married. Inheriting some property, they were all industrious and frugal, and the accumulation went to the survivors as death diminished the number, until a few years since Anna became the only survivor, and consequently inherited the estate of her brothers and sister, a property which was estimated at upwards of $100,000, and which has since accumulated to a large estate.

The limited number of employes at the Portsmouth navy yard makes the fitting out of the Marion extremely slow work. It will be several weeks before she will be ready to sail. There was some talk of sending her to the South Atlantic station for a few weeks previous to her departure for her final destination on the China seas, but there is no foundation for such statement. Charts have been furnished her for the Asiatic service, and although it was suggested that it would be advisable to have her stop in the South Atlantic for a short time it was finally determined not to issue orders to that effect.—Army and Navy Register.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Fun From French Papers.

A valet-de-chambre presents himself to a gentleman whose service he is desirous of entering. "Where were you last employed? Why did you leave your place?" "Employed by Blind Tom. Left because he kept too close an eye on me."

When Henri Rochefort was a young man he held a clerkship in the Prefecture at Paris, but never put in an appearance at the office, preferring to busy himself writing for the stage. His superior officer complained to the Prefect, and asked Baron Haussman to turn the delinquent out of his place, but the Baron (who was interested in the actress that was to sustain the leading part in Rochefort's play) declined, uttering the profound aphorism: "You can't turn a man out of his office who is never in it!"

Mme. X. is a charming woman, but nature has dowered her altogether too liberally in the matter of feet. She has been sick but has been convalescing, and tells a friend, who has called to see how she is getting along, that she can barely put one foot before the other. "Ah, my dear," says the visitor (who wears No. 1a), "then you have made a gigantic stride toward recovery."

They have been discussing a fatal duel, and one of the party says solemnly: "It seems to me that Providence would have been wiser had it ordained that the murderer should be killed instead of his unfortunate victim."

X. tells the story of his duel to a friend. "You see, about three months ago we got into a discussion about politics and he gave me a slap in the face. Of course, after than an amicable arrangement was impossible, so I demanded satisfaction.—"And you got it?" "Yes; we met next morning and I got a thrust in the ribs, and this is the first time I've set foot outside of the house." "Ah, there he goes now—on the other side of the street." "Yes so it is. By heavens, he is laughing at the way I am crawling along. Never mind, only wait till I get round, and then see if I don't give him another lesson."—Philadelphia Record.

Catarrh

Is a very prevalent and exceedingly disagreeable disease, liable, if neglected, to develop into serious consumption. Being a constitutional disease, it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, effecting a radical and permanent cure of catarrh in even its most severe forms. Made only by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

A THRILLING STORY.

As Told by a Merchant in Troy, N. Y.—A Surgical Operation Avoided—How a Father, Wife and Daughter Escaped an Awful Doom.

Of the hundreds of accounts of remarkable cures wrought by DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, none have appeared so purely astonishing as the following. The persons mentioned are among the most highly respected in the city of Troy, and the story as told by the father will prove interesting to all our readers.—Ed.

TROY, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: My daughter was afflicted with a severe growth of Fungus. To remove it we had resorted to almost every remedy and consulted the most prominent surgeons and physicians. Dr. ——, of Troy, said that a surgical operation would be necessary, but fearing fatal results I hesitated. Some of the physicians claimed that it was caused by one thing and one by another. The Fungus was prominent and disfigured her looks. Having heard of Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY working so thoroughly on the blood I determined to try it, to see if this medicine could do what doctors had failed to do and surgeons had hardly dared to undertake. I can say in truth that the result of this trial was the complete cure of my daughter of this dreadful malady. Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY alone effected it. We used nothing else, for other things had completely failed. My daughter today enjoys vigorous health and to Favorite Remedy alone is the credit due. My wife also was very poor in health, due to some liver difficulty with which she had suffered a long time until she became very much reduced in flesh. A trial of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy has resulted in the complete restoration of her health, which she had not enjoyed for years. She had gained in flesh and strength, and thus secured perfect health, and this is DUE ENTIRELY TO DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY. As for myself, being engaged in the grocery and commission business, which makes it necessary for me to test the quality of different articles, like butter, etc., my sense of taste and my stomach were seriously injured. Everything seemed to nauseate me, and fearful of dyspepsia in its most severe form, I tried DR KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY. The first bottle afforded immediate relief, and from that day to this I can say that Favorite Remedy has restored me to perfect health. These are facts which I claim prove that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the best medicine in the world for those afflicted with the above difficulties. If any one in the city of Troy doubts the truth of these statements let him come to me and I will prove them. I have recommended Favorite Remedy to hundreds and with the same good results.

Yours, etc., WILLIAM WINDSOR.

A Chicago Times special from Alotta, Indian territory, says: Thursday night a dance was held at the house of Jim Bounds, in the Chickasaw nation. During the progress of the dance five white men arrived on horseback, coolly tied their horses, and entered the house without an invitation. They were treated indifferently, when presently one of them fired a revolver toward the ceiling. This was the signal for a general fusilade. The lights were extinguished and the battle raged. Over 100 shots were fired. The women ran screaming from the town into the woods. After five minutes of continued firing two of the five strangers rushed out, mounted their horses and escaped. When lights were brought seven men, including three of the intruders, were found dead or dying on the floor.

"I don't want him to see me." "Why not?" "I've got them breeches on."

So Near and Yet so Far.

A story of a clerk in a Main st. store, who had a dollar to invest in the late drawing of The Louisiana State Lottery. Two tickets were presented to him, Nos. 58,282 and 58,280. Undecided he concluded to spend his cash for ticket No. 58,280. This decision cost him $14,000. The moral is when in doubt on a question that can be decided for $1, always give yourself the benefit of the doubt. Purchase both tickets. — Memphis (Tenn.) Avalanche, Dec. 20th.

I SPY.

How Bill Nye Played It When He Went To School.

Dear reader, do you remember the boy of your school who did the heavy falling through the ice and was always about to break his neck but managed to live through it all? Do you call to mind the youth who never allowed any body else to fall out of a tree and break his collar bone when he could attend to it him elf?

Every school has to secure the services of such a boy before it can succeed, and so our school had one. When I entered the school I saw at a glance that the board had neglected to provide itself with a boy whose duty it was to nearly kill himself every few days in order to keep up the interest, so I applied for the position. I secured it without any trouble whatever. The board understood at once from my bearing that I would succeed. And I did not betray the trust they had reposed in me.

Before the first term was over I had tried to climb two trees at once and been carried home on a stretcher; been pulled out of the river with my lungs full of water and artificial respiration resorted to; been jerked around over the north half of the county by a fractious horse whose halter I had tied to my leg, and which leg is now three inches longer than the other, together with various other little early eccentricities which I cannot at this moment call to mind. My parents at last got so that along about 2 o'clock p. m. they would look anxiously out of the window and say, "Isn't it about time for the boys to get here with William's remains? They generally get here before 2 o'clock."

One day five or six of us were playing "I spy" around our barn. Everybody knows how to play "I spy." One shuts his eyes and counts 100, for instance, while the others hide. Then he must find the rest and say "I spy" so-and-so and touch the "goal" before they do. If anybody beats him to the goal the victim has to "blind" over again.

Well, I knew the ground pretty well, and could drop twenty feet out of the barn window and strike on a pile of straw so as to land near the goal, touch it, and let the crowd in free without getting found out. I did this several times and got the blinder, James Bang, pretty mad. After a boy has counted 500 or 600, and worked hard to gather in the crowd, only to get jeered and laughed at by the boys, he loses his temper. It was so with James Cicero Bang. I knew that he almost hated me, and yet I went on. Finally, in the fifth ballot, I saw a good chance to slide down and let the crowd in again as I had done on former occasions. I slipped out of the window and down the side of the barn about two feet, when I was detained unavoidably. There was a "batten" on the barn that was loose at the upper end. I think I was wearing my father's vest on that day, as he was away from home and I frequently wore his clothes when he was absent. Anyhow the vest was too large, and when I slid down that loose board ran up between the vest and my person in such a way as to suspend me about eighteen feet from the ground in a prominent, but very uncomfortable, position.

I remember it yet quite distinctly. James C. Bang came around where he could see me. He said: "I spy Billy Nye and touch the goal before him." No one came to remove the barn. No one seemed to sympathize with me in my great sorrow and isolation. Every little while James C. Bang would come around the corner and say: "O, I see ye. You needn't think you're out of sight up there. I can see you real plain. You better come down and blind. I can see ye up there!"

I tried to unbutton my vest and get down there and lick James, but it was of no use.

It was a very trying time. I can remember how I tried to kick myself loose, but failed. Sometimes I would kick the barn and sometimes I would kick a large hole in the horizon. Finally I was rescued by a neighbor who said he didn't want to see a good barn kicked into chaos just to save a long-legged boy that wasn't worth over six bits.

It affords me great pleasure to add that while I am looked up to and madly loved by every one that does not know me, James C. Bang is the brevet President of a fractured bank, taking a lonely bridal tour by himself in Europe and waiting for the depositors to die of old age.

The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they most generally get there with both feet. (Adapted from the French by permission.)

The Birthplace of Great Southerners.

A nicely worded paragraph is going the rounds of the press under the title of "Henry Clay's Birthplace." It calls it Ashland, Ky., and treats it with pathos and feeling. The fact is Henry Clay was not born in Kentucky at all. He was a Virginia boy who first saw the light in Hanover County, and did not come to Kentucky until he was over 19. The greatest men of both Kentucky and Tennessee have been born in other States. Ben Harden, the great orator of Kentucky, was born in Pennsylvania; George M. Bill, Tyler's Secretary of the Treasury, was born in Virginia; and Henry Watterson, of the Courier-Journal, first saw light in Washington, D. C. As to Tennessee, the matter is still worse. Before the war it had hardly a man of national prominence who had been born within its borders. Presidents Jackson and Johnson were born in North Carolina, as was, also, J. K. Polk and H. L. White, who, it will be remembered, was a Presidential candidate in the campaign of 1836. Parson Brownlow was born in Virginia, and came to Tennessee as a circuit riding Methodist preacher. Felix Grundy, a Virgin an by birth, had made a reputation and become Chief Justice of Kentucky before he moved to Tennessee, and Horace Maynard, a Massachusetts college graduate, emigrated to Tennessee, and started in life as a tutor. Aaron V. Brown, the law partner of James K. Polk, and Postmaster-General under Buchanan, came into Tennessee from Virginia at the age of 20, and Sam Houston, Governor of the State, Senator in Congress, and founder of the Texas Republic, was a Virginian by birth.—"Carp" in Cleveland Leader.

The Rainbow Rocks of the Yellowstone.

From a natural platform at the very edge of the lower falls, the sight-seer can look 400 feet upward to the top of the heavily wooded banks, and down to the foot of the falls, 309 feet. It is not over forty feet from this natural platform to the other side of the river, and the volume of water compressed into this narrow space is enormous; but as soon as it passes it is transformed into snowy fleecy foam, and from below rises a thick mist as the water is hurled upon the rocks that break its fall. Grand as are the falls themselves, the Grand Canyon really gives to the scene its unrivaled charm. One may see turrets, towers, pillars and cones, and hundreds of other fantastic shapes, according as the reins of fancy are loosed. The colors of the rock include every tint of the rainbow. Below this is a stratum of brown rock, gradually shading into red. Then come orange, or yellow, violet and white limestone. Yonder is a bright red tower, and besides it is a pillar of black flintstone. Below it is a white cone, above a purple arc.

The Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York.

We are able to lay before our readers to-day, the statement of the financial condition of this world-wide-known life insurance company, for the year ending Dec. 31st, 1884.

We have frequently had occasion in these columns to make mention of the Mutual Life of New York as the leading institution of the kind in the world. Its assets to-day are in round numbers one hundred and four millions of dollars! and by assets we do not mean alleged property, stated at some arbitrary appraisal, but that this is a mutual company with this colossal property owned by the policy holders who are its 122,184 members.

The late Judge Stanley of the Supreme court of this state had an insurance of twenty thousand dollars upon his life. He was regarded as a most prudent and sagacious man, and though he led a life of careful economy and continued industry, and was noted for his financial judgment, yet his life insurance policies were his best investment. It will be found quite frequently that men whom the world estimates as among the most sagacious and shrewd in business matters, and whose fortunes seem assured almost beyond possible contingency, are the men who have sought and obtained insurance with the best companies in the land. Indeed, there are just two classes of persons who insure: those who cannot afford not to insure and who without the provision made through the means of timely insurance would leave families in dependent circumstances, and those whose success in life has taught them that there is no better investment than a policy in a well established life insurance company.

We have never hesitated to give our unqualified endorsement of the conduct and character of this magnificent company, the Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York. It was founded by sagacious men. It has been managed with wonderful skill and unparalleled integrity. It is the leading institution of the kind in the civilized world. Its president is the manager par excellence of this kind of property, and one of the men of our day and generation in whose skill, honor and judgment a nation has full confidence, and a continent confides its hopes and anticipations.

Persons who know how to live, how to obtain the most for their money in whatever walk in life, have one rule as to its expenditure, and that is "to get the best." This rule applies to anything professional as well as practical, and when we see a person who has the best of everything in life the presumption is that experience has demonstrated to this one that anything less than the best is sheer extravagance.

This axiom applies to life insurance. It costs no more to be insured by responsible companies, whose assets are undoubted and whose success is unparalleled, than it does to become, what is supposed to be, insured, by an irresponsible or weak institution, which has neither stability in its condition or sagacity in its management. The reputation of the Mutual Life Insurance Company is limited by no discernible bounds. It is comprehensive and continental, and an examination of its books of record will show that all over the land men who as financiers, business men, statesmen, scholars—indeed in all walks of life, have proved a success, are enrolled in its great army of membership.

We give these assurances not upon mere hearsay testimony, but because for many years we have made a study of the growth and progress of this company, whose successful career has challenged the wonder and admiration of financiers and political economists of both hemispheres.

Dynamite in the Senate.

In the national senate, on Monday, the 26th inst., Mr. Bayard of Delaware called up his Saturday's resolution, expressing sympathy with the British parliament for the dynamite outrages, and briefly advocated its passage.

Mr. Riddleberger of Virginia moved to recommit the resolution to the committee on foreign affairs, and then made a long speech. He asked that the resolution go over until Wednesday, so that he could amend it to include the names of the killed, but he protested that he would do nothing to indicate in the slightest way any expression of sympathy by this country with England in her treatment of the Irish question. He took it for granted that the Irish committed the outrage, and expressed his sympathy with that cause.

When he had finished, Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts rose and referred to Riddleberger's statement that this outrage is a part of the Irish cause. He then eulogized the Irish people of Massachusetts and their love for Ireland, but declared for them that they had no sympathy with cowardly assassination. He answered for them that they abhorred such a suggestion. Mr. Hoar defended the action of this government in insisting upon obedience to the neutrality laws, and compared it favorably with that of Great Britain. He would vote for the resolution, as in that way representing the Irish-American citizens of Massachusetts.

Mr. Gibson of Louisiana denounced the dynamiters, and advocated the passage of the resolution.

Mr. Riddleberger answered that he did not defend dynamite, nor would he denounce its use by men who had no government to declare regular war.

Mr. Hawley of Connecticut reminded the senate that twice America had suffered from assassination. In each case the whole world sent its condolence. This crime is worse than assassination. It is a dash against the world's civilization.

On the motion to postpone the resolution, and afterward on the question of its passage, Mr. Riddleberger voted alone. So the resolution passed.

An attempt was made to blow up the British consulate in New York on Tuesday.

S. R. Martin, cashier of the Jamestown, Pa., savings bank, has returned, and denies taking any of the bank's money.

At Hyndsdale, Ind., a daughter of John Stout died recently from ossification, and the grave is guarded to prevent students from stealing the body.

The Dynamite Panic in England.

Cunningham, the Irish-American arrested on suspicion of complicity in the late dynamite outrages in London, is still held in custody, and great efforts are being made to discover the man and woman who were seen in the Tower under suspicious circumstances on the afternoon of the explosion.

All the royal apartments in Windsor castle have been closed to all visitors, by order of the queen.

One of the great English railway corporations has decided to discharge all employes of Irish birth. Many Irish working men in private employment have been dismissed.

It was rumored in London on the 26th that Cunningham had made important disclosures.

The salvation army is apparently effecting a rapid conquest in Dover. On the night of Jan. 26th the organization was joined by Common Councilman Benjamin T. Whitehouse of ward four, his action causing much astonishment. So far the army has made 105 converts there. W. T. Pray, who assaulted two members of the army Friday night, Jan. 23d, offered $25 to settle, but the army refused to compromise.

Rev. Dr. Scott, whose death has just been announced from San Francisco, was once hanged in effigy in a Californian town for offering prayers for the success of Jefferson Davis. The prayer led to his temporary deposition from the ministry.

Nobody Who Uses

Sulphur Bitters? The most prominent people in New England. The wife of DEACON CARLETON, First Baptist Church, Winchester, Mass., says: My eldest son was troubled with Rheumatism so bad that for over three months he was unable to leave his bed; his knees and joints swelled so that he could not feed himself. The best physicians here failed to help him, and I tried Sarsaparillas and all manner of liniments without benefit. A gentleman told my husband to use Sulphur Bitters, as he thought it was an honest medicine. In three days from the first dose of Sulphur

Sulphur Bitters

Who uses Sulphur Bitters can remain long unwell. The foreman of the Shapleigh Machine and Screw Works, Boston, Mass., L. B. SMITH, says: Ever since birth I have been troubled with Salt Rheum; my body was covered with scales and patches, and when I bent my fingers the flesh would crack open and bleed. The itching and burning feeling almost drove me crazy. Your Sulphur Bitters has done me more good than anything I have ever used, and I think it is a great blood purifier, and I advise all so troubled to use

Bitters, for I know it will do you good.

The Engineer of the Wakefield Rattan Works, says: I think your Sulphur Bitters are a most excellent medicine. I have used them in my family for some time, and now would not be without them in all cases of Biliousness, accompanied with those terrible sick headaches. It is the best medicine I ever saw. I have used many different kinds of medicines in my family, but none seem to take hold and do the good that your Sulphur Bitters have done. C. N. YOUNG.

he was able to feed himself, which he had not done before for twelve weeks, and in two weeks he was able to return to his work.

The Postmaster, Winchester, Mass., says: Gentlemen,—I am personally acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Carleton, and was astonished at the remarkable effect of your Sulphur Bitters in curing their son; and its large sale is undoubtedly due to the fact that it is an honest medicine. And I do not think too much can be said in its praise.

Yours truly, GEO. P. BROWN.

128 Doses One Dollar.

The Ex-Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, MAJOR GEO. S. MERRILL, says: For a reliable medicine use Sulphur Bitters. I believe it to be the best and purest medicine made.

THE TALLAPOOSA'S UNLUCKY CRUISE.

In the national house of representatives, Jan. 26th, Mr. G. D. Wise of Virginia introduced a resolution calling on the secretary of the navy for a report of the orders under which the Tallapoosa was cruising at the time she was sunk, and for information as to what time she left Washington, and what places she visited up to the time of the collision.

As we recall it, the trip of the Tallapoosa before she left this station with freight for the government dockyards at Boston and elsewhere, was made to convey the Honorables Samuel J. Randall and Benj. F. Butler from this harbor to Gloucester. Mr. Randall had made a little speech the night before at Music hall, and Congress having adjourned, he had then a good opinion of the navy. Just what was the secret of the trip of these "par nobile fratrum" we know not, but the steamer returned shortly after landing the exponent of democratic principles at Gloucester, and then made the passage to Boston. She met the disaster while en route for the New York navy yard with materials taken on board at the Portsmouth and Boston yards. Secretary Chandler, should he rise to explain, will perhaps embrace the opportunity to fire a gun or two at his interrogators.

The Acme Operatic Burlesque Co. will give a matinee this afternoon, when prices will be 10 and 20 cents to all parts of the house; this evening, the last of their engagement, prices will be—general admission 10 cents, parquette 20 cts., reserved seats 30 cts.

"Little fishes biled in tie" is the sententious way in which Jefferson Scattering Batkins expresses himself in one of the funniest scenes of "The Silver Spoon." Mr. Sol Smith Russell makes the role of the rural legislator one of the special hits of a career that has been crowded with triumphs in character portrayals. The play will be given at Music hall next Friday evening.

In consequance of the severity of the weather, Street Commissioner Marshall has been very busy of late in keeping the streets and highways under his jurisdiction in good order, with a limited force at his command. There are eight horses now at the city stable, kept in good order by the hostler, H. Gates Wentworth, assisted by Charles H. Foote.

A Nova Scotia vessel has been discharging a cargo of railway ties at the north side of the Eastern railroad wharf, Noble's island. Ten men are now employed at the wood-preserving operations on the island, which are expected to continue at least until the arrival of warm weather.

The large street lamp to be erected on the Parade by the Gas Co., and supplied with gas free of expense to the city, has arrived, and is at the gas works awaiting a favorable opportunity to be placed in its position. It has three twelve-foot burners, which will all be kept going up to a stated hour of the night, and one six-foot burner which will be lighted when the three large lights are turned off, and will burn the remainder of the night. The light is to be set up about fifteen feet from the curb of the reservoir, on the side next to the Athenæum. The lantern is a big affair, made of copper by Tuits, of Boston.

One of the most enjoyable occasions of the season occurred at the Revere house, Boston, Jan. 17th, when and where a reunion of those New England educators who participated in the meetings of the National Educational Association held in Madison, Wis., in July last, gave an opportunity to renew the pleasant acquaintances formed during the trip. Many of the western tourists, taking advantage of the magnificent opportunities then offered, extended their journey to points farther west, including Lake Superior, Yellowstone Park, California and Alaska. Dinner on the 17th was served about three o'clock to two hundred or more guests, who for several hours were entertained with felicitous speeches such as an assembly of the kind is alone capable of producing. Among those present from this vicinity were Miss Flagg of this city, Miss Pickering of Newington, and Miss Haines of Dover. Prof. Robinson of Franklin Falls was spokesman for New Hampshire, which was well represented by teachers from different portions of the state.

TOURIST.

Mr. George Stott was quite severely bitten on the right leg, Monday afternoon, while walking on Vaughan street, by a dog which is alleged to have bitten another person a few days previous. The wound, which was cauterized by Dr. Whittier, showed the deep imprint of four large teeth, and was quite painful on Tuesday. The vicious brute is reported to have been abolished by his owner. There are a good many dogs running about the streets of Portsmouth whose hides would make good jackets or gloves for the cold term, but which are utterly worthless while alive.

Elder Hiram Munger, one of the old war-horses of Second Adventism, will conduct divine services in the Advent chapel on Hanover street, on Sunday, Feb 8th.

Since the last fine sledding large quantities of pine logs have been brought to Mason's mill at the dock on Vaughan street, and many more are lying in the upper waters of the river, ready for rafting when the navigation in those streams is open at the spring of the year.

A sleigh-riding party of about twenty persons started from the Parade at about 8:45 o'clock Tuesday evening, in a bobsled drawn by four horses.

The mileage claims of the following naval officers were among those allowed by the second controller last week: Captain Percival C. Pope, U. S. M. C., $120; Passed Asst. Engr. Joseph B. Upham, $320 50; Lieut. Charles J. Badger, $346.20; Pay Inspector Edward May, $495.80; Gunner (late) Thomas H. Fortune, $484.36; Rear Admiral (late) L. M. Goldsborough, $2554.

Mr. Melvin Dixon, an accomplished veterinarian who has long been in the employ of Mr. Ira C. Seymour, has chosen winter been coming into town daily from Eliot, a distance of five miles, and returning in the evening, regardless of the weather. For a few days past, however, on account of the slackness of business caused by the snow and intense cold, Gatekeeper McIntire of Portsmouth bridge has failed to see him, and he is supposed to be reposing in the bosom of his family.

A shoal never laid down on the charts has just been surveyed by the United States coast survey, in York river, near the mouth; it has only four feet of water over it at low tide.

—"No," said the Vermont deacon, "I don't approve of hoss racin', but when another member of the church becomes so godless as to try to pass me on the road comin' home from meetin' I feel it my duty to let out a little on the reins, just to keep him from puttin' his trust in earthly things."

WANTS SOMETHING FRESH.

Mr. Editor: Would you kindly permit a patron of the drama to remark that the "Silver Spoon" by the Museum company quite often enough, and unless the company wish to behold from the stage the backs of many unoccupied seats, Manager Field should give us a rest on the spoon selection, and present something that has been less frequently repeated in our city.

W.

In these days, when the advantages of a liberal education are open to all who have the energy and perseverance to avail themselves of the opportunities so freely offered, school committees and the public generally demand trained teachers as educators of our youth. In the account of the graduating exercises at the Salem (Mass.) Normal school on Tuesday last, we notice the name of Miss Laura H. Pickering of Newington, who has honorably completed the course of study at that well known institution. We wish Miss Pickering much success in her chosen profession, and shall be ready to extend greetings to the other two young ladies of the town, who are soon to take diplomas from the same school.

TEACHER.

A snow plough drawn by twelve stout horses belonging to the farmers near Gravelly Ridge, on Monday levelled the roads between there and the north millbridge.

The steamer Reading, Smith master, arrived at the Concord railroad wharf on Tuesday from Philadelphia with 1620 tons of coal to J. Albert Walker; she was very much iced up, her appearance attracting considerable notice.

We are indebted to Congressmen Ray and Haynes for valuable public documents.

If it were possible

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA for debility, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which every one feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that Hood's Sarsaparilla contains more real medicinal value than any article before the people.

What a Man Did with Kidney Complaint

DRACUT, MASS.
MESSRS. C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:
Dear Sirs—I have suffered from kidney complaint and biliousness for fifteen years. Have tried everything and never got any good. Last January, before I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, everything I ate bloated me all up, pain in my chest and arms, headache and dizzy. I could not get up without feeling weary and all fagged out. Many mornings I was obliged to lie down on the lounge. To do any work seemed almost impossible. Have taken two bottles. The backache, dizziness, pain in my chest and arms, and that feeling of intense weariness are all gone. I can eat anything and it does not press me at all. Feel just like work; in fact, like a new man. Can heartily recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla, and hope all who desire to know anything about it will come to me and ask what I think of it. Very truly yours,
JONATHAN J. COBURN.

FAMILY MAGAZINE,

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE.

ON THIS SIDE,

A New Serial Story,

By F. C. BAYLOR,

IS COMMENCED IN THIS NUMBER.

Several chapters of MARY AGNES TINCKER'S charming story, Any Woman's Nephew, also appear, together with other short stories, Poems, and Articles of late and current Topics.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1885,

Among the chief periodicals of the country, LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE has acquired the distinctive reputation of being "eminently readable."

Arrangements have been made for many contributions of special interest during the coming year. Among the popular attraction is invited to a serial story entitled "ON THIS SIDE," by F. C. Baylor, author of "The Perfect Treasure" (commenced in the January number) in which the experiences of an English baronet and his friends during a tour through the United States are related with a mirth-provoking humor, a knowledge and appreciation of national characteristics, and a perfect fairness of tone and freedom from caricature that cannot fail to secure critical approval and wide popularity. Miss Tincker's beautiful novel, "Aunt Ri," will be completed in the summer, and will be followed by several stories in two or more parts, including "The Last Lawyer's First Client," by the author of "A Latter-Day Saint."

Sketches of Italian Life, by Mrs. Launt Thompson, an account of the Pioneers of Tennessee, by "Edmund Kirke," a narrative of the experiences of a Steerage Passenger to and from Liverpool, by Thomas Whiton, an article on Queen Anne, or Free Classic Architecture, by George C. Mason, Jr., and a Comedy for private theatricals, by James Payn, will be published in early numbers, together with the usual variety of short stories and articles of general interest by popular writers.

LIVES OF PAIN

RHEUMATISM and NEURALGIA have long enough run riot in the human system.

They have tormented the human family and defied the medical faculty; from time out of memory they have corrupted the blood, demoralized the joints, vexed the nerves, agonized the muscles and racked the brain with wearying pain.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is the enemy of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, repairs their damages, renews the blood, eases the joints, calms the nerves, soothes the muscles, gives rest and peace to the troubled brain, and secures delightful sleep.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is a new remedy, but it has been abundantly tried. From far and near come testimonials from well-known persons' who had long been sufferers. It has turned their disease out. It has cured them. That is all,—and that is enough.

"ATHLOPHOROS" can do for you what it has done for those sufferers. It can drive out your Rheumatism and Neuralgia, and will do so if you give it a fair trial.

"ATHLOPHOROS" has by this time had such a good trial all over the country that its true work is known, and its true character proved.

"ATHLOPHOROS" means "Prize-Bearer;" "Victor;" "Conqueror." It carries off the prize as VICTOR over the attacks of these terrible maladies, and Conqueror of the frightful agonies their victims have endured. Not a mere temporary relief, but a permanent, enduring, and triumphant cure.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

Settled Consumption Cured.

Several years ago a severe cold settled on my lungs. The most popular physician that ever practiced here attended me for a long time but to no avail. After a consultation he said I had settled consumption and gave me up. I was advised to try Dr Seth Arnold's Cough Killer, and to my own and friends' astonishment, it cured me, and I am now a well, hearty man.—Thomas D. Paine, Jeweler, Woonsocket, R. I.

A lecture on "Irish Parliaments," delivered at Cork on the night of Jan. 23d, by Mr. Parnell, was fully reported in the next morning's London papers, and attracts much attention. The Times' which devoted an editorial to a criticism of the address, strongly denounced Mr. Parnell's statement that "the restoration to Ireland of her own parliamentary power is imminent." It declares that it would be impossible for England ever to accede to a demand for an independent parliament for Ireland. "To ask for an Irish parliament," continues the Times, "is to ask independence, pure and simple, for Ireland. That is more than England could ever grant or Ireland retain."

Two Years Ago!

I was a sight to behold and was unable to enjoy life at all. Now I am the picture of health and can eat anything. What did it? Sulphur Bitters cured me of dyspepsia and liver complaint, after suffering two years.—W. H. Bowman, Manchester, N. H.

The Latest Craze in London.

The craze for photographing sections of the human form divine has not yet reached New York, but it's bound to come. I have been looking over an English collection.

There were hands—some of them stuck through holes in a dark screen and clasped and raised; others were taken alone, holding a flower; others again, exhibited the palm in such a way that a fortune teller could "read the lines."

There were bare feet. If any one ever saw a bare foot that was pretty on anything but a baby, then they have seen Lizzie Weatherby's (Mrs. Nat Goodwin). She has a beautiful foot without a blemish, and might be justified in having hers photographed. But the English feet that had been subjected to this process that I saw were something wicked. One, belonging to Lady Gladys Lonsdale, was handsome; but it was as big as the foot of a bill at Christmas.

Then the backs that are taken—just simple, plain backs, with moles perhaps, or without; and sections of shoulders and napes of necks, scruffs of necks—scrags of neck, the mutton sellers call 'em—or an ear, just one detached ear, for that ear is stuck through a slit in a piece of velvet.—New York Mirror.

"I have formed a settled conviction that the world is fed too much. Pastries, cakes, hot bread, rich gravies, pickles and pepper sauces are all discarded from my bill of fare, and I firmly believe they will be from the recipes of the twentieth century. Entire wheat-flour bread, vegetables, fruit, fish (with a little meat), and milk as the chief drink, will distil in the alembic of the digestic organs, into pure, rich, feverless blood, electric but steady nerves, and brains that can think God's thoughts after Him, as they have never yet been thought. This is my recipe: Plain living and high thinking, and this my warning: With high living you will get exceedingly plain thinking."—Frances E. Willard.

Another Life Saved.

About two years ago, a prominent citizen of Chicago was cured by his physician that he must die. They said his system was so debilitated that there was nothing left to build on. He made up his mind to try a "new departure." He got some of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" and took it according to directions. He began to improve at once. He kept up the treatment for some months, and is to-day a well man. He says the "Discovery" saved his life.

California's first attempts at raisin producing were made about nineteen years ago. The following year about 1500 boxes were made. Ten years ago the crop amounted to about 40,000 boxes, while this year it is estimated at 200,000 boxes.

The First Keen Twinge.

As the season advances, the pains and aches by which rheumatism makes itself known, are experienced after every exposure. It is not claimed that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a specific for rheumatism—we doubt if there is, or can be, such a remedy. But the thousands benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla, warrant us in urging others who suffer from rheumatism to take it before the first keen twinge.

A THRILLING STORY.

As Told by a Merchant in Troy, N. Y.—A Surgical Operation Avoided—How a Father, Wife and Daughter Escaped an Awful Doom.

Of the hundreds of accounts of remarkable cures wrought by DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, none have appeared so purely astonishing as the following. The persons mentioned are among the most highly respected in the city of Troy, and the story as told by the father will prove interesting to all our readers.—Ed.

TROY, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: My daughter was afflicted with a severe growth of Fungus. To remove it we had tried almost every remedy and consulted the most prominent surgeons and physicians. Dr. ——, of Troy, said that a surgical operation would be necessary, but fearing fatal results I hesitated. Some of the physicians claimed that it was caused by one thing and some by another. The Fungus was prominent and disfigured her look. Having heard of Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY working so thoroughly on the blood I determined to try it, to see if this medicine could do what doctors had failed to do and surgeons had hardly dared to undertake. I can say in truth that the result of the trial was the complete cure of my daughter of this dreadful malady. Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY alone effected it. We used nothing else, for other things had completely failed. My daughter today enjoys vigorous health and to Favorite Remedy alone is the credit due. My wife also was very poorly in health, due to some female difficulty with which he had suffered a long time until she became very much reduced in flesh. A trial of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy has resulted in the complete restoration of her health, which she had not enjoyed for years. She had gained in flesh and strength, and thus secured perfect health, and this is DUE EN TIRELY TO DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY. As for myself, being engaged in the grocery and commission business, which makes it necessary for me to test the quality of different articles, like butter, etc., my sense of taste and my stomach were seriously injured. Everything seemed to nauseate me, and fearful of dyspepsia in its most severe form, I tried DR KENNED'S FAVORITE REMEDY. The first bottle afford d immediate relief, and from that day to this I can say that Favorite Remedy has restored me to perfect health. These are facts which I claim prove that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the best medicine in the world for those afflicted with the above difficulties. If any one in the city of Troy doubts the truth of these statements let him come to me and I will prove them. I have recommended Favorite Remedy to hundreds and with the same good results.

A Big Bird's Nest.

What would my young readers think if they should find a nest 30 feet in diameter and 6 or 8 feet high? There are such nests in the Molucca Islands, made, too, by a bird as small, if not smaller than the straw-hatail, and called megapodius. Like the tropic bird, too, they frequent the scrubby jungles along the seashore, where the soil is sandy, but they have remarkably large and strong feet and long claws. Where there is a considerable quantity of debris, consisting of sticks, shells, seaweeds and leaves, the megapodius forms immense mounds, often with comparative ease, for with their long feet they can grasp and throw backward a large quantity of material. In the center of this mound, at the depth of two or three feet, the eggs are deposited and are hatched by the gentle heat produced by the fermentation of the vegetable matter of the mound.—Golden Days.

A predicament. Two o'clock in the morning.—sleet on the sidewalk.—baby got the croup, and no Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in the house.

Send to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass., for a book containing statements of many remarkable cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

—"Times is so hard that I feel like holding up a stage," murmured a half-famished prospector. And then he added, musingly, "but what 'ud be the use? Nine out of ten of the fellers wouldn't have a cent, and the tenth 'ud have a gun."

The Face.

It is a mistake to believe that a good complexion depends upon the use of cosmetics. It really depends upon perfect digestion and the purity of the blood. If persons with poor complexions will only take Wetherell's Sarsaparilla, which is the best medicine ever devised for imperfect digestion and a purifier of the blood, they are sure to digest well, and in consequence have clear, healthy complexions. Sold by all druggists. One dollar per bottle.

—A New York coachman has taken a new departure. He didn't run away with the millionaire's daughter, but eloped with the plain everyday governess of the millionaire's children. This man deserves a medal.

"A God-send is Ely's Cream Balm," writes Mrs. A. Jackson, of Portsmouth, N. H., on May 25, 1882. I had catarrh for three years! had tried nearly all remedies but to no purpose. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed quite freely and I thought the sores in it would never heal. Your Balm has cured me. This preparation is not a liquid or a snuff, and is easily applied. Price 50 cents. See adv't.

—"There are good and bad points about this coffee," said the boarder, in a judicial tone. "The good point is that there is no chicory in it; the bad, that there is no coffee in it."

Don't Give Up Yet.

It doesn't follow that a patient will die because the doctors have "given him up," or that he will recover because they promise to "pull him through." It is never too late to try the great virtues of Parker's Tonic. Mr Michael Guilfoyle, of Binghampton, N. Y., was cured of rheumatism by it after ten years of unspeakable suffering. Mr R. W. Mosher, druggist, of same city, certifies that he has sold over a thousand bottles of Parker's Tonic through its reputation for this and other cures.

How Certain San Franciscians Manage to Make a Living

In this city there are about half a dozen lying-in hospitals, nearly all conducted on the same plan. They are generally managed for private gain, but their practical nature does not prevent them from serving a humane end.

"These hospitals are a great blessing to some of the poor creatures who go to them in their hour of distress," said a person who is acquainted with their workings to a reporter recently. "There they receive attendance at the lowest rates for medical service, and do not want for anything in the way of careful treatment and nursing. One of which I have particular knowledge is on Fourth street, and is kept by a German woman. She has experienced nurses, quiet rooms, and her place is visited by nearly all classes of people. Among those who are most frequently received are servant girls. I know of a woman in this city who has had no less than six girls working for her at different times who have sought refuge at this hospital. The girls are expected to pay a uniform fee of $50, which covers the entire expense of their stay at the hospital. If they have but little money they are allowed to work out the fee, either as house servants or nurses, if they are found capable of filling such positions. This is, of course, after they have sufficiently recovered to be able to make themselves useful."

"And what becomes of the children?"

"They are all brought up 'by hand,' as it is termed; that is, on the bottle. The healthiest and prettiest are kept for the purpose of adopting direct from the hospital, and the rest are sent to the foundling asylums to take their chances. Where the maternal instinct is so strong that the parting between mother and child is found too painful, then the matron does not insist on the separation, and is, in fact, not at all anxious to keep the infant unless it is found to be somewhat prepossessing."

"Then the prettier the child the better its chances for adoption?"

"Exactly; and here is where the main profit of the institution is derived. The proprietress, besides getting a reasonable fee for her nursing and other services, often makes a much larger one by disposing of a child to a person of wealth who is anxious to adopt it. Childless ladies come in their carriages, rustling in silks and satins, to select a bright-eyed infant to love and cherish and lighten the household. I have heard of the prices paid in some instances running as high as $3,000 or $4,000. The shrewd proprietress knows how to turn to her advantage the fancy taken by a wealthy lady to a pretty baby. The little ones are always arrayed in fine dresses when a customer is expected, and are shown off at their best, that one of them at least may not fail to touch the chord—the golden chord, in the case, to the proprietress—of the visitor. Some of the customers are more eager to secure a prize of infant humanity than others. There was the case of a lady recently whose husband had been in China for several months, and who, being childless, was somewhat anxious on the subject of a son and heir. The round of the foundling asylums and hospitals was made in vain by the lady for the object of her search, but one day, happening in at the parlor of the institution I have referred to, a little red-faced darling only 8 days old took her eye, and a bargain was immediately struck. The lady saw a resemblance to her husband's face in the tiny features of the infant, and taking it home duly installed it in her household and affections, all unknown to her absent lord. Next day the newspapers contained notices of the birth of a son to the wife of ——, and copies of the papers were sent to the delighted husband, who shortened his stay in China in order to run home and get a look at his supposed offspring. It was not long before the secret was out, however, for, woman-like, she couldn't keep it. Then a squall struck the infant's new-home, though it quickly blew over, and the house re-echoes to squalls of a more diminutive, though, perhaps, not less heartrending nature. The husband has become reconciled to his disappointment, and if the youngster does not develop to an alarming degree his inborn Tar-flat tendencies he will doubtless remain a welcome guest at the house of his foster-parents.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Endurance in the Water.

Man and animals are able to sustain themselves for long distances in the water, and would do so oftener were they not incapacitated, in regard to the former at least, by sheer terror, as well as complete ignorance of their real power. Webb's wonderful endurance will never be forgotten. But there are other instances only less remarkable. Some years ago the second mate of a ship fell overboard while in the act of hoisting a sail. It was blowing fresh; the time was night, and the place was some miles out on the stormy German ocean. The hardy fellow, nevertheless, managed to gain the English coast. Brock, with a dozen other pilots, was plying for fares by Yarmouth, and as the main sheet was belayed, a sudden puff of wind upset the boat, when presently all per shed except Brock himself, who, from 4 in the afternoon of an October evening till 1 the next morning, swam thirteen miles before he was able to hail a vessel at anchor in the offing. Animals themselves are capable of swimming immense distances, although unable to rest by the way. A dog recently swam thirteen miles in America to rejoin his master. A mule and a dog, washed overboard in the Bay of Biscay, have been known to make their way to shore. A dog swam ashore at the Cape of Good Hope with a letter in his mouth. The crew of the ship to which the dog belonged all perished, which they need not have done had they only ventured to tread water as the dog did. As a certain ship was laboring heavily in the trough of the sea it was found needful, in order to lighten the vessel, to throw some troop horses overboard. The poor things, my informant, a staff surgeon, told me, when they found themselves abandoned, faced round and swam for miles after the vessel.

The Tooth Factory.

The domain of the dentist is to be disputed. A great discovery has been made which will revolutionize the whole business, and emancipate the sufferers. A factory has been established, plenty of capital to back it, for the purpose of making sets of artificial teeth by machinery. All that anyone who is troubled with his teeth will have to do will be to get them all pulled out. Then he can purchase a brand new, machine-made set and be exempt from toothache all the rest of his life. There is, of course, nothing new in the making and using of artificial teeth, but it will be easily seen that the manufacture by machinery presents great advantages. When the making of what has by machinery was started there were many protests that the new way would never be as good as the old. But the exactness soon attained, and the convenience of having the parts interchangeable, brought about a revolution, and to factory watches now rank above the hand-made. The same advantages will be had in the factory teeth. If one set gets broken, or comes out, an exact duplicate one can be ordered from the factory at very small cost. If the plate gets cracked, it can be replaced in the same way. All that will be necessary will be to give the number of the plate, and a new one, precisely like the old, will be sent by return mail.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

The Catholics of the New Hampshire diocese will build an episcopal residence at Manchester at a cost of $20,000.

You Can Have It.

"My dear, what would I give to have your hair?" is often said by middle-aged ladies to young ones. Madam, you may have just such hair. Parker's Hair Balsam will give it to you. It will stop your hair from falling off, restore the original color and make it long, thick, soft and glossy. You need not stand helplessly envying the girls. The balsam is not oily, not a dye, but is an elegant dressing, and is especially recommended for its cleanliness and purity.

The Naval Appropriation Bill.

On Tuesday, Jan. 27th, the United States senate agreed to accept the report of the conference committee on the naval appropriation bill; in other words, the senate receded from its position regarding its amendments in relation to making appropriations for the new cruisers, and approved the bill substantially as it was passed by the house.

DR. DAVID KIMBALL.—There is no sadder phrase than this: "The generation passing away." To include in its scope the honored name written above is to awaken anew the mournful recollections of Portsmouth's many bereavements in the past few years. Although twenty-five years have elapsed, it seems but as many weeks since the writer, an utter stranger in this city, found a kind adviser and friend in the dear good man whose loss we mourn; his friendship was not for a day, but enduring time; and as many are the young men who will testify to its substantial character. No one entertained a keener appreciation of another's misfortune, none more active in affording relief. There are few men who are willing to devote time which is due to important business to the lightening, even to the carrying of the burdens of others; such sacrifices were frequently demanded of the kind-hearted doctor, and his patience and his resources were always equal to the demand; and only when patience was no longer a virtue and forbearance became pakind kindness, would he relax any effort in behalf of an unfortunate.

More progressive than most of his generation he was fond of the beautiful, and utility and beauty alike commanded his attention. Not unmindful of humor, we remember his hearty enjoyment of a jest at a recent interview, although bending under the weight of physical infirmity, while no expression of merriment was ever heard from his lips. Such a character is rarely found; many of the gentlemen of the old school have possessed another side of character not usually disclosed; Dr. Kimball wore no disguise; and the story of his daily business routine was but a continuation of the tale as it begun, progressed and ended in his happiest of home relations. It would be a pleasant duty to dwell at length upon his many virtues; his faults—we never knew them; and hundreds who may perchance, read these lines, will be equally at a loss; this community with which he has been a dweller for so many years, will miss the kind face and pleasant greeting, and his memory will be kept green and fragrant with an eloquence of regret, itself a mausoleum.—Penny Post.

The Portsmouth "Chronicle" is certainly very enterprising in the way of getting news; it knows a good thing when it sees it; it sees such things very often in the Republican, and has a way of taking them without credit and publishing as it own. Smart, isn't it?—Dover Republican.

Our brother of the Republican is keen-eyed indeed, if he is able to "very often see" in the Chronicle things taken from his paper. The fact is that for Dover news we have always relied on Foster's Democrat, and rarely even look at the Republican unless our attention is specially called to something in it—as was the case with the above extract, a friend bringing the paper to us after it had left our office, and pointing out the item. Whether the Republican makes use of the Chronicle or not we cannot say, as we do not scan its columns; but we are pleased to knew that Bro. Foster regards our paper (as we do his) as a valuable exchange, and finds in it many things he can use, giving us due credit for important items and letting unimportant ones go in without any specified paternity—just as we do with the frequent bits of news which we find in the Democrat. We have always been satisfied with Bro. Foster's idea as to fair play in the line of giving credit; if he has ever been dissatisfied with ours, he has not made it manifest.

General Stewart's army has captured Metemneh after desperate fighting. Gen. Stewart was severely wounded; Lord St. Vincent was killed, and also Mr. Cameron, special correspondent of the London Standard, and Mr. Herbert, special correspondent of the Morning Post. Five Arab emirs and 250 of their men were killed, and many wounded.

Considerable excitement exists in Portland, Me., over the publication by the Portland Herald, the organ of Rev. H. C. Munson's temperance crusade, of a list of names of all who have taken out a United States license to sell liquor in that city. The Herald gives the names of druggists as well as of known liquor dealers. In all 170 names are given. Maine has a licensed shop for every 593 of her population, or 1077 in all.

The recent snow fall on the Italian Alps is said to be the heaviest within the memory of man. Terrible accounts arrive from the villages destroyed. It is calculated that so far as known 300 lives have been lost through the storms.

There was published in the Boston papers of Tuesday evening, Jan. 27th, a report that Joseph Crue, the husband of Mrs. Maria L. Crue of Groton, Mass., who was shot there in her own house on Jan. 10th, 1880, has confessed on his deathbed that he was the perpetrator of the deed, and not Stearns Kendall Abbott. The story was discredited.

Surgeon General Hamilton of the marine hospital service has been informed of the existence of yellow fever in malignant form at Panama and Colon. It is estimated that about 2400 people were buried in Panama alone during 1884. It is suggested that all vessels coming from Colon and Panama to ports of the United States be watched with extreme care by health officers.

If it were possible

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA for debility, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which every one feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that Hood's Sarsaparilla contains more real medicinal value than any article before the people.

What a Man Did with Kidney Complaint

DRACUT, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO., LOWELL, MASS.:

Dear Sirs—I have suffered from kidney complaint and biliousness for fifteen years. Have tried everything and never got any good. Last January, before I commenced taking HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, everything I ate bloated me all up, pain in my chest and arms, headache and dizzy. I could not get up without feeling weary and all fagged out. Many mornings I was obliged to lie down on the lounge. To do any work seemed almost impossible. Have taken two bottles. The backache, dizziness, pain in my chest and arms, and that feeling of intense weariness are all gone. I can eat anything and it does not press me at all. Feel just like work; in fact, like a new man. Can heartily recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and hope all who desire to know anything about it will come to me and ask what I think of it. Very truly yours,

JONATHAN J. COBURN.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The following statistics relating to the Public Library of this city are taken from the report of the librarian, Mr. Robert E. Rich, for the year ending Jan. 1st, 1885:

Whole number of books in the Library January 1st, 1884	4,915
Added during the year	2,247
" " " now in Library	7,148
Loaned during the year	28,585
Average number loaned per day that the Library was open	152
Highest number loaned in one day	510
Number of cards issued since the Library was opened, Jan. 1st, 1881	3,670
Number of cards issued during year 1884	1,134

Of the 2247 books added during the past year, 2000 were from the Mercantile Library Association, which has generously made over its fine collection of books to the public library.

The whole number of cards shows the number of persons who have made use of the library since its opening four years ago. It is impossible to tell the exact number actually in use at the present time, but it may safely be set down as nearly or quite 3000. This would show that not far from one-third of the inhabitants of the city take out books for themselves; while at least two people may, on an average, be supposed to read each book taken out.

The library is open for eleven months of the year; being closed during the month of August. The hours are from seven to nine Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday evenings, and from three to six Saturday afternoons.

AVERY LACTATE CO.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Avery Lactate Co., held in this city on Wednesday, the 28th inst., the following-named gentlemen were elected directors:

Aaron Hobart, N. D. Whitney, J. A. Brown, S. S. Sprague and Thomas S. Nowell.

Thomas S. Nowell was chosen president, and B. F. Brown treasurer.

The company's business was reported as in a flourishing condition. There were but few stockholders present, doubtless by reason of the storm, and accordingly the meeting, after the election of officers, was adjourned for four weeks.

CHINESE PROGRESS.

The Heathen Chinee has been opposed by many people on the ground that he is not susceptible of civilization, one of the arguments adduced in support of this position being his apparent hatred of idleness,—his readiness to work for the merest pittance rather than not work at all. But this objection to the heathen is no longer of use, as he is quite capable of going on the tramp the same as white folks. We do not make this statement rashly, two genuine Chinese tramps having arrived in this city on Tuesday evening of this week, and called upon Sam Lee, the Chinese laundryman. Mr. Lee positively declined to allow his vagabond countrymen to domicile themselves upon him for the night, and a spirited oration in the tea-chest language failing to cause their departure, called a native citizen to his aid, when the unwelcome intruders withdrew, Sam Lee as they went explaining to his friend, "Chinamen no good; blanked tramps, allee same Melican man!" These Chinese pioneers in a new industry have apparently not yet mastered the whole duty of tramps, as they did not go to the police station for a lunch and shelter; but they will soon learn, being an imitative race.

A COLD STORM.

It is a very common remark, when the sky looks threatening while the temperature is very low, "It can't snow till the weather moderates;" but the snow came down briskly all day Wednesday, the 28th inst., though the mercury was nearly down to zero when it commenced, and was actually below zero in some places about noon. The people who were to be seen on our streets during the day were those who were compelled to be out, and country teams were as scarce as hen's teeth. The railroad trains during the day were all more or less late in arriving, the storm being the hardest one of the winter, thus far.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., Jan. 26th.

The young ladies of this town, Misses Anna A. Abrams, Mabel I. Jenkins, Susan E. Pettigrew and Addie S. Remick, passed a highly satisfactory examination and graduated with honors from the Maine Normal School at Gorham on Friday, the 23d inst. They returned to their homes on Saturday last.

Misses Margery and Mary Goodsoe, two aged maiden ladies residing in North Kittery, were quite severely "pounded" by a delegation from the 1st Methodist Episcopal society, (of which they are members) on Wednesday evening, the 21st inst. The invading company brought with them a large supply of the necessaries of this life, and in return received the hearty thanks of the worthy sisters.

The annual session of York District Lodge, I. O. G. T., will meet with East Waterboro Lodge of Waterboro on Wednesday, Feb. 25th, commencing at ten o'clock A. M.

John Rogers and sons are hauling out large quantities of wood from their lot near the cemetery.

Capt. "Rashe" Trefethen, of the steamer Mystic, is accused by the correspondent of the Biddeford Journal of hiring Lawyer Safford to "blow his horn" for him down before the legislature. Capt. Rashe is generally engaged in looking after the interests of his patrons, and not looking after every "wild-cat" scheme that drifts along; hence his success.

The Kittery polo club, Oscar M. Stimson captain, play a picked club of Portsmouth on Friday last, resulting in a victory for the Kittery boys by a score of seven to four.

The reunion of the Kittery Free High school will take place at Trefethen's hall on Friday evening, the 30th inst.

The lecture, which was to have been given in the 2d M. E. church by Rev. O. L. Green of Boston on Monday evening, the 26th inst., did not occur, through some misunderstanding.

Mr. Isaac H. M. Pray, formerly employed as pattern maker in the steam engineering department at the navy yard, has been engaged in a similar capacity at the Portsmouth Machine Co. shops in Portsmouth.

Miss Susie E. Pettigrew, lately graduated from the Normal school at Gorham, Me., has gone to Augusta to spend a portion of the winter, as her parents are absent in Washington, D. C.

A surprise party was given to Miss Rose Avery and Miss Ada Fridgen, two young ladies from Portland visiting at Mr. James D. Plaisted's in North Kittery, on Friday evening last. A lively company were present and enjoyed themselves immensely; an elegantly-spread table containing many tempting viands was in waiting, to which all did full justice. SUB ROSA.

The Biddeford papers say of the Dime Show which is to be at Music hall on Monday next (as by advertisemen) that it was a pronounced success. "The audience last night numbered between seven and eight hundred people, and the farce, 'Rural Simplicity,' Prof. Yank's ventriloquisms, and a 'Day in June,' provoked the same screams of laughter that marked the opening night's performance. Nora, the bright particular star of the Fred Williams company, has engrafted herself into the affections of the playgoing people of the two cities, and she has established herself as a genuine favorite. She is bright, pretty and witty, and deserves every bit of applause her acting and singing called forth. The engagement is a pronounced success, and before its termination the company will have coined money."

The directors of the Maine Central railroad, at a meeting held in Portland Jan. 27th, declared a semi-annual dividend of three per cent, payable Feb. 15th to stockholders of record Feb. 10th.

The Nonpareil Associates will hold their first assembly at the town hall in Rye on Monday evening, Feb. 2d, Mr. Edward Walker of Rye officiating as floor manager. Beacham's barge leaves the stable on Fleet street at seven o'clock for Rye. If stormy on Monday evening, the assembly will take place the first fair evening thereafter.

"The Silver Spoon," one of the most remarkable successes at the Boston Museum, is to be performed at Music hall on Friday evening, with Sol Smith Russel in the leading comedy role, and a fine cast throughout.

A select dance and supper will be given in Mechanics' hall on Friday evening, Feb. 6th.

A popular tonsorial artiste of this city was on Tuesday of this week presented with a son. The principal pool players of the city, being accustomed to making keen calculations, have figured that the new citizen will be entitled to vote five years from now, as he was sixteen years old when he got here.

Joshua K. Osgood, the father of the Reform Club temperance movement, died in Gardiner, Me., Jan. 28th. He was born in Gardiner on the 11th of November, 1816.

Rev. Silas Quimby of West Unity died Jan. 25th, in the 74th year of his age. He was ordained an elder in the Methodist Episcopal church in this city in 1835.

Mr. Fred L. Wood, for a year past clerk in the office of the Portsmouth Machine Co., has left that position.

A colonial party, similar to the highly successful one given in the Portsmouth Machine shop a year ago, will take place in the Portsmouth skating rink on the evening of Monday, Feb. 23d. Arrangements for the affair are now in progress.

Mr. Charles Littlefield, who lately removed from South Newmarket to this city to take the foremanship of the Portsmouth Machine Co.'s brass foundry, twenty-eight years ago on the 19th of January crossed the Piscataqua river near Portsmouth bridge, in company with the late Dr. Oliver, with a horse and sleigh. At the same time Mr. Robert A. Stott, then only ten years old, crossed the tide water on a horse—a saw-horse, mounted on a sled—and a retired sea-captain with a young friend, both now deceased, crossed at the narrows. Within two hours, the ice which had been jammed against the bridge by the flood tide went out to sea on the ebb, in anticipation of which event all the travellers had speedily scrambled back to land.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1885.

Among the chief periodicals of the country, LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE has acquired the distinctive reputation of being "eminently readable." Arrangements have been made for many contributions of special interest during the coming year. Among these particular attention is invited to a serial story entitled "ON THIS SIDE," by F. C. Baylor, author of "The Perfect Treasure" (commenced in the January number) in which the experiences of an English baronet and his friends during a tour through the United States are related with a mirth-provoking humor, a knowledge and appreciation of national characteristic, and a perfect fairness of tone and freedom from caricature that cannot fail to secure critical approval and wide popularity. Miss Tincker's beautiful novel, "Aurora," will be completed in the summer, and will be followed by several stories in two or more parts, including "The Lady Lawyer's First Client," by the author of "A Lucky Dog Schol." Sketches of Italian Life, by Mrs. Laurel Thompson, an account of the Pioneers of Tennessee, by "Edmund Kirke," a narrative of the experiences of a Steerage Passenger to and from Liverpool, by Thomas Wharton, an article on Queen Anne, or Free Classic Architecture, by George C. Mason, Jr., and a Comedy for private theatricals, by James Payn, will be published in early numbers, together with the usual variety of short stories and articles of general interest by popular writers.

Burst in the Water.

On the 28th of October, 1840, persons present at the Northport camp-ground, in Waldo County, saw a meteoric ball into the water near the camp. As it fell it burst into fragments, or that was the conclusion drawn by those who witnessed its descent. Search was made at the time for fragments, but none were then found, the tide at all time covering the spot where the meteoric struck the water. Two years ago one who witnessed the fall again made the search, and some small fragments were recovered. From time to time the search has been continued and other fragments have been brought to light, one of which was considerately sent to Professor F. C. Robinson, of Bowdoin College. More recently quite a large mass, weighing perhaps twenty pounds, was recovered, and this mass Professor Robinson has now in his possession much to his gratification. He will proceed to analyze it.—Brunswick (Maine) Telegraph.

A citizen of the Quaker City, Mr. F. Freed, living at 122 Vine St., recently spoke as follows: "Being afflicted with a distressing cough, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup was recommended to me for relief. I am happy to say that a few doses not only gave instant relief but effected a complete cure."

The Face.

It is a mistake to believe that a good complexion depends upon the use of cosmetics. It really depends upon perfect digestion and the purity of the blood. If persons with poor complexions will only take Wetherell's Sarsaparilla, which is the best medicine ever devised for imperfect digestion and a purifier of the blood, they are sure to digest well, and in consequence have clear, healthy complexions. Sold by all druggists. One dollar per bottle.

"A God-send is Ely's Cream Balm," writes Mrs. A. Jackson, of Portsmouth, N. H., on May 25, 1882. I had catarrh for three years! had tried nearly all remedies but to no purpose. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed quite freely and I thought the sores in it would never heal. Your Balm has cured me. This preparation is not a liquid or a snuff, and is easily applied. Price 50 cents. See adv't.

TELEGRAPH STORIES.

Operators' Experiences on the Frontier.

Several old telegraph operators, in the course of a long conversation here, told some of their experiences on the frontier. One of them began by recalling the great bullion robbery at that place. It was at noon, and most of the depot and stage hands had gone across the yards to dinner. As the operator sat in the telegraph office alone two men presented themselves at his door and demanded admittance. Both had revolvers. He jumped up and let them in, and they quickly bound and gagged him. Believing he was safe, they disappeared and he saw no more of them. As soon as they were out of sight he managed to get to his instrument, and by lying down on the table found that with one of his hands he could reach the key. It was difficult work, but by degrees he improved his position until finally he raised the Cheyenne office and communicated the fact that a robbery was in progress. The operator at that point kept him posted as to the proceedings there, and in a few minutes he was gratified to hear the intelligence ticked over the wires that the Superintendent and a party of detectives were en route for Sidney on a special train. The distance was 102 miles, but the run was made so rapidly that the people of the town were hardly aware of the robbery before the train dashed in. The operator had by that time been released, and it was found that the thieves, who had been secreted under the depot, had come up through a hole in the floor made by removing a board. The bullion weighed about 500 pounds, and as it was thought they could not have carried it far a vigorous search was made near at hand. Before night the greater part of the gold was found in a hole under the depot and the remainder was discovered in an adjoining coal-shed, where it had been dropped. The thieves got away with only about $13,000 in currency.

Another man remarked that he was the man who discovered the Ogalalla train robbery. He was in charge of the little office at Kearney. He had had a very stupid afternoon, and as the day was miserable without he dozed more or less. As no one came in he leaned forward, placing his arms upon his table and his head upon them.

"I must have slept soundly for awhile," he said, "for I lost myself entirely for an hour or two, but presently I had an indistinct impression that some one was calling for assistance. In my dream it seemed to me that I could hear the cry, 'Help! help!' and that I was powerless to render any assistance. Finally I sat bolt upright, with a nervous feeling as though something terrible had happened which I ought to have prevented. I rubbed my eyes and looked around sleepily. The depot was empty. It was dark outside and rain was falling. I stepped to the door and looked out for a minute, but heard nothing. Then I went back to my desk, filled and lighted my pipe, and began to read. My eyes had just fallen on the page when my instrument sounded once or twice very feebly. I looked at it closely. It ticked again almost inaudibly. 'Something's the matter,' thought I. I got up, leaned over the sounder, and listened. I could just catch the faintest click, as if a child might have been playing with a key somewhere. When I listened I began to comprehend the nature of the message that was being sent. I could not catch all the letters, but I got enough, after listening to it a dozen times, to make out this much: 'Ogallalla, Ogallala! Help!' It flashed upon me all at once. The overland train was being robbed or had been robbed. I grabbed my key and let everybody have it from Cheyenne to Omaha. There was some lively telegraphing there for a time. They sent engines out from two or three points, and got to Ogallala in time to scare the robbers off. You see I was a good deal further off than a dozen other operators, but somehow I was the first one that caught on. The way it happened was this: The robbers came into the depot at Ogalalla about an hour before train time and bound and gagged the operator. After they got him fixed they sat around and waited. When the train drew up they left him, and he immediately got himself in a position where he could use the key a little. The boys who saw him say it was a mystery how he ever did it. His legs were tied twice, and his arms were pinioned behind him so that it was almost impossible to move even the fingers. The fact that I could not catch two consecutive letters until I had heard the message ten or twelve times shows how faint the stroke was. It was the queerest experience of my life."—Sidney (Neb.) Cor. Detroit Times.

Condiments and Indigestion.

Cayenne pepper may be selected as a typical example of a condiment properly so called. Mustard is a food and condiment combined; this is the case with some others. Curry-powders are mixtures of very potent condiments with more or less of farinaceous materials, and sulphur compounds, which, like the oil of mustard, onions, garlic, etc., may have a certain amount of nutritive value.

The mere condiment is a stimulating drug that does its work directly upon the inner lining of the stomach, by exciting it to increased and abnormal activity. A dyspeptic may obtain immediate relief by using cayenne pepper. Among the advertised patent medicines is a pill bearing the very ominous name of its compounder, the active constituent of which is cayenne. Great relief and temporary comfort are commonly obtained by using it as a "dinner-pill." If thus used only as a temporary remedy for an acute and temporary, or exceptional, attack of indigestion, all is well, but the cayenne, whether taken in pills or dusted over the food or stewed with it in curries or any otherwise, is one of the most cruel of slow poisons when taken habitually. Thousands of poor wretches are crawling miserably toward their graves, the victims of the multitude of maladies of both mind and body that are connected with chronic, incurable dyspepsia, all brought about by the habitual use of cayenne and its condimental cousins.

The usual history of these victims is that they began by overfeeding, took the condiment to force the stomach to do more than its health allowed, or work, using but a little at first. Then the stomach became tolerant of this little, and demanded more; then more, and more, and more, until at last inflammation, ulceration, torpidity, and finally the death of the digestive powers, accompanied with all that long train of miseries to which I have referred.—W. Mathieu Williams, in Popular Science Monthly for January.

Mr. Carruthers used to relate with much glee that he escorted the great Sir Robert Peel to the battlefield of Culloden and pointed out to him the graves of the highland warriors who had been slain in that fatal encounter. Seeing a shepherd watching his flock feeding on the scant herbage of the moor, he stepped aside to inform the man of the celebrity of his companion. The information fell upon inattentive ears. "Did you never hear of Sir Robert Peel?" inquired Mr. Carruther. "Never dud" (did), replied the shepherd. "Is it possible you never heard of him? He was once Prime Minister of England." "Weel," replied the shepherd, "he seems to be a very respectable man."—The Gentleman's Magazine.

The Senatorial Appointment.

The Concord correspondent of the New York Sun knows all about the future action of Gov. Hale as to the appointment of United States senator to fill the vacancy existing after March 3d, and sends to that paper the following authoritative information, which is about as reliable as any likely to be obtained by a democratic correspondent in relation to the future acts of a republican governor:

Among the candidates for the appointment are Ex-Gov. Prescott of Epping, Mr. Colby of Claremont, Mr. Rolfe of Concord, and Mr. Batchelder of Keene. The knowing ones say that all of these gentlemen will be disappointed. The governor rather encourages the scramble for the office, because he realizes that after the participants have attacked each other it will be easier for him to carry out a scheme which he has had in mind for some time, that of tendering the office to his life-long friend, J. W. Johnson of Enfield. In fact, I have excellent authority for saying that the appointment has already been offered to Col. Johnson, and that, except in the improbable event of its declination, the official announcement will be made at the proper time.

The governor's enemies within the party would pretend to consider such an appointment a scandalous one, not because Col. Johnson has a corrupt record, but because he keeps a hotel for a living. They forget that when Senator Rollins went into politics and paved his way to the United States senate he was an humble pill maker. There are, however, two good reasons why the appointment of Col. Johnson would be an improper one. In the first place, while a good hotel man, he is in no sense fitted to represent his state in the senate of the United States, and his appointment would be about as absurd as was that of Tabor of Colorado. In the second place, Col. Johnson retains only a nominal residence in New Hampshire. He is the proprietor and manager of the Quincy house in Boston, where he spends nearly all of his time.

Col. Johnson has partly achieved one object in his senatorial aspirations—that of an extensive advertisement of his hotel among the numerous readers of our excellent New York cotemporary's widely read journal to which, as he knows how to keep a good hotel, we add the benefit of our own circulation. The result of this must be that if the Brattle Square establishment is not flourishing after this, then there is no virtue in the power of the press.

Invited to Visit the Sphinx.

Some democrats appear to be dissatisfied because Mr. Cleveland has sent for Mr. Sam. Randall to come and see him. For our part we attach but little importance to this invitation, and while democrats affect to fear that Mr. Randall may inoculate the president-elect with some of his narrow views as to the expenditures for the navy or on questions of incidental protection, it is well for them to remember that Mr. Randall has recently made a four through a portion of the Solid South, and that Mr. Cleveland, like a sponge, absorbs very much from those with whom he comes in contact, but gives out little. In the case of the tariff democrat we think that when he leaves Albany he will not know much more than he does now as to Mr. Cleveland's plans, but what the coming man will not know about Randall's projects will not be worth knowing.

Doings in Congress.

In the senate, Jan. 28th, a message was read from the president, saying that he had allowed the bill to reimburse Urial Crocker of Boston to become a law without his signature, but condemning that kind of special legislation in round terms. Mr. Hoar, who introduced the bill, asked by what authority the president criticised Congress for passing a bill which he allowed to become a law. Mr. Edmunds replied that the president could send any message he chose.

The speaker laid before the house a communication from the secretary of the navy proposing that in view of the great services and sympathy extended in Russia to the survivors of the Arctic exploring steamer Jeannette, and to the search parties subsequently sent to Siberia, it seems fitting that the Congress of the United States should tender to the government and people of Russia an official expression of its thanks, and also proposing to give those officials and inhabitants of Siberia who directly and materially aided the surviving officers and men of the Jeannette and the officers of the search party such additional evidence of the appreciation of this government as may be appropriate.

Sensible Talk.

At the recent Prohibition Convention held at Manchester, the venerable Rev. Dr. C. W. Wallace was invited to speak. He came forward and spoke briefly but pointedly, saying that he was satisfied that the temperance movement would not progress much farther until we can get rid of the grog shop. He sympathized with the meeting so far as it expressed its determination to remove the grog shop.

"It seems certain," he said, "that the republican party in New Hampshire cannot keep in power without the aid of the temperance people. Now, on the other hand, I cannot see how the prohibitionists can get into power without the aid of the republicans. Now is it the way to get the votes for this party by pouring red hot lava and stinging curses upon that party? The trouble is, the grog shops have got the votes and the power and they can afford to laugh, and they will retain that power just so long as the laws continue unenforced."

And the laws will continue unenforced as long as certain men run the prohibition party for a consideration supplied by ambitious or designing democrats. Every one knows that in a close contest there can be found men who will consent to be classed as prohibitionists, will help organize, and maintain a party, go to conventions and "resolve" to any amount provided some wealthy representative of the liquor interest will find it for his interest to pay the expenses of this service. Parson Wallace's speaking out in meeting is not just what was wanted by the "professionals," though it was warmly applauded by the amateurs.

It is reported that Joachin Miller's mother, who lives on the Pacific coast, has been deserted by the twenty-two-years-old husband whom she married a year ago.

Nobody Who Uses Sulphur Bitters can remain long unwell. The foreman of the Shapleigh Machine and Screw Works, Boston, Mass., L. B. The itching and burning feeling almost drove me crazy. Your Sulphur Bitters has done me more good than anything I have ever used, and I think it is a great blood purifier, and I advise all so troubled to use

The best physicians here failed to help him, and I tried Sarsaparillas and all manner of liniments without benefit. A gentleman told my husband to use Sulphur Bitters, as he thought it was an honest medicine. In three days from the first dose of Sulphur

The Postmaster, Winchester, Mass., says: Gentlemen,—I am personally acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Carleton, and was astonished at the remarkable effect of your Sulphur Bitters in curing their son; and its large sale is undoubtedly due to the fact that it is an honest medicine. And I do not think too much can be said in its praise.

THE WEATHER.

For New England To-day:

Fair, warmer weather.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 5 degrees below zero.

Sky clear.

THE BLIZZARD.

The howling wind on Wednesday night, the 28th inst., made annoying work with the dry, mealy snow which had fallen during the day; from eleven o'clock until three the night was as disagreeable a one to be out in as is often experienced in this latitude and longitude, the air being so thick with the whirling snow that it was only at intervals a glimpse could be had of the opposite side of the street, though the nearly full moon was shining brightly, unobscured by even a flying cloud. The streets were early deserted, and when at two o'clock a wandering policeman and a belated newspaper man passed each other near the post-office neither spoke, each of course supposing the other to be a lunatic, to be out at such a time in such weather, with the thermometer at zero. When the wind died away at a later hour the sidewalks which had been neatly cleared Wednesday evening were generally well banked up, and the snow which had been in the roadways was either on the sidewalks or in back yards, or in lofty drifts extending across the roads and streets. Thursday morning the milkmen were generally from one to three hours late in getting into the city, and it is currently reported that quite a number of citizens drank punches or beer instead of coffee at the matutinal meal.

An ox-sled with a log lashed across the front, and drawn by two yoke of cattle, came into the city from "Crowfown" early Thursday morning, making a very good track over its route.

A snow-plow drawn by four horses left the city yard at the court house about nine o'clock in the forenoon, accompanied by three men, for a day's work at "breaking out" if needed.

The Gravelly Ridge snow-plow came in over the Christian Shore route Thursday forenoon, breaking out the road as far as the residence of Capt. John G. Moses on Elm street, where the establishment tacked ship and went back. The big plow was drawn by fifteen horses in a string, of all colors and various sizes, but all good-looking animals, with a solid old fellow of the size of a small elephant in the shafts; eight or ten men accompanied the team, which attracted much attention.

POLICE COURT -- BATCHELDER J

THURSDAY, Jan. 29th.

John T. Barrett was before the court for drunkenness, having recently graduated from Brentwood. The drunk he had indulged in having been one of unusual size, the court suggested that he hand over $11.90, fine and costs, and he went to jail to ponder on the suggestion.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, Jan. 29th, Mayor Page in the chair:

The records of the last meeting were read and approved.

Sundry bills were ordered paid, and routine business transacted.

The city marshal was directed to enforce the ordinance requiring abutters to remove snow from sidewalks.

A communication from the New England Insurance Exchange, reciting the necessity of the city constructing new reservoirs, procuring new hose, having firemen sleep in the engine houses, and other needs to make the fire department complete and thoroughly effective, was referred to the committee on fire department.

Ordered that the city clerk be directed to communicate to Ex-Mayors Goodrich, Sise and Treat the request of the board that they furnish their portraits to be placed in the aldermen's room.

Adjourned at eight o'clock, having assembled at 7:30.

In Common Council there was no quorum, and the president called upon the police to bring in enough of the delinquents to enable the transaction of business. The officers displayed due diligence, but the early comers kept retiring, so a quorum was not secured.

This evening, at Music hall, "The Silver Spoon" will be presented under the management of Mr. R. M. Field of the Boston Museum, by an excellent company supporting Sol Smith Russell, who will take the part of Jefferson Scattering Batkins. Tickets at Goodrich's.

The New York Sun, referring to the statement in the Tribune concerning Hon. Frank Jones' likelihood of becoming secretary of the navy, and that Mrs. Jones is opposed to going to Washington and urges her husband to remain upon his broad acres in Portsmouth, remarks, as if speaking by the book, that "We fear that the request of this excellent lady will not receive from her more ambitious husband the obedience which it merits."

The high school was dismissed after about an hour's session on Thursday, the 29th inst., on account of the building being so cold. This is the second time the school has been dismissed from this cause this winter.

The Ten Cents Savings bank business bids fair to be wound up shortly, the assignee having been authorized by the supreme court to sell the uncollected claims belonging to the bank. The sale will take place on Wednesday of next week; see advertisement.

O. F. Philbrick & Co. have hard wood limbs—first-class firing, though of course somewhat less lasting than cleft wood—for sale at only $4 a cord.

The mercury along the shores of Great bay fell on Thursday morning to twelve degrees below zero. The only party on the bay and coming down that day comprised two persons, who on the day previous caught seventeen smelts. The coldness of the water, and the darkness in consequence of the thickness of the ice and heavy coating of snow, are supposed by the fishermen to drive the fish into deeper water.

The widow of the late Rear Admiral Goldsborough died at Washington on the 28th inst. She was, with her husband, many years ago, a resident of this city.

Notwithstanding the severity of the weather the lower Piscataqua continues to be nearly free of ice; in fact there is none in the tide waters, but along the eddies may be seen broken particles floating up and down.

At a meeting of the directors of the Trust & Guarantee company, held on Wednesday evening of this week, it was announced that all the holders of certificates representing the special deposit of $100,000 had agreed either to pay in a sum necessary to make up the deficit or to sell their stock. The directors are now paying off such of the stockholders as desire to sell. The sum required to pay off this latter class is comparatively small, as most of the stockholders have confidence in the organization and are anxious to retain their interest in the company. The company will resume business as soon as the stock is turned over to its new owners, or in the course of a few weeks.

The floor of the office of the street commissioner, under the court house, it is reported will soon be carpeted, or else repainted to correspond with the dignity of Portsmouth.

Hon. Frank Jones was elected a director in the New Hampshire Fire Insurance Co. at the annual meeting of the corporation held recently.

Margaret Mather is to appear at Music hall on Saturday evening, Feb. 28th.

It is evident from the comments of our exchanges that the Birds of a Feather Co., which will appear in Music hall on Monday next, is a good one, and as it is the first ten-cent show that has been at Music hall there will be a big crowd in attendance. If Biddeford, where the company are now playing could pack the house each night for a whole week, there must be merit in the show.

Three bald-headed eagles were shot on Wednesday, Jan. 28th, by Mr. Melvin Staples, at Broad Cove, on the Newington side of the river near the former site of the Piscataqua bridge. The birds each measured nine feet from tip to tip of the extended wings. When shot they were feeding on small fish frozen up in the ice, such as cunners, etc., some of which fish are said to remain in the river all winter, instead of seeking deeper water as most of their kind do. Two of the eagles were sold to be carried to a taxidermist in Boston, and other will be mounted in Portsmouth.

Black ducks were flying up the Piscataqua in considerable flocks, early Thursday morning, seeking refuge from the storm at sea. They are fairly safe inside, because the sportsmen, being generally otherwise occupied here, are somewhat indisposed to expose themselves to the cold upon uncertainties.

Mr. C. H. Green of Littleton has been appointed railway mail agent on the route between this city and Boston. He will take the place of Capt. Rowell, who was so affected by serious illness that he gave up his position a few weeks ago.

The papers state that a Coos lawyer was relieved of his watch recently in Florida. We knew that several New Hampshire lawyers had left their money to a greater or less degree in Florida of late, but when it comes to investing up so snugly that one's watch has to ascend the woodbine, it is quite time for the legal lights to return to their native hills and quit speculation.

Chief Engineer Melville of Arctic fame on Jan. 27th issued at Philadelphia an address to the American public, wherein he expresses his belief that the time is now ripe for the making of a final and successful voyage to the north pole. The route he advocates is by way of Franz Josef land.

If it were possible

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA for debility, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which every one feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that Hood's Sarsaparilla contains more real medicinal value than any article before the people.

What a Man Did with Kidney Complaint

DRACUT, MASS.
MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & Co., Lowell, Mass.:
Dear Sirs—I have suffered from kidney complaint and biliousness for fifteen years. Have tried everything and never got any good. Last January, before I commenced taking HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, everything I ate bloated me all up, pain in my chest and arms, headache and dizzy. I could not get up without feeling weary and all fagged out. Many mornings I was obliged to lie down on the lounge. To do any work seemed almost impossible. Have taken two bottles. The backache, dizziness, pain in my chest and arms, and that feeling of intense weariness are all gone. I can eat anything and it does not press me at all. Feel just like work; in fact, like a new man. Can heartily recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and hope all who desire to know anything about it will come to me and ask what I think of it. Very truly yours,
JONATHAN J. COBURN.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1885.

Among the chief periodicals of the country, LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE has acquired the distinctive reputation of being "eminently readable." Arrangements have been made for many contributions of special interest during the coming year. Among the particular attention is invited to a serial story entitled "ON THIS SIDE," by F. C. Baylor, author of "The Perfect Treasure" (commenced in the January number) in which the experiences of an English baronet and his friends during a tour through the United States are reviewed with a humor sparkling in character, a knowledge and appreciation of national characteristics, and a perfect freedom of tone and freedom from caricature that cannot fail to secure critical approval and wide popularity. Miss Tincker's beautiful novel, "Auroreen," will be completed in the summer, and will be followed by several stories in two or more parts, including "The Law" Lawyer's First Client," by the author of "A Letter-Day Saint."

Sketches of Italian Life, by Mrs. Laurt Thompson, an account of the Pioneers of Tennessee, by "Edmund Kirke," a narrative of the experiences of a Steerage Passenger to and from Liverpool, by Thomas Whitten, an article on Queen Anne, or Free Classic Architecture, by Clarence C. LIVES OF PAIN

RHEUMATISM and NEURALGIA have long enough run riot in the human system.

They have tormented the human family and defied the medical faculty from time out of memory they have corrupted the blood, demoralized the juices, vexed the nerves, agonized the muscles and racked the brain with wearying pain.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is the enemy of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, repairs their damages, renews the blood, eases the joints, calms the nerves, soothes the muscles, gives rest and peace to the troubled brain, and ensures delightful sleep.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is a new remedy, but it has been abundantly tried. From far and near come testimonials from well-known persons who had long been sufferers. It has turned their diseases out. It has cured them. That is all,—and that is enough.

"ATHLOPHOROS" can do for you what it has done for those sufferers. It can drive out your Rheumatism and Neuralgia, and will do so if you give it a fair trial.

"ATHLOPHOROS" has by this time had such a good trial all over the country that its true work is known, and its true character proved.

"ATHLOPHOROS" means "Prize-Bearer;" "Victor;" "Conqueror." It carries off the prize as VICTOR over the attacks of these terrible maladies, and Conqueror of the frightful agonies their victims have endured. Not a mere temporary relief, but a permanent, enduring, and triumphant cure.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

Terra-Cotta for House-Fronts.

So far as my experience goes, the public generally are unaware of the real advantages and merits of terra-cotta for facing street fronts. When properly burned, it is absolutely impervious to smoke, and is unaffected by acid fumes of any description; it is about half the weight of the lightest building-stones, and its resistance, when burned in solid blocks in compression, is nearly one third greater than that of Portland stone; it is not absorbent—a great desideratum when damp has to be considered—it is easily molded into any shape, for strings, cornices, or window-sills and architraves, and can be easily molded for figure or other enrichment. It can be got in good warm yellow or red color, and, when glazed, can be produced in almost any tones of soft browns, greens, reds, or yellows; and its strength, durability, and impervious-ness to all the destructive influences of town atmospheres, to my mind, recommend it as the building material most adapted for facing street frontages.—Popular Science Monthly for January.

Settled Consumption Cured.

Several years ago a severe cold settled on my lungs. The most popular physician that ever practiced here attended me for a long time but to no avail. After a consultation he said I had settled consumption and gave me up. I was advised to try Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer, and to my own and friends' astonishment, it cured me, and I am now a well, hearty man.—Thomas D. Paine, Jeweler, Woonsocket, R. I.

Butler hopes that Congress will go slow in dynamite legislation, as we "have no more duty imposed upon us by the law of nations in this regard than in our duty to prevent the manufacture of poison, offensive or defensive weapons, or any other article that may be used for illicit and nefarious purposes in other nations. All legislation made in answer to panics and excitements is dangerous, and as a rule, noxious."

Wasted Sympathy.

The real, solemn fact is that nobody, man or woman, statesman or tramp, can strike an icy spot in public and go caverting around to bring up with a crash on the flat tones without feeling more or less poisoned against the whole world. At such a time any words of consolation you may offer are like cranberry sauce offered to a man with the lock-jaw.

Yesterday as a woman of fifty years and 180 pounds was passing the City Hall she struck the spot which had been looking for her ever since the first freeze-up. An exclamation of astonishment was followed by a yell of alarm, and while she was wondering what made the sidewalk bob around so she sat down in four Paris styles. Close behind her was a philanthropist, and as he rushed to her assistance he said:

"Never mind, madame. The day is coming when everybody will be provided with air-cushions, and a fall will make our porous plasters stick the tighter. Allow me to send a messenger for a derrick to hoist you on your pins again."

She refused his offer and after a struggle reached her feet. Then she seized the fence with one hand, and waving the other in the air she screamed out:

"Air-cushions! Derricks! Pins! Porous plasters! you old bow-legged, bald-headed bean-pole, if my husband doesn't hunt you down and make you eat your ears I won't live with him another day. Go home with you." And the broken-hearted man went on.—Detroit Free Press.

He (solemnly)—You had a very narrow escape last night, Miss Julia. She—Mercy, what do you mean? He—Well, you see, I had a dream about you. The pain and misery suffered by those who are afflicted with dyspepsia are indescribable. The distress of the body is equalled or surpassed by the confusion and tortures of the mind, thus making its victims suffer double affliction. A THRILLING STORY.

As Told by a Merchant in Troy, N. Y.—A Surgical Operation Avoided—How a Father, Wife and Daughter Escaped an Awful Doom.

Of the hundreds of accounts of remarkable cures wrought by DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, none have appeared so purely astonishing as the following. The persons in question are among the most highly respected in the city of Troy, and the story as told by the father will prove interesting to all our readers.—Ed.

TROY, N. Y.

Dr. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: My daughter was afflicted with a severe growth of Fungus. To remove it we had recourse to almost every remedy and consulted the most prominent surgeons and physicians. Dr. ——, of Troy, said that a surgical operation would be necessary, but fearing its ill results I hesitated. Some of the physicians claimed that it was caused by one thing and some by another. The Fungus was prominent and disfigured her looks. Having heard of Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY working so thoroughly on the blood I determined to try it, to see if this medicine could do what doctors had failed to do and surgeons had hardly dared to undertake. I can say in truth that the result of the trial was the complete cure of my daughter of this dreadful malady. Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY alone effected it. We used nothing else, for other things had completely failed. My daughter today enjoys vigorous health and to Favorite Remedy alone is the credit due. My wife also was very poor in health, due to some liver difficulty with which he had suffered a long time until she became very much reduced in flesh. A trial of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite soon proved to be the complete restoration of her health which she had not enjoyed for years. She had gained in flesh and strength, and thus secured perfect health, and this is DUE EN TIRELY TO DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY. As for myself, being engaged in the grocery and commission business, which makes it necessary for me to test the quality of different articles, like butter, etc., my sense of taste and my stomach were seriously injured. Everything seemed to nauseate me, and fearful of dyspepsia in its most severe form, I tried DR KENNED 'S FAVORITE REMEDY. The first bottle afford d immediate relief, and from that day to this I can say that Favorite Remedy has restored me to perfect health. These are facts which I claim prove that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the best medicine in the world for those afflicted with the above difficulties. If any one in the city of Troy doubts the truth of these statements let him come to me and I will prove them. I have recommended Favorite Remedy to hundreds and with the same good results.

The grand jury at Newport, has found indictments against Joseph Robinson, Charles Laundry and Thomas Gaffney, for burglary in Claremont in December.

"100 Doses One Dollar" is true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy.

The salvation army held a big mass meeting in the city hall at Dover last Thursday night. Addresses were made by prominent salvationist leaders from Salem, Boston and Portland, and by Major Frank Smith and wife. The army made a street parade before the meeting.

The Face.

It is a mistake to believe that a good complexion depends upon the use of cosmetics. It really depends upon perfect digestion and the purity of the blood. If persons with poor complexions will only take Wetherell's Sarsaparilla, which is the best medicine ever devised for imperfect digestion and a purifier of the blood, they are sure to digest well, and in consequence have clear, healthy complexions. Sold by all druggists. One dollar per bottle.

"A God-send is Ely's Cream Balm," writes Mrs. A. Jackson, of Portsmouth, N. H., on May 25, 1882. I had catarrh for three years! had tried nearly all remedies but to no purpose. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed quite freely and I thought the sores in it would never heal. Your Balm has cured me. This preparation is not a liquid or snuff, and is easily applied. Price 50 cents. See adv't.

The British barque Wellington, from New York for Havre, has put into Plymouth, Eng., with her captain, Armstrong, dead, and three seamen mortally wounded. The story of the crew is that the captain, while crazy drunk, commenced shooting them down, and in defending themselves he was beaten so that he died.

Don't Give Up Yet.

It doesn't follow that a patient will die because the doctors have "given him up," or that he will recover because they promise to "pull him through." It is never too late to try the great virtues of Parker's Tonic. Mr Michael Guilfoyle, of Binghampton, N. Y., was cured of rheumatism by it after ten years of unspeakable suffering. Mr R. W. Mosher, druggist, of same city, certifies that he has sold over a thousand bottles of Parker's Tonic through its reputation for this and other cures.

The schooner Australia, Capt. Lewis, of and from Boothbay for Boston with a cargo of mackerel and dried fish, was wrecked on Bowery beach, near Cape Elizabeth, Me., in the snow storm of Jan. 28th. Her sails were blown away, and she was so iced up that her entire bow was constantly under water, when she went ashore, and the crew were utterly worn out with seven hours' constant labor. The captain was frozen to death after the wreck, and the two seamen were terribly frostbitten.

A LOST MINE.

Untold Treasures Waiting In the Bowels of the Earth for the Lucky Finder.

Aaron Leopold, besides his marine interests, is a large investor in Lake Superior mining properties. It was his good luck to be one of the men who held Calumet and Hecla stock before the Agassiz process for reducing copper ore was discovered, which discovery increased the value of copper mine stocks five hundred fold, and placed Calumet and Hecla among the greatest wealth-producing shafts ever dug into mother earth.

In conversation with a reporter a day or two ago he told the following fascinating story: "Copper is undoubtedly a good thing. No man who was lucky enough to get into some of the Michigan mines on the ground floor can gainsay that, but silver is a better thing, for all that, and as sure as my name is Leopold, some time or other there will be one of the biggest strikes of silver made on the north shore of Lake Superior ever heard of in America. It will outdo the Rocky Mountain finds just as our copper gets away with the Arizona mines. Of course, you know that where copper occurs, silver is likely to be also found, and that this is more than theory, the frequent discovery of silver in northern Michigan, and especially on the north shore, proves. You know there is an island on Lake Superior called Silver island, on which silver is very profitably mined. Did you ever hear the story of the lost silver mine?"

"Never," said the reporter.

"Well, it is good enough to print," said Mr. Leopold. "It is a current tradition at Ontonagon, Hancock, Houghton, and especially at Duluth, and while you can hear it a good many ways, I have looked into it very often, and I believe you will find this to be about the truth of it. About sixty years ago all the country north of Duluth was a wilderness. There were a few Hudson bay company's ports scattered about the lakes and rivers up there, and the rest of that part of British America was the home of roving Indians and nobody else. The story was current then that somewhere down along the northern shore of the lake there was a mine where virgin silver was to be found in lumps. One day a party of Indians—this is the cold truth, which you can find on record in books printed years ago— one day a party of Indians came into port on Lake Winnipeg, but instead of furs they had solid ingots of silver. Every one of the party was provided with bricks worth hundreds of dollars. You may believe this caused a sensation. It proved that the rumors current so long had some foundation. The Indians were strangers at the post. They belonged to a different tribe from any ever seen there before, and they pointed out vaguely in a southeasterly direction, when asked whence they had come. Of course, they had the usual carouse, and at last they loaded up with guns, calicoes, beads and whisky and started for home. Two Frenchmen who were at the post tracked them across the wilderness, shadowing them like a pair of detectives, and after about one hundred miles further than from St. Louis to Chicago—through incredible hardships and sufferings—they at last tracked them to earth. According to the story the home of these Indians was in the range of hills between Crooked lake and Superior, south of Pigeon river, in what is now the state of Minnesota. They did more than this, they found the Ind an mine, and its wealth was beyond all the stories told of it. In a grotto of rotten rock the virgin silver was to be seen winding the sides in every direction. The two men marked down the position of the mine as closely as could be, taking a number of landmarks, so that there could be no mistake. The mine stood at the head of a long serpentine ravine, which trended southeast. Then they loaded up with all the silver they could carry and started back. All this time the Indians knew nothing of their visits. Well, they toiled along for days and days, borne down by the weight of metal, and at last one of them sickened and died on the road. Winter was coming on and the remaining survivor struggled onward after burying his companion and now and then stopping and cacheing some more silver, until at last he got back to the post. The work and the exposure were too much for him, however, and in a couple of days he too sickened and died. He gave the most explicit instructions to his companions at the post as to how the mine was to be reached, and you may believe that the search made the next summer was an exhaustive one. The body of the other explorer was found, so was also the silver hidden on the road, but the mine itself was not come upon. There is an old Canadian that everybody calls Leon, who is occasionally to be seen in Duluth, where he comes to buy stores, who is the son of one of the men that were at the post when the survivor of the two first finders got back. This Leon has done nothing all his life but hunt or that mine. He has got old papers describing its location as closely as possible, but he has never found it, although there is not a ravine in those hills that he has not examined. He will keep up his hunt until he dies, of course, and he may find it, stranger things have happened."

"Do you believe the story?"

"Certainly I do. It may be exaggerated, but that the Indians knew of some great silver deposit, nobody who has frequented the north shore has any doubt. I suppose 1,000 men have at one time or another been at work looking for that mine. You can't help believing a story that brings along as evidence the actual ingots of silver, and of these ingots the records are too plain and sure to leave any doubt."

"It seems as though these Indians would hardly be satisfied with taking one lot of silver out of the mine?"

"They are not satisfied. There are hundreds of stories afloat of trades made by the Indians wherein solid ingots of silver were bartered off for a couple of yards of calico. Some of them, I suppose, are false and others true; but as to their appearing at Winnipeg with the silver, nobody who will take record evidence for any fact can doubt. It is as sure as anything can be."

Manual Dexterity and the Letters.

It is well known that in its development each new born being passes through very much the same stages that his ancestors have been through before him. Even after birth the growth of the child's intelligence simulates the progress of the human race from the savage condition of that of civilization. It has been shown by Preyer, and others who have studied infant development, that a faculty which has been acquired by the race at a late stage, is late in making its appearance in the child. Now, reading and writing are arts of comparatively recent achievement. Savage man could reap and sow, and weave, and build houses, long before he could communicate his thoughts to a person at a distance by means of written speech. There is, then, reason to believe that a child's general intelligence would be best trained by making him skillful in many kinds of manual labor before beginning to torture him with letters; and the moral to be derived is, that primary instruction should be instruction in manual dexterity, and that reading and writing could be learned with pleasure and with ease by a child who had been fitted for taking them up by the right kind of preparation.

The Democratic Position.

The democratic party, as at present administered by Mr. Randall, has determined that nothing shall be appropriated toward carrying out the contracts for building steel cruisers while Mr. Chandler is in office. The proposition is to wait until Cleveland comes in, and if the contractors are then able to bring to bear upon the democratic mind any convincing proofs why these appropriations should be made, they will be voted.

The contractors may as well, first as last, invite the hungry and thirsty statesmen to lunch. If there is to be any "coming down," it may just as well be done now, gracefully, as later on. The politicians of the household of faith want to know what the contractors intend to do, who is to be retained, and now much the swag is to figure. With these preliminaries satisfactorily arranged, it will be smooth sailing for the steel ships, and the democratic leaders will be found rallying around "the old flag and an appropriation."

A Notorious "Floating Hell" Gone.

The schooner Arcana, Capt. Holmes, was totally wrecked on Quisco reef in the Bay of Fundy on Jan. 28th, in the great storm. The captain and mate, a Portland, Me., pilot, and six seamen, were drowned, or froze to death after getting on the rocks; one man only survived when found, and he cannot recover. The Arcana was formerly the notorious schooner Jefferson Borden, reported for many years to be the worst "floating hell" in the American merchant marine; her former commander and principal owner, Capt. Wm. M. Patterson of Boston, hardly ever entered a port that he was not complained of for brutal abuse of his crew, and in 1875 the seamen mutinied on a voyage across the Atlantic, killed two of the mates and attempted to kill Patterson, who however fought with the desperate courage of a bull-dog, and having firearms finally conquered the mutineers. So widely-known did the Jefferson Borden and her notorious captain get to be among seamen, that at length it was almost impossible to get a crew to go in her, and about a year ago her name was changed to Arcana, to enable Patterson to ship men. Unfortunately he was not on board when she was wrecked, having left her a few months ago.

Won't Be Fooled With.

Secretary Chandler has written a letter to Rear Admiral English, commanding the European station, in regard to the charge made by an American resident at Nice, France, that officers of the flagship Lancaster had publicly abused the board of the navy department and all connected with it for having ordered that vessel to the Congo country, alleging that it was done to spite the ladies. The secretary incloses a copy of the letter received at the department on the subject, and says that he has written to the writer (whose name is purposely withheld) requesting that he give him (Admiral English) the names of the officers who made the statements referred to. The secretary's letter to Admiral English concludes as follows:

You will immediately institute inquiries concerning the truth of the averments of the letter, by interrogating directly all the officers of the Lancaster, and if you find that any officer has made the specific statement narrated in the letter, or has criticised in a hotel or anywhere else any orders of the department, you will report the facts to the department and until receiving further instructions will suspend such officer from duty and not allow him to leave his vessel except for urgent reasons, to be made of record and reported to the department.

Naval Intelligence.

Secretary Chandler on Jan. 29th telegraphed orders for the United States steamship Wachusett to proceed to Guayaquil, Equador, for the protection of Julio R. Santos, a naturalized American citizen, imprisoned there for alleged complicity in a rebellion, and whose speedy execution is apprehended.

Surgeon M. J. Simon has been detached from the Shenandoah, and placed on sick leave.

Passed Asst. Surgeon L. B. Baldwin is ordered from the receiving-ship Wabash to the naval hospital at Philadelphia.

Passed Asst. Surgeon P. A. Lovering is ordered from temporary duty at Washington to the Wabash.

Secretary Chandler has received a dispatch from Admiral Jouett on the Tennessee, dated Key West, Jan. 26th, saying: "After thorough investigation I learn from the best authorities and official sources here, including the United States attorney, marshal and collector and Spanish consul that no Cuban filibustering expedition is being organized here. Key West is perfectly quiet, and no prominent Cuban leader is here. May I continue the cruise? In my opinion further stay is unnecessary." In reply the secretary instructed admiral Jouett to proceed to Havana in the Tennessee, and there await orders.

The Alleged Dynamiter Cunningham.

The St. Louis' Post-Dispatch prints an article based on a statement made by a person whom it calls "a well known local dynamiter," to the effect that Cunningham, now under arrest in London in connection with the recent explosion at the tower, is the same young fellow who two years ago lived in St. Louis, and who was written up at the time as the maker of explosives and infernal machines, and as being full of schemes to blow up all the public buildings in London. He was known there as Michael J. Byrne. He was a harness-maker, and devoted his spare time and money to experimenting in explosives and to making infernal machines. He also lived in Chicago, where he was know as James Gilbert, and in Philadelphia, where he went by the name of James Cunningham. He claimed to have been obliged to leave Ireland because he was implicated in the murder of a landlord, but this story was not much relied upon by his friends. He was in Denver last August, but since then has not been heard from.

The senate on Jan. 29th refused to ratify the Nicaragua canal treaty, by a vote of 33 yeas to 22 nays,—less than the necessary two-thirds. Only six democratic senators voted for it.

The foreign affairs committee of the house agreed to report adversely the dynamite resolutions of Mr. Findlay and Mr. Hewitt. The house by a vote of 147 to 104, refused to consider the bill for carrying into effect the Mexican treaty.

Three ice-boats, carrying crews of five men each, and having between them seven passengers and the mails, left Cape Traverse, Prince Edward island, at one o'clock in the morning Jan. 28th, and have not since been heard from. They were bound for Cape Tormentine, Nova Scotia, and are supposed to have been all lost in the terrible storm of the 28th. Dr. McIntyre, member of the provincial parliament, was one of the passengers.

And now it is said that the object of Randall's visit to Mr. Cleveland, is to have the president-elect tell him how dissatisfied he is with the inaction of the present Congress in regard to naval bills and other delayed and avoided matters before it. Cleveland dislikes the prospect of an extra session of Congress to repair the defects of the present body, and Randall will perhaps endeavor to explain why he runs on the narrow gauge system—and this will consume his time at Albany so far, perhaps, as to prevent much conference as to cabinet pointers.

If it were possible to get the testimony of the multitude who have used HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA for debility, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which every one feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that Hood's Sarsaparilla contains more real medicinal value than any article before the people.

What a Man Did with Kidney Complaint

DRACUT, MASS. MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

Dear Sirs—I have suffered from kidney complaint and biliousness for fifteen years. Have tried everything and never got any good. Last January, before I commenced taking HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, everything I ate bloated me all up, pain in my chest and arms, headache and dizzy. I could not get up without feeling weary and all fagged out. Many mornings I was obliged to lie down on the lounge. To do any work seemed almost impossible. Have taken two bottles. The backache, dizziness, pain in my chest and arms, and that feeling of intense weariness are all gone. I can eat anything and it does not press me at all. Feel just like work; in fact, like a new man. I am heartily recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and hope all who desire to know anything about it will come to me and ask what I think of it. Very truly yours,

JONATHAN J. COBURN.

OUR FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The following is the communication from the New England Insurance Exchange to the city government of Portsmouth, which was laid before the board of alderman at the late meeting by Mayor Page:

Office of New England Ins. Exchange,
Room 59, Mason Building,
Boston, Jan. 15, 1885.

To the Honorable Mayor and City Council of Portsmouth, N. H.—GENTLEMEN:—I enclose herewith a copy of our committee's report on the investigation into the efficiency of the Portsmouth fire department, and would specially call your attention to the recommendations contained therein. The committee to whom was referred the matter of investigating the condition of the Portsmouth, N. H., fire department, and especially its action at the recent fire in the Rockingham House have attended to their duties and beg leave to submit the following report:—

Adams, Leighton, Kendall, Galacar, Underwood, Bartlett, Parsons and Emerson, members of the committee, met at Portsmouth on the 11th day of December, 1884, at the office of John Sise, Esq., and after hearing the statement of Chief Engineer Marden, John Sise, J. P. Morse and others who appeared before them, it was the opinion of the committee that the fire in the Rockingham House was responded to as promptly and handled as well by the department as other fires had been. Your committee found the department to consist of 123 firemen, who are paid $40 each per annum, 4 steamers in good order, 5000 feet of good hose with about the same quantity of poor quality, 2 chemical engines, 1 hook and ladder truck (nearly new), 13 reservoirs, 7 horses which when not in use, are kept in the city stables within about 300 feet of engine houses. No men sleep in the engine houses, and only the most crude system of giving alarms is practiced. The supply of hose is inadequate, and the number of reservoirs should be largely increased, and the capacity of some of the present number extended, notably that in Market Square, which is intended to protect a large amount of property. Attention has repeatedly been called to this in the reports of engineers, but apparently without effect. The number of men in the department is ample, but to the minds of your committee, much better service would result if there were at all times (especially at night) sufficient men and horses at the engine houses to move the apparatus promptly. Your committee would therefore recommend that the attention of the town authorities be called to the following suggestions:—1st. A better system of giving alarms; 2nd. A larger supply of good hose; 3rd. An increased number of reservoirs; 4th. A better location of hook and ladder truck; 5th. Men to sleep in the engine houses, and 6th, two or more horses to be kept at night in engine houses, and in the day time sufficiently near to be promptly used. Respectfully Submitted,

(Signed) MOSES R. EMERSON,
For the Committee.

January 10, 1885.

The New England Insurance Exchange at its meeting of the 10th inst., accepted report, and voted that the Portsmouth authorities be notified of the recommendations of the committee, through the local board of Portsmouth, and that unless the "Exchange" is notified within 60 days that their recommendations will be carried out, that the matter come up for further action.

Trusting that we shall receive a reply to the effect that these improvements will be made as soon as weather permits, I am, Yours Truly,

ARTHUR A. CLARKE, Sec.

It is not impossible some persons will regard this communication as savoring somewhat of assurance as well as insurance, and agree with the following which we copy from the Times:

"We have no doubt that the suggestions offered in this letter are very wholesome ones, and possibly if any one of them are adopted by the city authorities the result would be a more efficient fire department. But if citizens, who are now paying largely increased insurance premiums, levied by this same Exchange in conference with local insurance agents, for the purpose of obtaining for themselves larger profits, are to be dictated to in this manner, many may believe that it will be best to do away with these insurance companies altogether. We have always supposed that insurance was taken on certain risks, but if circumstances are such that there is but little or no risk, we can see no need of insurance agents. While it may be very proper for insurance companies to make suggestions to cities or towns as to the disposition of fire department funds, it may be the opinion of many that they are in a greater or less degree exceeding their authority when they set themselves up as umpires to point out and to say how the city shall equip its fire department and spend its money. We believe the city authorities are abundantly able to attend to their own business. It has been said that Portsmouth has as good a fire department as any city of its size in New England. We believe it has, but if we are to take stock in the above letter, we should have to believe that it is no better than some of the cheapest of departments."

NOT THE SAME MAN.

We cut the following from the Monitor:

The Mirror says: "Hon. Frank Jones, of Portsmouth, the owner of the Hotel Wentworth and the new Rockingham house, now being erected, commenced life driving around the country a peddler's cart, which was gorgeously painted, and bore on one side the portrait of Mr. Jones, with the words underneath, 'Good weight, marm.'"

This is a very good little story, barring the fact that it is not all quite true. It was Mr. Nathan Jones who was the patron of art, and had the cart which bore his likeness on the dashboard while Nathan was making a trade for some rags with a sharp housewife in one of the neighboring towns.

Mr. George A. Perkins had a large number of teams—twenty or more—on Friday engaged in hauling ice from the pond on Banfield road to his ice-house on South street.

Twenty-six naval apprentices from the training-ship New Hampshire, at Newport, R. I., arrived here on Thursday evening, to join the U. S. S. Marion.

In Boston, Jan. 28th, in the United States Circuit court, before Judge Webb, a hearing was had on a motion for a new trial in the case of Louis C. Parsons vs. William Sheafe, executor of William Sheafe's estate, on the ground of newly-discovered evidence. Judge Webb reserved his decision.

Mr. Malcolm Payne on Thursday last brought into this city three nice coons, and sold them to Mr. Pearson, the Market street meat dealer. They were shot at Rayne's neck, York.

The Eastern railroad station at South Berwick was burglarized on Thursday night. It was entered by breaking a window in the waiting room. The thieves then pried open the door to the ticket office, but the money drawer and safe were untouched; several hundred dollars' worth of tickets were taken by them, and in their haste when escaping they scattered the tickets along the street through the village.

Miniature Matrimony.

The New Haven (Conn.) Palladium of Jan 28th says: "Mrs. Gen. Tom Thumb is to be married within three months to, it is said, one of the Magri brothers, who is known as Count Rosebud, and who recently was at Bunnell's museum in this city. Said Mrs. Stratton yesterday: 'It will be strictly private, which will be a great novelty to me, for I have lived with the public all my life. After we are married we shall take a European tour lasting six months. I had intended going to Europe alone this season, with only my maid to accompany me, but I have changed my mind and taken other company. I suppose all the people will wonder at my getting married again, but I have as much right as any one. Don't you think so?'"

A despatch of Jan. 28th from San Francisco, Cal., says: "The anxiety over the non-arrival of the steamer San Pueblo at Yokohama is increasing. She is now out forty days The vessel belongs to the Oriental & Occidental Steamship company, and is insured for $450,000. She has on board five cabin passengers, nine hundred Chinese, returning home for their new year, and $520,000 in the treasure chest. The crew, including officers, numbers fifty-three.

A Lawrence, Kansas, despatch says the opinion prevails that the move on the part of the Oklahoma boomers in quietly consenting to allow Gen. Hatch to escort them over the Kansas line is a blind to prevent any definite action on the part of the authorities until after March 4th, when it is confidently expected that the troops will be removed and the colonists allowed to settle on the Indian reserved lands without molestation from the democratic administration.

John F. Quarles, a colored lawyer of New York city, and the first admitted to the bar as far south as Washington, died Jan. 28th. He was born in slavery in Atlanta, Ga., about thirty-eight years ago, his father being a local preacher. After the war the late Senator Sumner helped him to enter Westminster college, Pennsylvania, where he was graduated at the head of his class. Under Mr. Sumner's direction he studied law, and was admitted to the bar in Washington. In 1870 President Grant appointed him as consul at Port Mahon, whence he was transferred by President Hayes at his own request to Malaga. He returned home in 1880. While at Port Mahon he married the daughter of the French consul at that place, the lady being the granddaughter of one of Napoleon's field marshals.

W. H. Lovering, treasurer of Charles H. Stevens Post, No. 53, G. A. R., of Leominster, Mass., is missing, and the post is stripped of all its funds. In 1870 the post held a levee and netted $1400. By various means they have added to the funds. Their work for charity has been large. Lovering absconded about ten days ago, and an investigation took place. Out of $600, which should have been on deposit to the post's credit, only $49 remained.

Nehemiah Berry, one of the oldest citizens of Lynn, Mass., died suddenly Jan. 28th, aged eighty-five. Deceased was once largely engaged in the spice business, was a member of the old Lynn Whaling company, and connected with Lynn's first city government. He leaves several children, one of whom is Gen. A. Hun Berry. Deceased held various offices under Lynn's old town government, and was a man highly esteemed and respected.

Maj. Willard D. Wheeler, formerly of Grafton, Mass., died recently in Colorado, where he was engaged in mining operations. He was an assistant paymaster during the war, and after its close was in business in Worcester and Boston. He accompanied his brother, Lieut. George M. Wheeler, on his famous exploring expeditions in the southwest.

John Vad Arsdale died at New York Jan. 28th. It was his grand uncle who nailed the American flag to the Battery park staff when New York was evacuated by the British. John, who was a veteran of 1812, was annually accorded the privilege of raising the flag on the staff on the anniversary of that event.

LIVES OF PAIN

RHEUMATISM and NEURALGIA have long enough run riot in the human system.

They have tormented the human family and defied the medical faculty from time out of memory; they have corrupted the blood, demoralized the joints, vexed the nerves, agonized the muscles and racked the brain with wearying pain.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is the enemy of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, of their diseases, renews the blood, eases the joints, calms the nerves, soothes the muscles, gives rest and peace to the troubled brain, and enforces delightful sleep.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is a new remedy, but it has been abundantly tried. From far and near come testimonials from well-known persons who had long been victims of these fearful diseases that it has cured them. That is all,—and that is enough.

"ATHLOPHOROS" can do for you what it has done for those sufferers. It can drive out your Rheumatism and Neuralgia, and will do so if you give it a fair trial.

"ATHLOPHOROS" has by this time had such a good trial all over the country that its true work is known, and its character proved.

"ATHLOPHOROS" means "Prize-Bearer;" "Victor;" "Conqueror." It carries off the prize as VICTOR over the attacks of these terrible maladies, and CONQUEROR of the frightful agonies their victims have endured. Not a mere temporary relief, but a permanent, enduring, and triumphant cure.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

Another Life Saved.

About two years ago, a prominent citizen of Chicago was told by his physician that he must die. They said his system was so debilitated that there was nothing left to build on. He made up his mind to try a "new departure." He got some of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" and took it according to directions. He began to improve at once. He kept up the treatment for some months, and is to-day a well man. He says the "Discovery" saved his life.

Settled Consumption Cured.

Several years ago a severe cold settled on my lungs. The most popular physician that ever practiced here attended me for a long time but to no avail. After a consultation he said I had settled consumption and gave me up. I was advised to try Dr Seth Arnold's Cough Killer, and to my own and friends' astonishment, it cured me, and I am now a well, hearty man.—Thomas D. Paine, Jeweler, Woonsocket, R. I.

Cane Sugar as an Antiseptic.

Professor Lucke, a Strasbourg surgeon, strongly recommends powdered cane-sugar as an antiseptic dressing for wounds. Hitherto it has been used in equal parts with napthaline, or with one part of iodoform to five of sugar. In cases of wounds united by suture the mixture is put up in gauze and applied to the part; where there is loss of skin the sugar is sprinkled directly over the part. The sugar dressing is fixed in place by some layers of gauze deprived of fat, over which a layer of gutta-percha was applied, and the whole secured by a bandage. The sugar dressing may remain from eight to fou teen days without the sugar dissolving. The secretion from the wound is equally distributed through the sugar, and it is only when the layer of sugar is too thick—more than about one-fifth of an inch—that lumps are formed. The wounds have a healthy appearance under the sugar, the dressings are not offensive, and bacteria can not be found in them.

Bishop William Taylor, who is about to go to Africa to engage in missionary work, has determined to teach the natives English by the phonetic system of Mr. Elias Longley of Cincinnati, one of the oldest and best-known phonographers and spelling reformers of the United States. He believes that this step will largely aid the spread of religion. He quaintly says: "If taught to read the old orthography, as soon as they are enabled to understand the Holy Scriptures the Devil would thrust under their eyes all manner of infidel and corrupting reading matter, but the purity of the fonetic alaphabet has not yet been defiled in that way."

A learned professor claims that he has discovered lately that "Nystagmus, or oscillation of the eyeballs, is an epileptiform affection of the cerebellular oculomotor al centers."

Captain Mitchell, of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havanna trade, came home in May, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains, but receiving no benefit, at his wife's request began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. He immediately began to improve; in two months his rheumatism was all gone, and he sailed in command of his vessel a well man. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you. Sold by all druggists.

The "Bay State Monthly" for January has a sketch of Gov. Robinson of Massachusetts, with a fine steel plate portrait. Lt.-Gov. Ames' steel plate portrait is followed by a sketch by James W. Clark, editor of the of the Traveller. An interesting paper on Sunday travel and the law thereto applied, written by C. F. Sawyer, is among the contents. Published by McClintock & Co., 81 Milk Street, Boston, at $3.00 per year.

You Can Have It.

"My dear, what would I give to have your hair?" is often said by middle-aged ladies to young ones. Madam, you may have just such hair. Parker's Hair Balsam will give it to you. It will stop your hair from falling off, restore the original color and make it long, thick, soft and glossy. You need not stand helplessly enjoying the girls. The balsam is not oily, not a dye, but is an elegant dressing, and is especially recommended for its cleanliness and purity.

A THRILLING STORY.

As Told by a Merchant in Troy, N. Y.—A Surgical Operation Avoided—How a Father, Wife and Daughter Escaped an Awful Doom.

Of the hundreds of accounts of remarkable cures wrought by DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, none have appeared so purely astonishing as the following: The persons mentioned are among the most highly respected in the city of Troy, and the story as told by the father will prove interesting to all our readers.—ED.

TROY, N. Y.

Dr. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: My daughter was afflicted with a severe growth of Fungus. To remove it we had recourse to almost every remedy and consulted the most prominent surgeons and physicians. Finally, one of them said that a surgical operation would be necessary but fearing its results I hesitated. Some of the physicians claimed that it was caused by one thing and some by another. The Fungus was prominent and disfigured her looks. Having heard of Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY working so thoroughly on the blood I determined to try it, to see if this medicine could do what doctors had failed to do and surgeons had hardly dared to undertake. I can say in truth that the result of the trial was the complete cure of my daughter of this dreadful malady. Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY slowly effected it. We used nothing else, for other things had completely failed. My daughter today enjoys vigorous health and to Favorite Remedy alone is the credit due. My wife's health was very poor in health, due to some liver difficulty which she had suffered a long time until she became very much reduced in flesh. A trial of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite remedy has resulted in the complete restoration of her health, which she had not enjoyed for years. She had gained in flesh and weight, and thus secured perfect health, and this is DUE ENTIRELY TO DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY. As for myself, being engaged in the grocery and commission business, which makes it necessary for me to test the quality of different articles, like butter, cheese, my sense of taste and my stomach were seriously injured. Everything seemed to nauseate me, and fearful of dyspepsia in its most severe form, I tried DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY. The first bottle afforded immediate relief, and from that day to this I can say that Favorite Remedy has restored me to perfect health. These are facts which I claim prove that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the best medicine in the world for those afflicted with the above difficulties. If any one in the city of Troy doubts the truth of these statements let him come to me and I will prove them. I have recommended Favorite Remedy to hundreds and with the same good results.

Commence the Year Aright.

Don't make too many resolutions, but hold on like grim death to those you do make. If your physical system is out of order you should attend to that at once; for it is no use trying to keep a stiff upper lip when your kidneys or liver are taking the courage out of you. If you have really made up your mind to turn over a new leaf, commence the year by taking a thorough course of the celebrated Kidney-Wort. Thousands of people testify to its good effects for kidney diseases, biliousness, piles, constipation, etc.

A Man Buried Alive.

In the village of Chim-Long, where the Basel Chinese mission has a station, the following sad event lately took place: A man of 60 years of age was afflicted with leprosy, and lived in the hut within the village. The villagers often urged the old man to remove his hut outside the village, and live on the hills, to prevent contamination, promising to always provide him with food. However, the leper did not wish to leave the village, nor dared his relatives press him to do so.

Lately it happened that the leper was lying asleep in his hut. His son came and wanted to bring him something to eat, but, calling into the hut, he received no answer from his father. There was soon a gathering of the people, but no one ventured to go inside of the hut. Some stones were thrown at the door to see if the man took any notice of it, and, as there was still no sign of life in the hut, the general conclusion was that the occupant was dead.

The resolution was forthwith taken to have the leper buried. His son went to a neighboring village to engage coolies for digging a grave and carrying the corpse out. During the absence of the son the elder of the village came to the scene, and learning how matters stood, boldly opened the door and entered the hut, when lo and behold it turned out that the leper had only enjoyed a sound sleep.

However, the coolies had been engaged for a certain sum of money, and came along with the son, ready to do the work which was required of them, for at all events to receive the promised pay. After some deliberation the villagers unanimously put it before the leper that as things had come to this pass he had better make up his mind and allow the funeral of himself to go on. To this the unfortunate man consented, and took leave of his daughter-in-law and two grand-children, enjoining upon her to feed the two pigs well and also take care of the poultry.

A coffin was now provided and the shroud redeemed from the pawn-shop. A fowl was killed and rice and pork provided as a farewell dinner for the leper.

Next morning very early the procession started from the hut. First came the coffin, carried by the coolies, and behind it walked the leper to his grave, his son and the elder bringing up the rear, carrying the shroud and the pot which contained the opium. Having moved up a hill to a distance of about two miles from the village, the party halted and a grave was dug. The leper took a last meal and then swallowed the opium. After this he put on the shroud and a pair of shoes, and laid himself down in the coffin, when the coolies put the lid on it, without waiting till the leper should have lost consciousness, and lowered the coffin into the grave.—Overland Mail.

Suddenly Acquired.

During an excursion from this city, while at Cleveland, the Kennard House was crowded, when a druggist appeared late at night at the hotel office and demanded a bed. The clerk replied that there were only two vacant beds in the house, one wherein was quartered a Pittsburg morning newspaper man, and the other a Pittsburg evening newspaper man, who were with the excursion.

"To tell the truth, they are both pretty drunk, so you may take your choice as to which room you will sleep in."

The druggist said that he would take his chances with the evening newspaper man, as they exceeded the morning men in more ways than one, and he would doubtless be so drunk that he would lie quiet all night. He went to bed and was soon sound asleep. The journalist, however, awakened about 12 o'clock, and, thinking it a long time between drinks, dressed himself unconsciously in the druggist's clothes and sallied out. Ever and anon he muttered, as he treated all present:

"Funniest thing I ever heard of. When I went to bed last night I only had 25 cents to my name, and now I've got over a hundred dollars (showing a corpulent roll of bills), and I'm bound to spend every cent of it before morning." He did.—Pittsburg Telegraph.

Mystery of a Town Pump.

The students and the faculty of Yale and the "town born" of the city are puzzled over the conduct of the old town pump on the historic green, writes a New Haven correspondent of the New York Sun, which for some time has been emitting hot water out of its Temple street spout, and pure cold water as usual out of its Church street nozzle, and so far there has been no satisfactory explanation of the phenomenon.

The New Haven town pump is famous principally for the quality of the water and for the number of times it has been stolen by skylarking students. It stands fifty yards from the college campus, on the lower corner of the green, and is a tall and ponderous wooden structure of the seventeenth century, with two handles, two spouts, and two iron drinking cups. The city does not replace it with a modern style iron pump because these freeze up in winter and are too cumbersome for the students to lug away. And so New Haven people reach up for the long hickory trump brakes, by the thousands in summer and by the hundreds in winter. Some of the old business men of the place always stop there to drink on their way down town from dinner.

Originally the site of the pump was a cold and limpid spring, fringed with a dense and in the center of the nine squares origin ally laid out. The alder grove was a famous trysting-place, and existed for years. The spring was walled up in two sections, and the pump was set about the time Yale college was located here. The students have been stealing it semi-occasionally ever since.

Prof. Daniel C. Eaton, of Yale, was at a loss to account for the aqueous freak of the old pump. Never before in his recollection had there been any such complaint. He was loath to believe the story of his old friend at first, but stepping up to the shackly Temple street brake he applied his right hand to it with vigor, while with his left he extended the iron tankard under the nozzle. A stream of tepid water shot into the cup, smoking with heat in the cold air. It was nauseatingly warm, and strongly impregnated with minerals. Then the professor went around to the Church street side and yanked at the brake. Here he procured a cup of ice-cold water sparkling in the sunlight.

"I can't account for the phenomenon," said he. "I do not think, however, that it may be attributed to any volcanic or subterranean action."

The professor indicated that hot and cold springs side by side were not to be looked for in this part of the country.

At times the Temple street spout yields water that is so hot as to be scalding. Both streams come from the same source, though the spring is divided by a wall from the bottom. Why the water should be hot is a mystery. But why such a marked difference should exist in the samples drawn from the same well through two pumps set over it is a much greater one. There is a theory that the water may be heated from one of the Chapel street steam heat pipes, but this is half a block away. A leak in the pipe might cause the heat, but this is held to be improbable and the town fathers will be asked to dig up the well to see what is the matter.

Only two women in the world's history have ever been honored by equestrian statues, and curious to relate, Queen Victoria is one of them. Fancy her Britannic Majesty on horseback.

JAMES HUBBARD WEEKS.

Mr. James Hubbard Weeks, who died quite suddenly of pneumonia on Thursday evening of last week at his residence on Charles street, Boston, was a native of Portsmouth, having been born here in 1810. In early life he was a member of the publishing firm of Weeks, Jordan & Co., of Boston, and subsequently engaged in business as an importer of English goods, dealing largely in works of art; but for nearly thirty years he had not been actively engaged in any business. From early manhood he was hopelessly an invalid; but a resolute will, a cheerful habit of mind, a constant earnest interest in the welfare of others, and careful attention to the advice of his physicians, prolonged his life to a goodly old age, under circumstances of physical disability and frequent suffering which would have utterly discouraged the average man and ruined his temper and disposition. He was a pleasant and entertaining companion, and a favorite among his numerous acquaintances. From an appreciative notice in the Boston Journal we take the following:

During this long period he has led an active life, and his keen interest in passing events was most notable. His taste in literature and the arts was marked, and frequent foreign travel enabled him to acquire such a fund of general information that his conversation was always entertaining, both to the old and to the young. In his home circle he discharged with fatherly care the duties which fell to his lot. In the progress of the young, in their education and in their recreation he took the warmest and most kindly interest. His whole life was a remarkable exemplification of the will power of a good man, who, forgetful of himself, and driving away the dark shadows arising from disease, met the duties of life with a manly fortitude which made his home a bright and pleasant one. Mr. Weeks leaves a widow.

Damon Lodge, No. 9, Knights of Pythias, on Friday evening last celebrated the 14th anniversary of the organization of the lodge by a dance in Congress hall, and a supper in the banquet room. Lord & Medcalf's orchestra furnished the music. About 150 persons were present, and a very enjoyable time was had.

The schooner Fleur-de-Lis, of Gloucester, Mass., seventeen tons, and manned by five men, came in on Sunday from Ipswich bay with 7000 lbs. of fish.

The Portsmouth Dramatic Club went to Rye on Friday evening, and gave in the town hall an entertainment which was largely attended by the towns-people, and gave much satisfaction.

The navy yard authorities were on Friday afternoon notified by telegraph from Washington that the naval appropriation bill had become a law, and funds were consequently available for the resumption of work. The ferry steamer Emerald recommenced running on Saturday morning, and the men employed in the steam engineering department went to work in the afternoon.

The schooner Minnie C. Taylor, Doughty master, which put into the lower harbor last week on the trip from Portland to Baltimore, had lost spanker and jib, and was badly iced up: her crew had also suffered much from the intense cold, several of them being so badly frost-bitten that they were sent to the hospital when she arrived at her destination.

The schooner Mabel L. Phillips, Harper master, arrived at this port on Saturday from Newport News, Va., with 1142 tons coal to J. Albert Walker.

The severity of the last cold spell has been demonstrated by the activity of the city teams engaged in the removal of coal ashes from the yards of citizens for the filling up of waste places, according to an idea of Ex-Mayor Sise.

There was a decided moderating of the weather on Saturday, which was a beautiful winter day; a large number of familiar faces put in an appearance from the neighboring towns.

There was a thick snow-storm on Sunday, and a heavy sea was reported to be running outside; the fog-horn was heard in this city all day. The tides were quite high, and some of the wharves were overflowed. Most of the fishing vessels were out, and were expected to come in on the Monday morning tide.

The big schooner Mabel L. Phillips was towed up from the lower harbor by the steamer Clara Batemen on Sunday, and berthed at the Concord railroad wharf. She was thirteen days from Newport News to the lower harbor, and the captain says it was the roughest passage he has experienced for years.

Miss Lizzie Davis, who injured an ankle very badly some weeks ago by slipping on an icy step, resumed her duties as organist at the Unitarian church on Sunday morning last. The Unitarian Sunday school in the afternoon, and the vesper service, were omitted on account of the storm.

Mr. Frank G. Garland, surveyor of highways in district No. 1, is considered to be one of the most efficient officers ever appointed there. During the late snows he has kept open a road of sixteen feet in width, over which the Newington visitors to Portsmouth delight to travel for the performance of their business here.

Mr. A. C. Fernald left here on Saturday for Gloucester, Mass., where he has 600 bbls. of oil and a large quantity of dry fish stored, collected by him for sale. During his absence his place will be supplied by his brother and bookkeeper.

Capt. Joseph Grace, now some months over eighty-six years of age, and who was a pioneer in the California trade, having commanded the first vessel which sailed from this port direct for San Francisco, was promenading the streets on Saturday without the aid of a cane, and a day or two previous was noticed shovelling the snow off his sidewalk in good style. He is still bright, smart and active, and his many friends wish him many years yet in the lower sphere; but he says that though he is still abundantly able to enjoy life, he would not wish to stop about here eighty-six years longer.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Has "decided" claims upon the public. This is positively proven by the immense good it has done to those who have been cured of diseases from which they have suffered intensely for years, as verified by the published testimonials, every one of which is a positive fact.

CHELSEA, VT., Feb. 24, 1879.

MESSRS. C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: The 6th day of last June I was taken sick with a swelling on my right foot, and with an awful pain. The swelling went all over me. My face was swelled so that I could with difficulty see out of my eyes, and I broke out over the whole surface of my body; my right foot up to my knee was one raw, itching mass, and my ankle and foot so lame and sore I could not step on it, and it would run so as to wet a bandage through in an hour. In this condition Mr. W. F. Hood of the firm of A. B. Hood & Son, druggists, of this town, handed me a bottle of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and told me to take it. I did so, and by the time I had taken one bottle I found that it was doing me good. I have since taken five bottles more. After I had taken three bottles my soreness began to leave me, and I have been growing better every day, so that to-day I can walk without going lame. I have no soreness in my ankle and it has healed all up, and does not run at all. I owe my recovery to your Sarsaparilla. I write this to let you know that I think it deserves the confidence of the public, especially those who are troubled with humors.

Yours most truly,

JOSIAH PITKIN.

P. S. Every person that saw me said that I never would get over my lameness without having a running sore on my ankle; but thank God I have. J. P.

No other Sarsaparilla has such a sharpening effect upon the appetite. No other preparation tones and strengthens the digestive organs like HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

Do Not Delay

delay; if you are sick use Sulphur Bitters.

The Vice President of the Bank of Waverly, Iowa, SMITH P. HUNT, says: I have suffered with Catarrh for the last ten years, and also severe Billiousness and Liver Complaint. Since 1873 my Catarrh grew rapidly worse, so that my life was despaired of. At that time I weighed one hundred and seventy-five pounds, but grew emaciated so rapidly that I weighed only one hundred and thirty. After consulting the most celebrated physicians in the Western States, and spending many hundred dollars, from which no relief was obtained, I was induced to try your

Sulphur Bitters

Bitters; after taking six bottles my Headache, Vomiting, and all the effects of my Catarrh, Billiousness and Liver Complaint left me, I now weigh one hundred and sixty-five pounds, and consider that Sulphur Bitters have saved my life.

Mrs. HIRAM JORDAN, Lewiston, Me., says: For years I was a terrible sufferer with Scrofula, caused by salivation from the use of mercury and calomel; terrible sores broke out on my body, which twisted my limbs so that I could hardly move. The doctors all gave me up to die. Four bottles of Sulphur Bitters entirely cured me, and I am now able to do all my housework.

not, Sulphur Bitters will cure you.

Miss HELEN JONES, eleven years in charge of the Package Department, Boston & Maine depot, says: I have been a sufferer from Billiousness, Water Brash, and General Debility for several years. Most of the time I felt miserably and life seemed a burden. I was induced to try your Sulphur Bitters, and was completely surprised to see how much better I felt, and I am now enjoying better health than for years before. I shall always keep a supply of Sulphur Bitters on hand, for they have done me a world of good. Sulphur should be kept in every family.

A Boston & Albany R. R. engineer, F. B. CHAMBERLAIN, of Springfield, Mass., says: For years I have suffered from Chronic Bilious attacks, with a narrow escape each time from Typhoid Fever. About two years ago I commenced taking Sulphur Bitters, and since that time I have had no trouble from my old enemy. Living in a malarial district, I have had no trouble from that cause, being a marked exception among my neighbors, and I give the credit for that to Sulphur Bitters. It is an invaluable remedy, and one which no household should be without.

Builds Up the Weak.

The wife of the Superintendent of Repairs, Pacific Mills, Lawrence, Mass., Mrs. JOHN BARTON, the eloquent temperance advocate, says: When all other remedies failed, Sulphur Bitters cured me of Dyspepsia and those deathly Sick Headaches.

A PUBLIC BENEFACTOR.

The suit of James W. Emery, Esq., of this city, against the Eastern railroad, for detention at the crossing at Vaughan street, has been settled by the railroad by the payment of $200, Mr. Emery generously relinquishing the costs. The penalty against a railroad for obstructing a highway for more than a specified time—two minutes we think—was increased at the last session of the legislature from $20 to $200, and the officers of the railroad paid the full sum. They will look out sharp in future—both railroad companies and citizens.

For years the obstructing of the Vaughan street crossing by trains has been a standing source of complaint, it being a common occurrence for a dozen or more teams and scores of pedestrians to be "held up" there for periods varying from five to fifteen minutes, by trains stopped on the crossing. Under the law as it formerly existed there was no redress for this, the maximum penalty which could be recovered being only $20, and not even that unless the aggrieved person could show that he or she had actually sustained pecuniary loss to that amount by the delay! At least this is what a prominent lawyer told the writer when he sought advice as to instituting a suit against the railroad some years ago, after being delayed twenty-two minutes one bitter cold night, by two trains bound opposite ways which occupied the crossing at the same time. The only solace citizens had was to set forth their complaint in the local paper, and that had no more effect than did the anathematizing of the railroad which was often indulged in by the angry crowd of detinues. The trains continued to stop on the crossing just the same. And it was not merely at the Vaughan street crossing that this irritating and needless annoyance existed, for wherever throughout the state a railroad crossed a street near a depot, complaints were common.

Just when or how the law was changed so as to make a railroad responsible in $200 for mere detention of a traveller beyond a reasonable time, we are not informed; it must have been done near the end of the session, after the "third house" had dispersed and when the railroads were not looking. But it is a righteous change, and will do away with the long-continued abuse at once. Mr. Emery, a keen and experienced lawyer, was undoubtedly aware of what his rights as a citizen were under the law when he brought the suit; but the great mass of the public were not, (neither, we think, were the railroads,) and he is a public benefactor for giving this practical exemplification of what can be done in such a case.

But there will be no more such cases. General Manager Furber, of the consolidated Boston & Maine and Eastern roads, has instructed his subordinates that any person responsible for the illegal blockading of a highway will be summarily discharged; and if the other railroads in the state have not already issued such orders, they will hasten to do so.

DEATH OF DR. BURBANK.

Medical Inspector Charles H. Burbank, U. S. N., died of heart disease at his home on State street in this city on Friday night, at the age of forty-eight years. Dr. Burbank was a native of Portland, Me., and entered the service in May, 1861, his commission as medical inspector dating from April 26, 1879. He stood high as a professional man and an officer, and was greatly esteemed in social circles. He married Miss Abby Sise of this city, who with five children survives.

His first assignment, as an assistant surgeon, was to the hospital at Pilot Town, Minn., in 1861-62; after this he was ordered to the Marion (school-ship) in 1863; the sloop-of-war Housatonic, 1864; South Atlantic blockading squadron, 1865; receiving-ship Sabine at this port, 1866-67; sloop Kearsarge, Pacific squadron, 1868-70; Mare island navy yard, 1871-72; sick leave, 1873-74; steamer Powhatan, North Atlantic squadron, 1874-77; special duty at Brooklyn, N. Y.; his last orders being to duty here.

THE FRENCH SPOLIATION CLAIMS.

The French Spoliation Claims against the United States, which for over eighty years have been before Congress, are to be adjudicated upon by the court of claims. A large proportion of them are owned in New England, and from a lengthy document furnished Congress by Secretary Frelinghuysen, of the claims now on file at the treasury department, the following list of claims of persons formerly of this place or interested in Portsmouth vessels is compiled. The word "evidence" evidently means that documentary evidence supporting the claim is on file in the department; what "Spain, 1819," and "France, 1831," mean, we do not know.

The following list of persons residing in this vicinity who had filed their claims at Washington prior to March 3d, 1837, is taken from a Pub. Doc. issued by Congress on that date. It will be seen that a number of the names which appear in this list cannot be found in the list recently transmitted to Congress by Sec. Frelinghuysen; what became of the missing names—whether the claims were withdrawn, or were thrown out because not supported by proper evidence, there is nothing to show:

Elijah Hall; John McClintock; James Sheafe; Edward Cutts; James Shapley, administrator of Thomas Manning; Reuben Shapley; John Lowe, for Joseph Lowe; Thomas Sheafe, for self and William Sheafe; William Shaw, Daniel J. Huntress, Benning Morrill, executors of Daniel Huntress; Thomas M. Shaw; John H. Seaward; Charles Cushing, Sen., Edmund Q Sheafe, executors of Jacob Sheafe; Hampden Cutts, administrator of Edward Cutts; John Haven; Thomas Lunt; William Chase, administrator of Stephen Chase; Andrew Hallburton; William Sheafe; Henry Ladd, executor of Elliphalet Ladd; John H. Sheafe, executor of Thomas Sheafe; Hampden Cutts, for the heirs of Samuel Cutts; Mark Simes, administrator of Martin Parry; Daniel Cutter, for Daniel and Jacob Cutter; William Ham; James Kennard; Thomas M. Shaw; Samuel Sheafe; Samuel Hall, executor of George Janvrin; Mary Moore, administratrix of Samuel Moore; James Shapley, administrator of Edward Cutts; Hannah Prescott, administratrix of Benjamin Prescott; Benjamin T. Tredick, one of the heirs of Henry Tredick, Jr.; Elizabeth Schaffer, executrix of William Scavy; William Ried; Andrew W. Bell; Mark W. Peirce; Jacob Cutter; Nathaniel March; W. M. Sheafe; Alexander Ladd, executor of Nathaniel A. Haven; William Chase; Samuel Lord, executor; George M. March, administrator of Mathew S. Marsh; John D. Simes, executor of Mark Simes; Edward Cutts, William Haven, assignees of Ann Shapley, executrix of Reuben Shapley; John H. Sherburne, for the heirs of Robert Blunt.

The ship owners, shipping merchants and importers of this city were heavy sufferers by the French depredations, and it is probable that a very large number of claims, many of them susceptible of proof, are not included in either of the foregoing lists.

A New Serial Story,

IS COMMENCED IN THIS NUMBER.

Several chapters of MARY AGNES TINCKER'S charming story, As in a Looking-Glass, also appear, together with other short stories, Poems, and Articles of late set up in Current Topics.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1885,

Among the chief periodicals of the country, LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE has acquired the distinctive position of not being merely readable.

Arrangements have been made for many contributions of special interest during the coming year. Among these particular attention is invited to a serial story entitled "ON THIS SIDE," by F. C. Baylor, author of "The Perfect Treasure" (commenced in the January number) in which the experiences of an English baronet and his friends during a tour through the United States are related with a novelty, vigor, and a knowledge of and appreciation of national characteristics, and a portrait of Princess Louise and Freedom's corrections that cannot fail to secure critical approval and wide popularity. Miss Thaxter's beautiful novel, "Aunt Mix," will be completed in the summer, and will be followed by several stories in two or more parts, including "The Last Lady of Fort Cobell," by the author of "A Lady's Day Shift."

Sketches of Italian Life, by Mrs. Laurt Thompson, an accomplished Professor of Tennessee, by "Edmund Kirke," a narrative of the experiences of a Steerage Passenger to and from Liverpool, by Thomas Wharton, an article on Queen Anne, or Early Classic Architecture, by George C. Mason, Jr., and a Comedy for private theatricals, by James Payn, will be published in early numbers, together with the usual variety of short stories and articles of general interest by popular writers.

LIVES OF PAIN

RHEUMATISM and NEURALGIA have long enough run riot in the human nervous.

They have tormented the human family and defied the medical faculty; from time out of memory they have corrupted the blood, demoralized the joints, racked the organs, sprained the muscles and racked the brain with wearying pain.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is the enemy of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, repairs their damages, renews the blood, eases the joints, calms the nerves, soothes the muscles, gives rest and peace to the troubled brain, and ensures delightful sleep.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is a new remedy, but it has been abundantly tried. From far and near come testimonials from well-known persons who had long been sufferers. It has turned their diseases out. It has cured them. That is all—and that is enough.

"ATHLOPHOROS" can do for you what it has done for those sufferers. It can drive out your Rheumatism and Neuralgia, and will do so if you give it a fair trial.

"ATHLOPHOROS" has by this time had such a good trial all over the country that its virtues work is known, and its true character proved.

"ATHLOPHOROS" means "Prize-Bearer;" "Victor;" "Conqueror." It carries off the prize as Victor over the attacks of these terrible maladies, and Conqueror of the truthful agonies their victims have endured. Not a mere temporary relief, but a permanent, enduring, and triumphant cure.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

BOSTON, October 19, 1879.

R. H. EDDY, Esq.— Dear Sir: You procured for me, in 1840, my first patent. Since then you have acted for and advised me in hundreds of cases, and procured many patents, reissues and extensions. I have occasionally employed the best agencies in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, but I still give you almost the whole of my business, in your line, and advise others to employ you. Experience Taught Me!

And my money paid for it. After having liver complaint four years, and spending money on nostrums and doctors who didn't help me, I tried Sulphur Bitters. Six bottles cured me. I shall always use them.—G. N. Butler, Cohoes, N. Y.

—It is related that many years ago a Mr. Morgan, who represented Westmeath in the House of Commons, when on his first canvass called on Father Mooney, an influential priest, and asked him for his vote. The latter replied: "Sir, I'd rather give it to the devil." "But," said the candidate, "in the event of your friend not coming forward for the county, what then?" He got the vote.

Never Before.

Never before in the history of medicine has a preparation been so universally praised as Wetherell's Sarsaparilla with iodide potassium. It goes right to the spot, and builds the system up as no other medicine does. One dollar per bottle. Six for $5. Druggists sell it.

—"Is my shaving agreeable to you, sir?" a loquacious barber asked a customer whom he had been flaying. "My wife would admire it very much," rather indelicately responded the man under torture. "Ah," said the barber, with great complacency, "ladies are often excellent judges of their husbands being well shaved. And you think mine will suit, sir?" "No doubt of it in the world. It was only this morning she became angry because I told her I could not afford to buy her a spring bonnet, and said I ought to be skinned alive."

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites. Has all the virtues of these two most popular remedies. The Air and The Telescope.

The air we breathe is in truth the worst enemy of the astronomer's observations. It is their enemy in two ways. Part of the light which brings it wonderful, evanescent messages across inconceivable depths of space, it stops; and when it does not stop, it shatters. And this even when it is most transparent and seemingly still; when mist-veils are withdrawn, and no clouds curtain the sky. Moreover, the evil grows with the power of the instrument. Atmospheric troubles are magnified neither more nor less than the objects viewed across them. Thus, Lord Rosse's giant reflector possesses—nominally—a magnifying power of 6,000; that is to say it can reduce the apparent distances of the heavenly bodies to one six-thousandth of their actual amount. The moon, for example, which is separated from the earth's surface by an interval of about two hundred and thirty-four thousand miles, is shown as if removed only thirty-nine miles. Unfortunately, however, in theory only. Professor Newcomb compares the sight obtained under such circumstances to a glimpse through several yards of running water, and doubts whether our satellite has ever been seen to such advantage as it would be if brought—substantially, not merely optically—within five hundred miles of the unassisted eye.—From "Mountain Observatories" in Popular Science Monthly.

A democratic editor of Pennsylvania thus puts himself in line to be struck by any official lightning that may be playing around next March: "Our republican friends have generally made it a rule to put newspaper men in the postoffices, and the rule strikes us very favorably. Editors are the poorest-paid party servants, and a good postoffice salary would be a deserved recognition of services to the party and the country generally. Modesty forbids us being more explicit at present."

Stranger than Fiction

Are the records of some of the cures of consumption effected by that most wonderful remedy—Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Thousands of grateful men and women, who have been snatched almost from the very jaws of death, can testify that consumption, in its early stages, is no longer incurable. The discovery has no equal as a pectoral and alterative, and the most obstinate affections of the throat and lungs yield to its power. All druggists.

—Prison Official—"If you have any trade, prisoner, state it, and we'll put you to work at it." Prisoner (just entered)—"Well, boss, I was brung up a bartender, and I'd like to work at that." He was put to the bars of the casting pot of the foundry, as the nearest mode of accommodating him.

Every day adds to the great amount of evidence as to the curative powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Letters are continually being received from all sections of the country, telling of benefits derived from this great medicine. It is unequaled for general debility, and as a blood purifier, expelling every trace of scrofula or other impurity. Now is the time to take it. Made by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. —A citizen who had been playing poker the night before dropped a blue chip into the contribution box by mistake. After service he went to the deacon who had passed the plate and told him of the mistake. "So I'll just give you a dollar in its place," he said, "and we'll keep the matter quiet." "No, you don't," replied the deacon; "that's a blue chip. It's worth $5.

ON THE ENGINE.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River boats at train between Fall River and Lowell, including Taunton. For few years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could see really see. I think this was one part to irregular habits of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes in bed would sleep like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fist. My breath was very offensive, a foul food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my st mach felt as though it were a great raw and sore surface, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the Centennial travel, the constant jar brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the last of July when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Massachusetts. It was in this crucial time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for say ng that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pains left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good and it drove every sore and painful disease out completely out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night, a while ago, John Layton, an engineer who runs the main Hudson boat, ran for to stop, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," said, "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, filled his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Here," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, London, N. Y." said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of ills are by purifying the blood and cleansing every organ into health. It is equally useful at home, shops, in office—everywhere.

Tolled By a Dog.

"A man can get along without friends if he has an intelligent dog," said a Jackson street bookkeeper, yesterday, as a Day reporter entered his store. The bookkeeper touched a fur rug at his feet, which got up and shook itself. "Dinner time, old fellow," he said, pointing to a low table standing under a peg in the wall. "I shall never forget," said the bookkeeper reminiscently, as he buttoned his coat and shook himself into shape for lunch, "that old New England village where stood a gray, moss-grown stone church, and by its side a little weather-stained cottage. A lonely old man, the sexton, lived there. He had outlived the hopes and friends of his youth, but was utterly alone but for the companionship of a noble dog. It was a familiar sight to see him hobbling back and forth to the cottage, always accompanied by his faithful companion.

"The old man could often be heard muttering fragments of talk as he went his slow, unsteady ways; if in conversation with his dumb friend, who never left his side, but gazed with a look of human intelligence in his master's face at the least sound of his voice. At the village the sexton would exchange a quiet word with a friend, and making little purchases for himself and his dog set out for the cottage, his basket upon his arm. But even here the dog would relieve his care and gently but firmly take the basket in his mouth, trot on before with an air of joyous satisfaction. He seemed to take a peculiar pleasure in the ringing of the bell of the church, and was always with his old master when he summoned the people to holy service.

"Once when the bell-rope broke he climbed the stairs of the old bell tower with the sexton and repeatedly watched him ring the bell from the loft. But one day the old sexton who was seized with his last illness, and in spite of the anxious solicitations of the dog, could not ring the bell the following Sunday and soon after passed quietly away, his hand resting on the head of his poor follower whose mourning was inconsolable. The dog was visibly affected by the tolling of the bell. From the grave the faithful creature had to be taken by force, and would return there immediately on being released.

"One day he was observed to go to the church and soon after was seen in the belfry where his master had for a time rung the Sabbath chimes. Here he appears to have reached the bell with his paws and to have swung it, for it tolled out a single mournful note as of sorrow and despair. Immediately after the dog was seen to look down from the tower into the churchyard, where his master lay buried. Then with a low mournful whine, reaching slowly forward, he suddenly leaped out into the air and fell a lifeless mass on the mound. As sure as man ever did he died of grief, feeling with unerring instinct that life without affection is worse than death. So, you see, I take my friend to lunch and he keeps my feet warm and soothes my perturbed spirit by the intelligent sympathy of his eyes. I tell you a man—a lone man—without a dog is a subject for pity." St. Paul Day.

Contrast.

The sound of wheels and the tread of heavy feet upon the seldom-traveled by-path, beside which stood her cottage home, caused the farmer's wife to pause a moment in the open doorway to bestow a half-listless glance upon the scene without.

Of the rare loveliness of the sight at that moment delighting the fine, æsthetic taste of the woman who occupied a luxurious carriage slowly moving past, this farmer's wife had not the least conception. The quaint old log house, flanked with snug outbuildings, and embowered in overhanging forest-trees; the trimly swept walks, and garden gay with flowers; the barn-yard fowls lazily preening their feathers in the warm, sunlit air, while the doves idly circled about overhead; suggested to her dulled perceptions no such harmonious picture of restful, rural simplicity, as appeared to the beauty-loving stranger, but seemed rather, if thought of at all, as so many different objects of care, or fruits of too-well remembered hours of toil and hardship.

Twenty years had come and gone since, as the bride of a pioneer, with high hope and cheerful courage, her feet had first crossed this threshold. In slow procession year had followed year, each bringing its moiety of change—a little more land reclaimed from the forest; an added granary; another child to the mother-arms, perhaps—but never one bringing surcease of toil, nor the least sweet morsel of comfort for the poor heart's ever-increasing burden of dearest hopes deferred. To-day, faded, careworn and middle-aged, she stood and looked on the fair, sweet woman before her, whose dainty attire and bearing of careless grace told of a life of culture and ease, with eyes from which the light of hope had departed, but into which there suddenly crept an expression of pained and puzzled questioning.

Returning from its pleased survey of the premises, the passer's glance rested upon the woman's form in the doorway; and, noting the troubled face, with quick, intuitive sympathy, she grasped its meaning. Her keenly-observant intelligence needed but this slight glimpse to comprehend how great was the contrast between this other woman's lot and her own. Yet over against her own life of wide freedom and pleasing activities, she saw another subjected to the soul-harrowing, benumbing influences of never ending toil and petty care; and over the pretty face as it slowly passed from view there seemed to fall a shadow of gloom, while to her own face there came a reflection of the other's pain, as, with quivering lips she voiced the thought at that moment in the hearts of both:

"Why this difference? Is it chance? Have we each had chosen for us a necessary part in the divine economy? Or, is life as surely wrecked by the burden of duties overdone, as it is vain from duties undone?"—Mrs. L. Z. Lanphere, in The Current.

America promises to become the greatest wine-producing country in the world. Ten years from now our annual wine product will probably amount to 100,000,000 gallons. Even then the industry will be only in its infancy. California is a great wine State, but as yet she has cultivated very little of her grape area. There are three great wine centers in this country. The first is the Pacific slope, the second is the Piedmont region, or table lands between the Alleghanies and the Blue Ridge, including Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia and parts of Kentucky and Tennessee, the Indian Territory, with large parts of New Mexico, Arizona, Arkansas, Kansas, Texas, Missouri, Ohio and New York. We have 100 acres adapted to grapes for every one acre that France can show.

A well-educated person who possesses a college sheepskin, reads his Bible, his Shakspeare and the daily papers seldom uses more than 3,000 or 4,000 words in actual conversation. Accurate thinkers and close reasoners, who avoid vague and general expressions and wait till they find a word that exactly fits their meaning, employ a larger stock, and eloquent speakers may rise to a command of 10,000. Shakspeare, who displayed a greater variety of expression than probably any writer in any language, produced all his plays with about 13,000 words. Milton's works are built up with 8,000, and the Old Testament says all that it has to say with 5,462 words. In the English language there are, all told, 70,000 words.

Up in Quebec.

Mr. G. N. Boyer, Carrillon, Quebec, Canada, writes that he suffered with a lame back, and after trying all other remedies without effect, he finally tried St. Jacobs Oil, the magical pain-conqueror, and was completely cured.

Six dynamite cartridges which were lying on the floor of the engine house of the Tay Canal works at Beveridge Bay, Ont., exploded Friday, blowing the house to atoms. A man named Lewis, who had charge of the explosives, and George McDonald, son of the contractor, were fatally injured. Another man named Buchanan was severely hurt, but is expected to recover.

A lady of Concord, N. H., writes, "for more than ten years was subject to severe darting pains through the heart with suffocation threatening death, tried Dr. Geaves' Heart Regulator, it cured me—no recurrence for many years." $1.00 per bottle at druggists.

In Clay county, Ark., Jan. 30th, Lafayette Melton, a white man aged twenty-three years, was hanged for the murder of Franklin Hale four years ago. It was proved on trial Melton was a captain in the Ku-Klux Brotherhood. Hale had been talking about the order, and a plot was formed to whip him. A masked party found Hale in the woods at night, and whipped him to death. Melton was convicted chiefly on the evidence of H. S. Lawrence, one of the party, who turned state's evidence a year after the occurrence.

Dynamite in New York.

Garry Brothers of New York, dry goods dealers, three months ago discharged a floor walker. This floor walker was a member of the Equality Association, a protective organization, and the society urged that the man be taken back. When the firm refused to take him back, some of the other employes went on a strike; a few of them returned, but the majority of the strikers remained away. The firm received many threatening letters, but paid no attention to them. On Sunday morning last, shortly after two o'clock, a tremendous explsion shook the street; dynamite had been put under the windows of Garry Bros.' store, and the windows were shattered, the casings and woodwork blown away and the front of the place generally disturbed. A store on the opposite side of the street, kept by Ridley & Sons, was damaged about as much as the other, the total injury to both buildings being put at $2500. Four men, namely, Charles Henry, a laborer, James Daly, a clerk, Joseph Lamb, a printer, and William Britton, a waiter, all members of the Equality Association, were soon arrested not far from the scene of the explosion, but maintain their innocence.

Spring Excursions to California.

Messrs. Raymond and Whitcomb announce their fifth annual series of spring excursions to Colorado and California. There will be three dates of departure, viz: April 16th, 23d and 30th, and the programme provides a magnificent sight-seeing round of fifty-nine days. There will be halts at Chicago, Denver, Manitou, Santa Fe and Los Angeles on the outward trip, a prolonged stop at San Francisco with a five days' visit to Monterey, and a short sojourn at Salt Lake City returning. In addition there will be a detour of over a thousand miles through Colorado which visits to some of the greatest scenic wonders in the Rocky Mountains, including Clear Creek Canon, the Royal Gorge, Marshall Pass, La Veta Pass and Toltec Gorge. Ample time is allowed for all who desire to visit the Yosemite Valley and Big Tree Groves. These trips are planned on the most liberal scale with first-class accommodations everywhere, and are patronized by the best class of travellers. A circular giving full particulars regarding rates, daily movement of the parties, etc., may be had by addressing W. Raymond, 240 Washington street, Boston.

"The United Service" for February has an especially interesting list of contents, including "The battle at Chattanooga"—Orchard Knob, Lookout, Missionary Ridge—by Gen. H. V. Boynton; "Esek Hopkins, the first commander-in-chief of the American navy, 1775," by Rear Adm. Preble; "The Ancient & Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts," by Major Ben. Perley Poore; "The Pilgrimage to Washington," by T. H. S. Hamersly; "The Thirty Years' War," supplementary paper, by Major Gen. J. Watts de Peyster, sketches, essays, continued articles, editorial notes, reviews of service literature, etc. New York; T. H. S. Hamersly, publisher; $8 per year; single number twenty-five cents.

The Century Co. have just cause to be proud of the Midwinter number, for February, for it has an unsurpassed richness of contents, among which is Mr. Howells' Florentine Mosaic; The Montreal Carnival; Henry James' "Bostonians," and Mark Twain's "Royalty on the Mississippi." Gen. Grant's Battle of Shiloh will incite more interest by reason of its authorship than of its composition, while a son of Gen. Albert Sidney Johnson gives the southern view of the Shiloh campaign. The prominent paper is Mr. Edmund Clarence Stedman's sketch of Oliver Wendell Holmes, in which the New York poet gracefully performs the difficult and discriminating task of portraying the literary accomplishments of the Boston poet. For a poet to describe a cotemporary author of poems, when the party of the first part is a critic of wide renown, is certainly a delicate task. There is much to say, and perhaps much to omit. Mr. Stedman is always able to distinguish the fine gold from the dross, in whatever shape it may appear, and his sketch cannot fail to please the most ultra-Bostonian reader. There is a fine portrait of Dr. Holmes, not as he appears today at Boston's festive occasions, but as he looked—we will not suggest how many—years ago, when he went about that then-regarded broad expanse of territory, New England, and delighted lyceum audiences with his brilliant lectures. The edition of the February number is 180,000, showing that "The Century" receives the support it so deservedly merits. Terms, $4.00 per year; thirty-five cents a number. Published by The Century Co., Union Square, New York, and supplied by all booksellers and newsdealers.

Mr. William H. Gardiner, chief clerk of the United States Bureau of Education, is acquiring considerable reputation as a historian. He is the historian of the Dartmouth College Association of this city. He is also secretary of the class of '76, of Dartmouth college, and as such he has just published the ninth annual report, which has received very favorable notice. The Dartmouth, published at Dartmouth College, has an article written by him, entitled, "Dartmouth College in the Executive and Legislative Departments of the State of New Hampshire for 100 Years, 1784-1884." It ran through seven numbers, commencing in September. The New Hampshire Gazette, of the date of January 22, 1885, also contains an article of his, entitled, "Portsmouth in the New Hampshire Legislature for a Hundred Years, 1784-1884."—Washington Post.

The "Horn of Plenty," formerly the Seamen's Home, on State street, furnishes meals of good food, well cooked, at very low prices. Respectable seafaring men and citizens in large numbers resort there, the tables being well laid and the rooms all neatly and cleanly kept. There is no bar on the premises. Cooked food, (meats, stews, chowders, etc.,) is still sold to be taken away for family use, as was the custom with the Seamen's Home, — a great convenience for many poor people.

Andrew Jackson Small, editor and proprietor of the Biddeford Times, died in Saco on the 31st ult., in the 48th year of his age.

It is announced that Lieutenants John P. Tibbetts and Horace D. Whidden, of the Portsmouth Cavalry, have tendered their resignations.

Wm. T. Tibbetts has been found guilty of shooting Wm. T. Senall with intent to kill, at Lisbon, Me., Dec. 15th, in a trial at Lewiston. Fragments of unburned wadding were from a Lewiston Journal, and the rest of the paper was found in Tibbett's ammunition box. Senall was shot while driving toward his home over a road through the woods, the motive for the crime being robbery.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Has "decided" claims upon the public. This is positively proven by the immense good it has done to those who have been cured of diseases from which they have suffered intensely for years, as verified by the published testimonials, every one of which is a positive fact.

Chelsea, Vt., Feb. 24, 1879.

Messrs. C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: The 6th day of last June I was taken sick with a swelling on my right foot, and with an awful pain. The swelling went all over me. My face was swelled so that I could with difficulty see out of my eyes, and I broke out over the whole surface of my body; my right foot up to my knee was one raw, itching mass, and my ankle and foot so lame and sore I could not step on it, and it would run so as to wet a bandage through in an hour. In this condition Mr. W. F. Hood of the firm of A. H. Hood & Son, druggists, of this town, handed me a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and told me to take it. I did so, and by the time I had taken one bottle I found that it was doing me good. I have since taken five bottles more. After I had taken three bottles my soreness began to leave me, and I have been growing better every day, so that to-day I can walk without going lame. I have no soreness in my ankle and it has healed all up, and does not run at all. I owe my recovery to your Sarsaparilla. I write this to let you know that I think it deserves the confidence of the public, especially those who are troubled with humors.

Yours most truly,
JOSIAH PETKIN.

P. S. Every person that saw me said that I never would get over my lameness without having a running sore on my ankle; but thank God I have. J. P.

No other Sarsaparilla has such a sharpening effect upon the appetite. No other preparation tones and strengthens the digestive organs like Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Price one dollar, or six bottles for five dollars. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO. Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

THE WEATHER.

For New England To-day:

Cloudy or partly cloudy weather, rising temperature, local snows.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 6 degrees below zero.

Sky clear.

THE DIME SHOW.

The Birds of a Feather Comedy company gave a 75 ct. show at Music hall on Monday evening for 10 cts. and 20 cts., to a numerous and much amused audience. There is sparkling melody and good singing, and "A Day in June" is comically funny. Mora, the "comedy sunbeam," at once won a high place in the popular regard. Another entertainment will be given this evening. Reserved seats at Goodrich's.

THE MASQUERADE.

Reserved seat tickets for the masquerade at the Portsmouth rink this evening, can be had at Goodrich's; gallery tickets will be sold at the rink.

SUNDAY'S SNOW AND MONDAY'S BLOW.

The fall of dry snow on Sunday, and its blowing about by the wind Sunday night, did not seriously interfere with railroad travel in this section; the trains over the Eastern railroad were all nearly on time in arriving at this city Monday morning, (excepting the Pullman train, due at four o'clock, which lost nearly two hours,) and the Concord train was only about an hour late. The milkmen also reached their customers reasonably early, though they reported the roads as quite badly drifted-up; one or two of them had an extra horse hitched on ahead of their usual team.

Monday was Candlemas day, when, according to an old saw, "half your corn and half your hay" should be left in the barns. Another old Candlemas-day proverb is, "So far as the sun shines in, so far will the snow blow in." The snow got to windward of the sun on Monday, and blew into lots of places where the sunbeams never reach.

Trains on the Boston & Maine railroad "Western Division" were apparently more impeded by snow than on the Eastern; the train from Portland due in Dover on Monday at 10:35 o'clock A. M. did not get there until one P. M., and was hauled by three locomotives. The wind blew so strongly in Dover on Monday as to overturn one of the busses now being run by the horse railroad company in lieu of cars.

GIVING "CREDIT."

One day last week the Dover Republican informed the world at large that the Portsmouth Chronicle "very often" saw good things in the Republican, and had "a way of taking them without credit, and publishing as its own. Smart, isn't it?"

We suggested to our beloved brother up the river that he must be mistaken, as we had always relied on Foster's Democrat for Dover news, and rarely looked at the Republican.

He gently rejoined: "We happen to know that the article which the Chronicle took from the Republican, without credit, never appeared in the Democrat,"—from which it seems that his alleged "very many good things" had suddenly shrunk to a single item, and even that one not specified. He adds that he is "afraid the Chronicle will be run under by its younger and smarter competitor, the Penny Post, which shows not only enterprise, but brains,"—a compliment which the Penny Post no doubt wishes it could truthfully return. He winds up by kindly saying that if the editor of the Chronicle wants to "soft soap" Frank Jones and the editor of the Democrat "let him keep on and see where he will come out"—for which generous permission he has our heartfelt thanks; we have for some time contemplated asking his consent in the matter.

We have neither time, space nor inclination for newspaper disputes over inconsequential matters; but we may remark that a paper which publishes as original "Historical Research" whole pages of a recently copyrighted book, the preparation of which cost the compiler months of labor, hardly has hands clean enough to enter a court of equity with a complaint on the "credit" question.

And if it would not be considered impertinent, we might further remark that in the Republican of Monday we notice a three-quarter column editorial from the Chronicle, without so much as a hint as to where it came from.

AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

I was much interested a few evenings ago in visiting the Public Library and looking over its shelves, and then in watching the crowd of people who stood patiently waiting their turn to be served by the busy librarian and his volunteer assistants. It seemed to me while standing there, that it were much to be desired that some more rapid and less laborious way of distributing the books could be introduced. If some kind of an indicator could be prepared, a glance at which would show which books were out and which were on the shelves, the tedious search through the cases for desired numbers would be wholly obviated; and at the same time an easier method of registering the books than the one now in use, could be adopted. We understand that such an indicator has for some time been in contemplation, but, partly owing to lack of funds, it has never yet been prepared for use. The unavoidable delay of the present system does not, however, seem to discourage applicants, as may be seen by the statistics in the librarian's report, recently published; 28,585 books a year, means about one a minute for all the hours that the library is open. This looks something like business, and would astonish the calm and leisurely librarians of some more "aristocratic" libraries.

The class of people who throng the waiting room can hardly, on the whole, be called an "aristocratic" crowd. Perhaps if they were more so, they would be less well-behaved, and more impatient. We say many coming and going whose appearance bespoke little money, little leisure and many cares; some who perhaps had never in their lives had access to any really interesting and improving books before,—whose reading had necessarily been confined to the cheap newspaper or the dime novel, or at best the Sunday school library. But these were by no means all. Among the crowd who were passing in their tickets I saw at least one clergyman, and many gentlemen and ladies who have had the best intellectual advantages, and therefore are all the more eager to avail themselves of those afforded by this fine library.

Of course it is to be expected that, for a time at least, by far the greatest demand should be for fiction. The average man or woman, after a hard day's work wants a book for rest and amusement rather than improvement; and who would grudge them this recreation, provided the fiction be not harmful? Our people do not live any too much in the imagination, and the novelist plays a much needed and very important part in our hard work-a-day lives. The trustees of the library have done their best to exclude everything vulgar and harmful, and seem on the whole to have succeeded very well. I was most disappointed by the class of books called for by the boys. It seems impossible to interest these young fellows in anything better than stories of street life and impossible adventure; books scarcely fitted either to elevate, refine or instruct. And yet this class of readers is about the most rapacious of any who frequent the library.

But while we do not grudge their fiction to those who really need it more than any other kind of reading, we do wish that the true worth of this library were better known and appreciated by those desirous, not only of amusement, but of improvement and self culture. The collection of histories, biographies, travels, works on art, science, natural history, and mechanics, is much larger and better than we had supposed before examining it. The day that we were there a large case of new books had just arrived, among which we saw such works as "Seward's Life and Letters," in five volumes, a publication of immense value to one interested in the recent history of our country; Parkman's valuable histories, in nine volumes, ending with his recently published Montcalm and Wolfe; Green's fascinating "Short History of the English People;" Longfellow's Dante; Bryant's Homer; Cranch's Virgil; the lives of the famous machinist Nasmythe, and of Bayard Taylor; all the recent volumes of travel, and the lives of American statesmen and men of letters. But it is not my purpose to begin to catalogue the valuable and interesting books here thrown freely open to the public. I would only urge every one to go and see for themselves; and when there, not to be contented with carrying home a sensational novel or a light story to amuse for half an hour, but to take one of these hundreds of books on which the best thought of the best men has been expended, the reading and study of which will enlarge the mind and extend the horizon of thought. LOOKER-ON.

The fishing schooner Nettie Adams went ashore at the Newcastle breakwater, Monday forenoon, and telephoned to this city for the steamer Clara Batemen, but before the the tug could get up steam the schooner was seen coming up through the narrows, having got off herself.

Mr. Albert C. Stickney, whose recent death at the age of thirty-six years has been announced, was one of the industrious and worthy mechanics whom no city can afford to lose. He was highly regarded by his associates, who regret his early death and earnestly sympathise with his bereaved relatives.

The Bunch of Keys, a musical comedy in three acts, will be performed in Music hall on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 9th and 10th. This piece was played in New York over two hundred consecutive nights, to large audiences up to the very last—the largest run on record for any musical comedy in the United States. The company carry their own complete hotel set with them, and use it in the second and third acts; this scene represents the interior of a hotel office, with all its equipments. Tickets on sale at Goodrich's, Wednesday, 4th inst.

The Nonpareil Associates of this city, who had intended to give their first social assembly at the town hall in Rye on Monday evening of this week, on account of the intensely cold and blustering weather altered their programme so far as to have the dance in Mechanics' hall; all those who had purchased tickets were notified of the change of plan during the day, and a very pleasant evening's enjoyment was had. Turner's quadrille band furnished the music.

The idea of forming a permanent military company, to be composed of members of the several cadet campaign companies which flourished in this city during the late presidential contest, has been given up. The young man chosen captain has removed from the city, and one of the lieutenants, if not two, will probably make a similar movement within a few months. There is no vacancy for a company in the state military forces, and will not be for some time; and the enthusiasm with which the project was received having gradually given place to apathetic indifference, it is probable that the scheme will be allowed to quietly drop out of sight.

About twenty fishing vessels arrived at the Water street wharves on Monday, bringing in nearly 60,000 lbs. of fish, which were sold at about $3.50 per hundred lbs.; a large number of men were engaged in dressing and boxing the fish during the afternoon, and a number of teams were employed during the evening in transporting them to the railroad station. The schooners on arrival were much iced up, showing cold weather outside.

IS COMMENCED IN THIS NUMBER.

Several chapters of MARY AGNES TINCKER'S charming story, Auriga, or a Contest, also appear, together with other short stories, Poems, and Articles of Late set up in Current Topics.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1885.

Among the chief periodicals of the country, LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE has acquired the distinctive reputation of being "eminently readable." Arrangements have been made for many contributions of special interest during the coming year. Among these particular attention is invited to a serial story entitled "ON THIS SIDE," by F. C. Baylor, author of "The Perfect Treasure" (copyrighted in the United States), in which the experiences of an English baronet and his friends during a tour through the United States are related with a high-breeding but not a knowledge and appreciation of national characteristics, and a perfect freedom from caricature that cannot fail to secure critical approval and wide popularity. Miss Tincker's beautiful novel, "Auriga," will be completed in the summer, and will be followed by several stories in two or more parts, including "The Lad's Lover's First Client," by the author of "A Lader Day Saint."

Sketches of Italian Life, by Mrs. Laurt Thompson, an account of the Pioneers of Tennessee, by "Edmund Kirke," a narrative of the experiences of a Steerage Passenger to and from Liverpool, by Thomas Wharton, an article on Queen Anne, or Free Classic Architecture, by Lorenzo Marson, Jr., and a Comedy for private theatricals, by James Payn, will be published in early numbers, together with the usual variety of short stories and articles of general interest by popular writers.

LIVES OF PAIN

RHEUMATISM and NEURALGIA have long enough run riot in the human system.

They have tormented the human family and defied the medical faculty; from time out of memory they have corrupted the blood, benumbed the joints, vexed the nerves, agonized the muscles and racked the brain with wearying pain.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is the enemy of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, repairs their damages, renews the blood, eases the joints, calms the nerves, soothes the muscles, gives rest and peace to the troubled brain, and restores the delight of sleep.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is a new remedy, but it has been abundantly tried. From far and near come testimonials from well-known persons who had long been sufferers. It has invariably cured, it has cured them. That is all—and that is enough.

"ATHLOPHOROS" can do for you what it has done for those sufferers. It can drive out your Rheumatism and Neuralgia, and will do so if you give it a fair trial.

"ATHLOPHOROS" has by this time had such a good trial all over the country that its true worth is known, and its true character proved.

"ATHLOPHOROS" means "Prize-Bearer;" "Victor;" "Conqueror." It carries off the prize as VICTOR over the attacks of these terrible maladies, and CONQUEROR of the frightful agonies their victims have endured. Not a mere temporary relief, but a permanent, enduring, and triumphant cure.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

Don't Look Like a Wreck.

"When a man is going down hill everybody is ready to give him a kick." Yes, that is so. It is sad, but natural. Why, many a man and woman, seeking employment, would have got it if their hair hadn't been so thin and gray. One bottle of Parker's Hair Balsam is then the best investment. It stops falling hair, promotes new growth and restores color. Clean, highly perfumed, not a dye. A great improvement over any similar preparation, and sold at the low price of 50c.

Never Before.

Never before in the history of medicine has a preparation been so universally praised as Wetherell's Sarsaparilla with iodide potassium. It goes right to the spot, and builds the system up as no other medicine does. One dollar per bottle. Six for $5. Druggists sell it.

At a sewing circle all the women were talking, and some of the subjects got hopelessly confused. For instance, the subject of crickets and church choirs. "I never heard such a horrid noise as they made last Sunday," said one woman, referring to the choir. "Nor I either," said another, thinking she referred to the Fall cricketers. "They say they make that noise with their hind legs."—Cleveland Leader.

Col. Elliot, who is the Texas Commissioner at the New Orleans Exposition, has got himself into trouble. A Dallas youth, who imagines that he is an artist, brought him a beautiful landscape he had painted, and told him he wanted it exhibited at New Orleans. "Certainly, sir; certainly," replied Col. Elliot. "But I want a card put on it stating that it is not for sale." "I don't think that there is the slightest necessity for that," remarked Commissioner Elliot, taking another glance at the work of art.—Texas Siftings.

Husband—"It looks like rain, my dear. Don't you think we had better take an umbrella?" Wife—"O, no! we don't want to be bothered with it." Husband—"You take great chances, my love." Wife—"I know I do. If I were a man I would be a bold speculator. I would never be content, like you, to do an ordinary humdrum business that would just bring me a living." [An hour later, the couple standing in a narrow doorway with the rain beating fiercely in.] Wife—"How do I look?" Husband—"Very much like a speculator, sharer of my joys and sorrows."

The poetical market.—He came into an Austin newspaper office and in a very pompous manner handed the editor a document with the remark: "My friends, to whom I have read this poem, praise it very highly, so I have concluded to allow you to publish it for a reasonable remuneration." "I can't publish your poem, but I can give you a hint how you can make money out of it," replied the editor, after he had read over the verses. "I should be much obliged to you." "Those friends of yours who admire your poem so much have got money, have they not?" "O, yes, some of them are quite wealthy." "Then you bet them one to ten that there is not a paper in the United States that will publish a poem without being paid for it, and you will scoop them for all they are worth. Good morning."—Texas Siftings.

Catarrh

Is a very prevalent and exceedingly disagreeable disease, liable, if neglected, to develop into serious consumption. Being a constitutional disease, it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, effecting a radical and permanent cure of catarrh in even its most severe forms. ON THE ENGINE.

Running a Locomotive While Deathly Sick—Something the Passengers Did Not Know—A Physician Says an Engineer.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, but run the Fall River to attle between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such bleeding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was due partly to irregular habits of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine. Some times my head would snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fists. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my at much felt as though it were a great raw and sore surface, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the constant ar brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next spring, when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been cured by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this critical time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pain left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good and it drove every ache, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night, a while ago, John Layton, an engineer who runs the main line boat train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," said, "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, filled his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I met him looking healthy as a butcher. "Dan," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, Rondout, N. Y." said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office—everywhere.

"Mrs. Partington, what do you use for a very bad cold?" asked Mrs. Dull. "Handkerchief, ma'am," answered the aged dame, looking over her spectacles. Handkerchiefs are a desideratum in the event of a cold, but a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is a necessity, because it not only relieves, but cures the worst cold or cough.

—A Texas man who has just returned from a trip north, uses complicated words since his return. Being in the opera house with a young lady, he said: "The acoustics in this theatre are bad. Don't you notice it?" "No, I don't smell anything peculiar," replied the young lady.

I Wished I was Dead!

After suffering several years with the Leucorrhœa, and no doubt I would have been, only a lady induced me to try Sulphur Bitters. Now I am well. Three bottles cured me.—Mrs. Copps, Newport, R. I.

—Stanley Day, of Hollisterville, Pa., after much suffering for several months, has been relieved of thirteen water-crabs and a milk snake seventeen inches long, which he thinks he must have swallowed while drinking from a spring in the dark last May. It is mighty fortunate for Stanley that the spring didn't contain a whale and a crocodile or two.

I was a non-believer in patent medicines, but having experienced marked relief from nasal catarrh and hoarseness by the use of Ely's Cream Balm, I can recommend it to those suffering from this loathsome complaint and to those afflicted with hoarseness or stoppage of the throat so annoying to singers and clergymen.—Louis E. —Parson Whangdoodle Baxter distinguished himself once more at the funeral of an aged colored man: "Our deceased brudder was married fosh times during his life," said Whang loodle, "but only one ob de widders am so fortunate as be able to survive him long enough to be present on dis hear solemnious ocashun."

Commence the Year Aright.

Don't make too many resolutions, but hold on like grim death to those you do make. If your physical system is out of order you should attend to that at once; for its no use trying to keep a stiff upper lip when your kidneys or liver are taking the courage out of you. If you have really made up your mind to turn over a new leaf, commence the year by taking a thorough course of the celebrated Kidney-Wort. Thousands of people testify to its good effects for kidney diseases, biliousness, piles, constipation, etc.

—"Well, Angeline, are you going to church this morn ng?" asked a western spinster of a Vassar college girl. "No, awnt, I cawnt attend," said the girl. "Why?" "Because the floral architecture that envelopes my encephalic capillary integument is decidedly disarranged." "Law sakes!" exclaimed the spinster; "we wouldn't say it that way out west." "How would they express the idea in the 'rowdy west,' awn?" "Why, we would say: 'My bonnet's out of whack.'"

WETHERELL'S SARSAPARILLA

Is the best remedy ever devised for all diseases of the blood, liver and kidneys, giving immediate and permanent improvement. No remedy has ever before been so compounded as to bring together in one bottle so many active ingredients, which are known to all physicians as a specific for impure blood, the fountain-head of all diseases.

Bilious Headache.

I have suffered for a long time from bilious headache, and have tried many preparations of Sarsaparilla, but found no relief. I was induced by my friends to try Wetherell's Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla, with Iodide of Potassium. After taking one bottle I am entirely cured, and feel better now than for years. I cheerfully give you the use of my name, believing that many who suffer as I did will be cured by your wonderful medicine. J. A. ROWELL, Brentwood, N.H.

Tom Ochiltree on Sound Sleeping.

"I see that Representative Hewitt cannot sleep on account of the barking of dogs," said Col. Tom Ochiltree yesterday, as he reclined in an easy chair at Chamberlin's. "I hardly know how to sympathize with the distinguished gentleman from New York," continued the incarnadined Texan, "for all the dogs in Christendom and Constantinople as well could not keep me awake if I wanted to sleep. Why, sir, at the siege of Petersburg I slept soundly for eight hours right under the carriage of a forty-pound cannon that was being fired every five minutes. Yes, sir; and the gunner said I snored so loudly that he could scarcely hear the orders that were given him between the shots. Why, sir, on one occasion while I was traveling through Guadalupe County, Texas, I stopped at a piece of thick woods at dark, staked my horse, built a fire, and lay down. That's a bad wolf country, and by 10 o'clock there were 2,000 of the savage devils howling around me within fifty feet of my campfire. I spread my blanket on the grass, fixed my saddle for a pillow, and lay down with a navy revolver in each hand. In two minutes I was asleep, dreaming that I was in Paris. When I awoke the next morning the sun was high in the heavens. A neighboring ranchero told me the wolves had howled till daylight. Sixty of them were found dead in the bushes. They had died from prolonged howling, while I had slumbered gently, like a babe, on the breast of my mother earth. Think of that, and then of a Congressman whose nightmares are interrupted by the midnight whining of a greengrocer's dog.

"Why, Tom Benton used to sleep so hard that hotelkeepers had to break in his door to see if he was not dead. Ben Butler cannot ride in a street-car without dozing. In a flying ride down the Shenandoah Valley, Stonewall Jackson, strapped to his saddle, slept for six hours with his horse at a sweeping gallop, a courier holding the guide-rein. Napoleon snatched slumber for a moment as his cavalry thundered by within a few feet of him at Austerlitz. Yet here is a lusty statesman who cannot even enjoy a cat-nap because a sad and lonely cur around the next corner crawls out of his kennel to bay the moon! Gentlemen," continued the rubicund Texan, "I have driven an ox wagon from Sabine Pass to El Paso, I have ridden a steer from Caddo Lake to Bagdad, and I have ridden a mule from the San Jacinto to the C bolo. I have slept in the eternal pine forests of Eastern Texas, with the deadly tarantulas crawling all over me and the rattlesnakes hissing in my ear, but if I have ever lost fifteen minutes' sleep since I quit teething, then, by the horned frog of Texas, I do not know it! Why, gentlemen, there is not a Capital in all Europe in which I am not famed as a sound sleeper. On my last visit to Paris, my friend, the Count de Lafayette, with some associates, got up a device to break my slumber. They rigged up an automatic sheet-iron cat and placed it on my window-sill at the Hotel de Vendome, where it yowled and scratched at the window pane for hours. Well, sir, what do you suppose? I hope that Santa Anna may rise up and make a conquest of Texas if that sheet-iron cat didn't get so disgusted by midnight that it jumped from the window to the ground, ran around the corner, and has never been heard of since!"—Washington Republican.

To Find Gold And Silver.

A well-known contractor and builder now living in this village has recently perfected an instrument by means of which he is able, as he says, to discover the location of hidden gold or silver or of either metal in the shape of ore. He won't talk much about it, because he has not yet obtained his patent. He calls the instrument a mineral rod. To a friend he said:

"I take a small, wide-mouthed bottle and put into it a combination of minerals. Then I insert two slender pieces of whalebone about ten inches long, after which the mouth of the bottle is closed air-tight with wax, and a buckskin cover is drawn over the mouth and tied around the neck of the bottle with a strong cord saturated with shellac varnish. The combination of metals is the secret which will not be divulged even when the patent is obtained."

To operate this rod the inventor takes the ends of the whalebones in his hands so that the bottle is above his hands and his thumbs between the ends of the whalebones. In this position he walks over the supposed location of the precious metals until the right spot is reached. Then the bottle drops down, bending the "whalebones double if the attraction is great.

"There is no magic about it," he said to day. "It is simple enough. Certain combinations of metals produce certain magnetic effects. By experiments I found the combination which would, in my hands, be attracted by gold and silver. A $20 gold piece was placed under a plank without my knowledge to see if it would attract the bottle. I was directed to tell under which portion of another plank it had been placed. The bottle bent down and over toward the right plank while I was twenty feet away. I really believe that it would be attracted by $11.000 in gold placed one mile away if there were no counteracting attraction. I can make a rod to find copper, one to find iron, or one to find hard coal. The rod is good only for the find for which it is intended. When I explained the matter to the editor of The Scientific American some time ago he laughed, and said if it would work in one man's hand it would in another's. My only answer is an actual trial. I can do it. Other men who happen to have as much electricity in them as I have can handle the rod successfully. Theory may laugh at it, but I am ready to do the deed any time."

The inventor is about 65 years old. He has been in the lumber and planing-mill business for years, and has also taken contracts for all sorts of buildings, including wooden bridges.—New York Sun.

A Texas doctor: Dr. Blister is one of those physicians who do not take any nonsense from their patients. One day last week he presented his bill to Mose Schaumburg. "One hundred and fifty tollars!" exclaimed Mose. "Vy, mine Gott, two funerals in dot family vould not haf cost me so much as dot." "It's not too late to have a funeral in the house yet," replied Dr. Blister, drawing an army-size revolver. The physician heels himself whenever a patient feels indisposed to settle.—Texas Siftings.

Sierra Valley, Sierra county, Cal., is one of the prettiest but most isolated places in the State. It has no telegraphic communication with the rest of the world, and can only be reached by a difficult stage ride of twenty-five miles.

The most sagacious sheep in North Carolina is an old ram that belongs to J. A. Adcock, in Sandy Creek Township. He can not only distinguish the persimmon trees from trees of other growth in the pasture, but has learned to get the fruit down from them. This he does by butting the tree. He gets off a suitable distance, stands on his hind legs as if in the attitude of fighting and strikes the tree a vigorous blow with his head. When he has shaken the persimmons off he quietly eats them and goes on his way until his appetite demands more. The wise old ram used to rob the apple trees in the same way.

REMEDIES Cuticura THE GREAT SKIN CURES

Mrs. Smith's Case, and what the Rev. Mr. McKinstry has to say about it.

TO THE PUBLIC: I have been a fearful sufferer for fifteen years, most of the time with what has been called Eczema or Salt Rheum, Psoriasis and Lepra, and the like, and have always been told that there was no cure for me, and have been so discouraged that I had a good deal rather I have been so badly afflicted some time that there was not the small est spot from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet that was not diseased and sored as a carbuncle. It would commence in small white spots, which had a silvery appearance, but were not deep, but if I attempted to be let them, or soon after their first appearance, they would burn and run together and there was a complete dry, red scale, which would become so inflamed as to crack and look fiery and angry, and the burning sensation would be almost intolerable.

I was at times so lame that I could scarcely get about, so I could not drive myself without assistance. I have tried many remedies, and have paid $100 in a single instance to a physician, but have never obtained only temporary relief. Although helped for a time, I was on regaining again to be as badly troubled as ever, and during the winter of 1881 and 1882 I suffered so much as to be entirely discouraged. Last June, however, I was advised by Elder and Mrs. L. C. McKinstry, who are well known in these parts, to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES; and I felt somehow a little courage, from their favorable opinion of them, to try their virtue. About the second week in July, I commenced taking the remedies, and within six weeks I noticed a decided improvement, and until now (Oct 1) I am about as good as any, and my flesh is as fresh of a child

Two thousand socialists gathered in Concordia hall, New York city, on the evening of Feb 2d, and had a riot among themselves. The extremists, headed by Justus Schwab and Herr Most, were determined to prevent the adoption of a resolution denouncing the dynamite outrages, which it was reported the moderate moderate ones to pass, and to this end raised a grand row in the meeting, which was only quelled after the police had broken numberless heads with their clubs. Two officers only were hurt, and they slightly.

The War in the Soudan.

The following despatch was received in London on Feb. 1st from Gen. Lord Wolseley: "Korti, Feb. 1st.—General Earle has advanced his troops to within seven miles of Birti, but will be unable to concentrate them in readiness for an attack upon that place until Feb. 3d, owing to difficulty experienced in navigating the river. The enemy held a strong position at Birti. A deserter from the rebel ranks says the commander at Birti has received a letter from the Emir of Berber, stating that the British have captured Metemmeh, and sent steamers to Khartoum with troops and stores for the garrison there. The Emir strongly advised the commander at Birti to not oppose Gen. Earle's advance, as the British were sending troops across the desert from Kareko to Abu Hamed to suppress the rebels. The latter also reported the names of the sheiks killed at the battle at Abu Klea wells, and stated that a rumor was current, that Hussein Pasha Khalifa had died in the Mahdi's camp. The deserter recently left Berber, where, he says, there are twenty-six survivors of the massacre of Col. Stewart's party, who were wrecked on the Nile in one of Gordon's steamers. The survivors consist of Syrians and Greeks. The deserter says they are not imprisoned, but are not allowed to leave Berber."

O'Donovan Rossa Shot.

Shortly after five o'clock in the afternoon on the 24 inst., O'Donovan Rossa was standing in front of a building on Chambers street, New York city, when he was approached by a handsome young lady dressed in plain clothes. She wore spectacles, and had the appearance of an intellectual-looking school teacher. She drew a five-barreled revolver from her dress pocket, and levelling it at him, fired one shot. Rossa threw his hand above his head, and cried: "I'm shot." He then fell heavily to the sidewalk. The woman fired the remaining bullets in her pistol at the prostrate man, and calmly walked off with the smoking revolver in her hand. City Marshal James McAuley saw the revolver in the woman's hand, arrested and locked her up.

The wounded man was assisted to a hospital, where he was put in the same ward with Capt. Phelan, whom Short attempted to murder in Rossa's office. The ball (for the woman only hit him once) entered Rossa's back near the left shoulder-blade, and the doctors did not consider the wound fatal, nor even dangerous.

When questioned, the woman said she shot Rossa. She gave her name as Yseult Dudley, and said she was a native of England and a hospital nurse by occupation. She described herself as a widow, twenty-four years of age, but she does not appear to be over eighteen. She did not appear to be insane, but is supposed to be, for all that. She decoyed Rossa from his office by means of letters, she pretending to be a rabid dynamiter.

A despatch of Feb. 3d from London says: "The first intelligence of the shooting of Rossa was posted on the newspaper bulletins and sent on the 'tickers' to the clubs at midnight. The news spread with wonderful rapidity throughout the city, and caused the wildest excitement. Crowds of people surrounded the bulletin boards, and at almost every street corner there was a group of men jubilantly discussing the event; passing pedestrians who stopped to hear what the excitement was about were told 'O'Donovan Rossa has been shot.' The response was invariably a cheer, or some other expression of delight; many men became almost frantic in the exuberance of their feelings. Strangers embraced each other effusively, and shook hands with the fervor of life-long friends; they then would lock arms and rush in squads to the bars of the nearest hotels, shouting as they went 'Rossa is shot.' Many thousand toasts were drank to the health and happiness of Miss Dudley, who is lauded as a heroine."

Senator Blair.

Judge Tourgee, author of "The Fool's Errand," recently wrote of Senator Blair of New Hampshire as follows:

He is a hard working senator, and one of the few men in that body who are really an honor to the country which they serve. There are overwise dunces—men who think they know more than the Supreme Being did at their age—who amuse themselves by laughing at his restless energy in ascertaining what he believes to be right and the manly tenacity with which he presses his convictions upon others. He is a great-hearted, earnest, manly man, who bears about him a flower of sincerity which it does one good to find in the midst of the flippancy and pessimism of the day. He is not much of a scold, and only finds fault with wrong-doing; he is over-confident of the good that is in others, and believes that every one who cries "Lord, Lord," is as patriotic and unselfish as himself; but with all the defects that can be enumerated, he is worth a ten-acre-lot full of the best of those who ridicule him. New Hampshire will show herself as dull as her own granite hills themselves, if if she does not return him to his place in the senate.

Pure Cream of Tartar.

The improved method by which it has been made possible to produce pure cream of tartar, has had an important bearing upon the manufacture of baking powder. By the process heretofore generally employed it has been found impossible to remove all impurities, more particularly the tartrate of lime, which remained to such an extent as to greatly impair the quality of the cream of tartar, and to interfere seriously with the strength and wholesomeness of the baking powders into which it entered.

In the new process which is owned by the Royal Baking Powder Company of New York, and exclusively employed in its extensive tartar works, the imported crude grape acid is so treated as to remove all vestige of tartrate of lime or other impurities, giving a product before unknown—a chemically pure cream of tartar.

By the employment of these superior facilities, the Royal Baking Powder company has made the Royal Baking Powder, as the chemists all certify, of the highest possible degree of strength, "absolutely pure" and wholesome, and with an always uniform leavening power. It is for these reasons that the "Royal" never fails to produce bread, biscuit, cakes, etc., that are light, sweet, digestible and wholesome; the eating of which is never followed by indigestion, or any of those physical discomforts attendant upon the partaking of improperly prepared food. In rendering possible the production of a baking powder possessed of these qualifications, the improved method of refining cream of tartar becomes a matter of material importance to the culinary world.

Do Not Delay

delay; if you are sick use Sulphur Bitters.

The Vice President of the Bank of Waverly, Iowa, SMITH P. HUNT, says: I have suffered with Catarrh for the last ten years, and also severe Biliousness and Liver Complaint. Since also my Catarrh grew rapidly worse that my life was despaired of. At that time I weighed one hundred and twenty-five pounds, but grew emaciated so rapidly that I weighed only one hundred and thirty. After consulting the most celebrated physicians in the Western States, and spending many hundred dollars, from which no relief was obtained, I was induced to try your

Sulphur Bitters

Bitters; after taking six bottles my Headache, Vomiting, and all the effects of my Catarrh, Biliousness and Liver Complaint left me, I now weigh one hundred and sixty-five pounds, and consider that Sulphur Bitters have saved my life.

Mrs. HIRAM JORDAN, Lewiston, Me., says: For years I was a terrible sufferer with Scrofula, caused by salivation from the use of mercury and calomel; terrible sores broke out on my body, which twisted my limbs so that I could hardly move. The doctors all gave me up to die. Four bottles of Sulphur Bitters entirely cured me, and I am now able to do all my housework.

out, Sulphur Bitters will cure you.

Miss HELEN JONES, eleven years in charge of the Package Department, Boston & Maine depot, says: I have been a sufferer from Biliousness, Water Brash, and General Debility for several years. Most of the time I felt miserably and life seemed a burden. I was induced to try your Sulphur Bitters, and was completely surprised to see how much better I felt, and I am now enjoying better health than for years before. I shall always keep a supply of Sulphur Bitters on hand, for they have done me a world of good. Sulphur should be kept in every family.

A Boston & Albany R. R. engineer, F. B. CHAMBERLAIN, of Springfield, Mass., says: For years I have suffered from Chronic Bilious attacks, with a narrow escape each time from Typhoid Fever. About two years ago I commenced taking Sulphur Bitters, and since that time I have had no trouble from my old enemy. Living in a malarial district, I have had no trouble from that cause, being a marked exception among my neighbors and I give the credit for that to Sulphur Bitters. It is an invaluable remedy, and one which no household should be without.

Builds Up the Weak.

The wife of the Superintendent of Repairs, Pacific Mills, Lawrence, Mass., Mrs. JOHN BARTON, the eloquent temperance advocate, says: When all other remedies failed, Sulphur Bitters cured me of Dyspepsia and those deathly Sick Headaches.

THE WEATHER.

For New England To-day:

Warmer, partly cloudy weather, local snows.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 8 degrees above zero.

Sky clear.

THE MASQUERADE.

The masquerade dance in the Portsmouth skating rink on Tuesday evening was a grand success, there being about sixty couples in the grand march, and a large number of spectators. There were many handsome costumes, as well as comic ones; one of the best assumptions was the "Eureka Bakery," a loose white suit that was ornamented all over with "hard tack," and strings of crackers. Masks were removed shortly before eleven o'clock, and the lookers-on were greatly amused at seeing how hopeless y wide of the mark they had usually been in guessing at the identity of the masqueraders.

THE DIME SHOW.

Fred Williams' "Birds of a Feather," who had a good audience in Music hall Monday evening, had a still larger one Tuesday evening, including quite a good proportion of those who saw the first performance; and no doubt the masquerade dance kept a hundred or two away from the hall. The entertainment was at least as good as on the first night, and Mora a greater favorite than ever.

The "Birds of a Feather" will close their engagement here with the performance of this evening, and those who fail to attend will miss a capital evening's amusement, to be had at a trifling cost.

NO SUPPER YET.

A large party of ladies and gentlemen who had made arrangements to go to Dover point Monday evening, postponed the excursion on account of the inclement weather. Tuesday evening they made a start in a four-horse team, a two-horse team and a number of single teams, and progressed as far as the DeRochemont place on Newington road, where the "theft" of the procession got stuck in the snow-drifts, and could not turn around until shovels were procured to clear away. The excursionists arrived back about nine o'clock, and the Dover point supper is not yet eaten.

Hon. Marcellus Eldredge was out on the streets last Saturday with his old trotting mare Lady Franklin, now over thirty-five years old; and she made as good a show, and got over the ground as fast, as almost any of the other horses.

The "string-team" under charge of Mr. Frank A. Garland, highway surveyor in district one, was in as far as the north mill bridge again on Tuesday with the snow-plow from Gravelly Ridge, there being thirteen horses in the line this time. Mr. Garland reports the drifts as being frequent and very solid, the snow-plow being packed about as closely as he ever saw it.

The wind, which blew a heavy gale from the northwest on Monday, abated somewhat on Tuesday, but the weather continued very cold. What few people came into town from the country with sleighs reported heavy drifts in many places, in some instances to the height of several feet above the fences along the roadsides.

Lieut. Col. C. D. Hebb, U. S. M. C., who has been in command of the marine barracks at the Boston navy yard for the past five years, was detached on Monday, Feb. 2d, and ordered to command the barracks at the Portsmouth navy yard. Lieut. Col. J. L. Broome, for some time past in command of the marine guard at this yard, relieved Col. Hebb of the command at the Boston yard.

The pay of the laborers in the department of steam engineering on the navy yard has been reduced twenty-five cents per day.

Commodore Oscar C. Badger, who has been commandant of the Boston navy yard for several years past, will be relieved on the 15th inst., and placed on the retired list by limitation of age, as he will on that date reach the age of sixty-two years.

Hon. Daniel Marcy and wife started for New Orleans on Tuesday, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Shirley B. Cunningham, and her son.

Extra steak cod-fish in moderate quantities were selling on Tuesday at $3.80 per hundred pounds.

Sixteen suits of sails are stored at Charles S. Downe's sail-loft, upon which repairs have been and will continue to be made until warm weather sets in. A new foresail is being made there for the schooner Hattie Lewis, Capt. Brewster, now laid up here.

The schooner Grace K. Green, at Baltimore, is loaded with 650 tons of guano for Wilmington, N. C.

The schooner Albert Woodbury, Downs master, as the result of her last trip of two days shared $20 each to her crew for fish sold here to Messrs. Randall & Caswell, the pioneers of the present fish trade of Portsmouth. She carries a crew of ten picked men, who are accounted to be the crack fishing crew of the whole coast.

The most of the fishing fleet sailed on Tuesday for their trawls. The weather continued to be very cold, the wind blowing a lively breeze from the northwest. Although cold for the men on board the vessels, where they can warm themselves frequently below, it is perhaps colder work for the men engaged on shore preparing the fish.

About a dozen fishing vessels arrived on Tuesday forenoon with good fares, which were sold here, the ruling price being $3 per hundred pounds. It was estimated that 100,000 lbs. were brought in during the twenty-four hours ending Tuesday noon.

The schooner Charlie Hanley, Stearns master, reported in the lower harbor on the 3d inst., has been three weeks on the voyage from Rockland to Boston. The schooner Maggie J. Chadwick, Johnson master, bound from Portland for Baltimore, and the Minnie C. Taylor, Doughty master, from Portland for New Bedford, have been in the lower harbor since Jan. 24th; both have had their sails repaired since arrival, they having been much damaged in the severe blow of Jan. 23d, shortly after leaving Portland.

Fred LaFleur and Clara M. Goodwin, of Saco, the latter being only sixteen years old, who stole a team from B. F. Hamilton of Saco some months ago, and were arrested in Dover, N. H., were on Saturday last sentenced by the court at Saco to the state prison. La Fleur for five years and the girl for one year.

Physician, Heal Thyself.

The writer of this, now only a middle-aged man, has vividly impressed upon his mind the view of colored individuals perched up on high in the rear gallery of the old North (Orthodox) church of Portsmouth, and not allowed to sit anywhere else. At present no such thing can be observed; yet we read continually of decent colored individuals, American citizens, born of generations for two centuries or more within the limits of the present United States, guilty of no other offence than having skins of a dark hue, violently expelled from public places of resort and entertainment within the so-called New England states. Then again we hear of outrages against negroes in the late slave states, where they are so numerous as to be able to protect themselves more or less, by law or otherwise, as freemen. But now one who has lived for years in the south knows that there are there colored policemen, colored justices of the peace, and colored members of the legislatures; sometimes even the employment of colored laborers works disadvantageously against the white workmen, because the employers say "We are used to them, and do not want any other people about us." Moreover, since they have become enfranchised, the universal desire is that they should be educated, so that they may be able to bear the responsibilities of citizenship. Very generally those of African persuasion like to have churches of their own, with a black preacher; but they never exclude any decent white man who drops in to see them, and the "Reverend" is entertained by the nearest rich white man, who appreciates his services. Now, pray, let all criticisms in this enlightened portion of the Great Republic be suspended until its inhabitants can overcome their own prejudices. VIATOR.

The Raymond Excursions to California.

The transcontinental excursions under the management of Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb are deservedly very popular. They furnish a greater amount of comfort and luxury than the individual tourist can provide for himself, and provide also, many special sight-seeing advantages through special train service, stops at interesting points, etc. The enterprising firm makes its fifth annual announcement of spring trips to Colorado and California, and it is more inviting than ever before. There are to be three dates of departure—April 16th, 23d and 30th,—each party following the same programme. The outward journey will be by the southern route, through Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and southern California, and the homeward one by the central route, through Nevada, Utah, Wyoming and Nebraska. A detour of over one thousand miles will be made in Colorado in order to visit some of the most wonderful scenic points in the Rocky mountains. A circular gives full details of these magnificent excursions, and this may be had by addressing W. Raymond, No. 240 Washington street, Boston.

The Providence Journal remarks that "It is fair to the British aristocracy to say that, if they enjoy the luxuries, they do not shirk the dangers of high position. The number of titled and untitled names from the upper walks of English society, in the list of the killed and wounded in Egypt, explains to a large extent the strong influence of the aristocracy among the people of Great Britain. Those who hate the lord cannot help admiring the here."

In 1855 Andrew Jackson Davis, the noted spiritualist, married Mrs. F. F. Love. The woman's husband had previously got a divorce from her, the court enjoining her from marrying again. Recently Davis sued in a New York court to have the marriage declared null, which has been granted.

A dose of Vegetine taken just before going to bed, insures a comfortable night's rest to the nervous sufferer.

The proprietor of the Arlington hotel in Washington on the 2d inst. received a letter from Private Secretary Lamont, definitely engaging rooms for the president-elect, his three sisters and brother, and for Col. Lamont and family. The time for their arrival was designated as March 2d, but it is thought they may arrive a day or two sooner. Mr. Cleveland will go to the Arlington like any other guest, and pay his own bills.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA
Has "decided" claims upon the public. This is positively proven by the immense good it has done to those who have been cured of diseases from which they have suffered in agony for years, as verified by the published testimonials, every one of which is a positive fact.

CHELSEA, VT., Feb. 24, 1879.
MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.:
The 6th day of last June I was taken sick with a swelling on my right foot, and with an awful pain. The swelling went all over me. My face was swelled so that I could with difficulty see out of my eyes, and I broke out over the whole surface of my body; my right foot up to my knee was one raw, festering mass, and my ankle and foot so lame and sore I could not step on it, and it would run so as to wet a bandage through in an hour. In this condition Mr. W. F. Hood of the firm of A. H. Hood & Son, druggists, of this town, handed me a bottle of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and told me to take it. I did so, and by the time I had taken one bottle I found that it was doing me good. I have since taken five bottles more. After I had taken three bottles my soreness began to leave me, and I have been growing better every day, so that today I can walk without going lame. I have no soreness in my ankle and it has healed all up, and does not run at all. I owe my recovery to your Sarsaparilla. I write this to let you know that I think it deserves the confidence of the public, especially those who are troubled with humors.
Yours most truly,
JOSIAH PITKIN.

P. S. Every person that saw me said that I never would get over my lameness without having a running sore on my ankle, but thank God I have. J. P.

No other Sarsaparilla has such a sharpening effect upon the appetite. No other preparation tones and strengthens the digestive organs like HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

Price one dollar, or six bottles for five dollars. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO. Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

LIVES OF PAIN

RHEUMATISM and NEURALGIA have long enough run riot in the human system.

They have tormented the human family and defied the medical faculty; from time out of memory they have corrupted the blood, demoralized the joints, vexed the nerves, agonized the muscles and racked the brain with wearying pain.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is the enemy of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, repairs their damage, renews the blood, eases the joints, calms the nerves, soothes the muscles, comes to rest and prayer to the troubled brain, and ensures delightful sleep.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is a new remedy, but it has been abundantly tried. From far and near come testimonials from well-known persons who had long been sufferers. It has turned their disease out, it has cured them. That is all,—and that is enough.

"ATHLOPHOROS" can do for you what it has done for those sufferers. It can drive out your Rheumatism and Neuralgia, and will do so if you give it a fair trial.

"ATHLOPHOROS" has by this time had such a good trial all over the country that its true work is known, and its true character proven.

"ATHLOPHOROS" means "Prize-Bearer;" "Victor;" "Conqueror." It carries off the prize as VICTOR over the attacks of these terrible maladies, and CONQUEROR of the frightful agonies their victims have endured. Not a mere temporary relief, but a permanent, enduring, and triumphant cure.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but write at once to us as directed.

The First Keen Twinge.

As the season advances, the pains and aches by which rheumatism makes itself known, are experienced after every exposure. It is not claimed that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a specific for rheumatism—we doubt if there is, or can be, such a remedy. ON THE ENGINE.

Running a Locomotive While Deathly Sick—something the Physicians Did Not Know—A Physician Saves an Engineer.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River branch train between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was caused by my irregular habits of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes my head would snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fists. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as though it were a great raw and sore surface, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1876 there was had the heavy centennial travel, the constant air brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next spring when I grew so much worse that I could virtually stop rooting, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this critical time I read DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pains left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good, and it drove every ache, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night, a while ago, John Clayton, an engineer who runs the main line boat train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," said, "cheer up. I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, filled his head full and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Dan," he said, "that was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, Rondout, N. Y." said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, abroad, in all climates everywhere.

When Howard wrote: "I find a pity hangs upon his breast," the fellow had evidently a cold and had not yet been informed that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup was the only safe remedy.

—A justice of the peace in Oglethorpe, Georgia, was paid for marrying a couple by the bride playing him two tunes on a guitar.

The most stubborn cases of dyspepsia and sick headache yield to the regulating and toning influences of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it.

—A horse thief who got into a barn in Knoxville, after a trotting horse, had his leg broken by a kick, and now wants to sue the owner of the horse for damages.

Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer is a sure and safe remedy for coughs, colds, diphtheria and pneumonia. Before the public 40 years. Has saved thousands of lives. 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per bottle. Try it.

—"Talk is cheap" loses its significance when applied to conversation through telephones rented at $36 a year.

I was a non-believer in patent medicines, but having experienced marked relief from nasal catarrh and hoarseness by the use of Ely's Cream Balm, I can recommend it to those suffering from this loathsome complaint and to those afflicted with hoarseness or stoppage of the throat so annoying to singers and clergymen.—Louis E. Phillips, 1428 N. Y. Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C. Price 50 cents.

—"General" Booth, of the Salvation Army, recently advertised for a clerk who "must write shorthand and be fully saved." The world is a little shorthanded of men of that class.

Commence the Year Aright.

Don't make too many resolutions, but hold on like grim death to those you do make. If your physical system is out of order you should attend to that at once; for its no use trying to keep a stiff upper lip when your kidneys or liver are taking the courage out of you. If you have really made up your mind to turn over a new leaf, commence the year by taking a thorough course of the celebrated Kidney-Wort. Thousands of people testify to its good effects for kidney diseases, biliousness, piles, constipation, etc.

—A Kansas woman gives every tramp who comes to her house a square meal, with a cigar and a cup of coffee for dessert. You would naturally suppose that she would be overrun with the lazy beggars, but the Somerville Journal explains it by saying that "she imports her cigars from Connecticut, and no tramp ever calls a second time."

All in the Line of Nature.

There is nothing in the line of magic or mystery about that wonderful and popular medicine, Parker's Tonic. It is simply the best and most scientific combination possible of the essential principals of those vegetable curatives which act powerfully and directly on the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood. But there neither is, nor will be, any successful imitation of it. It is all the time curing those who had despaired of ever getting well. For yourself, your wife and children.

Over-Population in Germany.

Germany is growing fast a pre-eminently industrial country, for which the export of its productions is the condition of providing the population with food and raw materials, and at the same time her population is increasing more rapidly than that of any other country. The average yearly increase on 1,000 inhabitants since 1831 was in France 26, in Great Britain 101, in Germany 115, notwithstanding a large emigration. The population of the German empire in its present limits was in round numbers 25,000,000 in 1816, it is now 45,250,000, while 3,500,000 have emigrated.

This increase results almost exclusively from the excess of births over deaths, while the feeble growth of the French population is still partly due to immigration, which proves that the increase of wealth is stronger than that of the people. In Germany it is the reverse, the amount of expenditure caused by the acceding numbers is not equaled by a correspondingly growing income. In Prussia the number of those exempt from all direct taxes—i. e., whose income did not exceed £25, had risen within five years by 1,500,000; it was more than 7,000,000 in 1882; the statistics of other Germany states show a similar result, the poor rates have increased everywhere in an alarmi g proportion, and the number of vagrants and tramps have become a general plague.

Our industrial production suffers from chronic plethora, its net produce does not correspond to its immense expansion, still less is a real amelioration of the situation of the working classes to be discerned. The supply of labor generally exceeds the demand; consequently wages do not rise, and the lower strata of the population can absorb comparatively little of the mass of products which are daily thrown upon the market, because the scantiness of their earnings does not allow them to satisfy correspondingly their wants. But in the higher classes, also, all the callings are overcrowded, the increase of academical students has been abnormal and far exceeding the demand, and a considerable part of this surplus of trained forces, finding no employment, perishes or launches into adventures. In short everywhere we find an enhanced struggle for existence, which engenders dissatisfaction and hopelessness, and furnishes social democracy with fresh recruits.

It is this overpopulation which is the source of the large German emigration. True, without it the pressure would still be stronger, yet the opinion which would consider this outflow as an unmixed boon is erroneous. Germany has comparatively more children under 15 years than any other country—16,016,045 in a population of 45,500,000—and they represent unprotective elements to be sustained by the rest. With the emigration it is very different; 44.8 per cent. of it belongs to persons of 20 to 40 years; thus the same number of emigrants represents a much larger sum of force of labor than the corresponding number of the average population. We educate at a great expense productive forces in order to lose them when they are grown to maturity, and the foreign countries to which they go reap what we have sown.—Dr. Geffcken in the Contemporary Review.

An Armless Woman's Feats.

"Now, let me show you what I can do. Dinner'll be here in just a moment. Thread a needle! Of course I can; see?" and suiting the action to the word, Mrs. Thomson picked up a fine needle with the large and second toes of the right foot, held it tightly between the toes, and taking some yarn in her left oot, rolled the end deftly on a small smooth stone, put it to her mouth by bending her body almost double, and deftly inserted the yarn in the needle, more easily than a bashful threads a large needle with very fine thread. Next she took a handsome lady on which she was crocheting and with remarkable deftness finished the work with her right foot while with her left she guided the needle in and out, catching the threads with ease and fashioning the figure as fast as "my lady" in the sitting-room does with her soft hands. Her right eye giving her some trouble during this work, she deftly pushed back the spectacles which she wore and with the second toe rubbed the eyelid. Then she bent forward and brushed back a few stray hairs from her forehead. Taking up the pen between the large and second toe of her left foot, and holding a slip of paper with her right toes, she wrote in a feminine hand, small and rather neat: "He that lends to all shows good will but little sense. Ann E. L. Thomson. Born without arms, Dec. 23, 1829, Ga." This written, she put the pen down, took up a blotter with her left foot, placed it over the writing, and dried the ink. Taking up a pair of large scissors with the large and third toe of the left foot, she cleverly cut off the portion of the paper on which she had written.

"Here comes my dinner. Now you can see me eat—not that it's such a sight, but you may find it odd to see one eat with toes instead of fingers."

Mr. Thomson spread out a napkin on the platform, and placed on it the dinner of a person in good health. Mrs. Thomson turned around in her seat, took a cup of tea in her foot, stirred it up with a spoon held in her right toes, and half bending, half raising the cup to her lips, drank off the tea and placed the cup on the platform. Then she grasped a flat-handled silver knife in her left toes, caught a fork between the first two toes of her right foot, and cut some steak into pieces. Part of it was tough, but she had no more trouble in cutting it than an ordinary person would have. A piece of meat held on the fork was transferred to her mouth, and was followed by a piece of bread broken from a slice by her large and second toe.

As soon as she had finished this novel meal, Mrs. Thomson continued: "I forgot to tell you about my schooling. O, yes, I went to school. The pupils were kind, and I had a little raised platform for my use. I held my books in my toes, and read and studied as well as the rest of the girls. I held a slate in my right foot and the pencil between the toes of my left and managed to figure as well as anyone. My right limb is shorter than my left, and I learned to write with my left foot, as you have seen. I learned all that was taught in the common schools of Georgia before the war."—Detroit Times.

The following story is told of the Dowager Lady Lytton: Happening to call at the house of an artist friend of hers the day before the funeral of the old Duke of Wellington, the conversation naturally turned upon the event of the following day and the crowds which were expected to throng the public streets. "You will have to be up early, Lady Lytton," said the painter in question, "if you mean to look on at the procession. Are you prepared to get up at 5 o'clock or the sake of seeing the great man's funeral?" "Not I, indeed," answered the lady with an unpleasantly significant smile. "There is only one man in the world whose funeral I would get up as early as that to see."

A Texas cattleman married a refined young lady belonging to the best society of Dallas. A friend meeting him shortly after his marriage congratulated him on his happy fortune. "It's all right, but I had to make sacrifices," replied the newly-made husband, shaking his head. "What sacrifices?" "I've had to give up going to bed with my boots and spurs on when I come home tired."—Texas Siftings.

The Champion's Friend.

England's champion bicyclist, Mr. John Rolfe, says, that in the championship contest, riding eight hours each for six days, and one hundred miles against time just after, he is positive that St. Jacobs Oil by its wonderful effects in training and racing, enabled him to win both races. He calls it a boon companion and recommends it to all athletes, and would not be without it. Fifty cents.

He appealed, and on Saturday morning last Judge Barker sentenced him to the house of correction for one year. And the last state of that man was worse than the first.

The Female Assassin.

Mrs. Dudley, the attempted murderer of O'Donovan Rossa, in conversation with a reporter on the 3d inst. said:

I am an Englishwoman, though my mother was Irish. Most of my kindred are English. I certainly intended to kill Rossa, and I am sorry I did not succeed. He begged for mercy. After I fired the first shot he cried out: "For God's sake do not kill me." I was not acting as an agent for others. This man is the chief instrument here by which funds were raised for murdering helpless women and children in England, and I felt that it was only justice that he should fall by a woman's hand. I am only sorry I did not succeed.

Evidence has been discovered that she is insane, and that she was once held by a London court for attempting to commit suicide.

News and Notes.

The newspaper reporter seems to have reached his highest development in Vienna, where an insult offered to one of them in the Reichsrath was resented by the refusal of the local newspapers, as well as the foreign and provincial journals, to report the proceedings. An apology by the president was considered inadequate. Meanwhile, parliamentary eloquence labors under a terrible disadvantage.

The barque Veronica, which arrived at New Bedford on the 2d inst., when about five days out from St. Michaels, bound to Madeira, experienced a shock of earthquake. The surgeon says he was awakened about two o'clock in the morning by the shock, and thinking the vessel had struck, rushed on deck; found all hands somewhat excited, and at a loss to account for the disturbance. The Veronica seemed to grind over a reef, with heavy lifting, then being dropped heavily. This sensation lasted several minutes, and a consultation being held it was finally decided that they were passing through an earthquake disturbance. The night was fine and light and the vessel had all her sails set, and the sea was calm both before and after the shock, with no tidal wave. The shock was also felt at Fayal and Madeira. The British mail steamer Funchal, from Madeira for Western islands, stopped her engines and waited until daylight.

The secretary of war has directed that no names of persons shall be placed on the maps of discoveries made by the Greely expedition, except those of the members of the expedition, and Mrs. Greely and "Mary Murray" Lockwood, the favorite sister of Lieutenant Lockwood, when they occur as the names of places in the record from which the maps are made.

The sheriff of Kendall county, Ill., arrived at the state penitentiary Feb. 2d, having in charge four prisoners, sentenced to prison from that county. Among them is one named William Russell, aged twenty-four years, convicted of larceny, and sentenced for a year. The sheriff had to carry Russell into the prison on his back, for the reason that the convict had no legs and but one arm; both legs had been amputated close to the trunk, and the left arm to the shoulder joint. This remnant of a man was deposited on the stone floor of the prison guardroom, and the sheriff produced his mittimus, showing that Russell was sentenced by Judge Charles Killum, of Yorkville, to be confined in the penitentiary for the term of one year, at hard labor. The sight of this poor wretch, in his utterly helpless condition, as he was lugged into the prison on the back of the brawny sheriff, called forth many expressions of disgust from the prison keepers. Russell lost his legs and one arm in a railroad accident. He was convicted of stealing a rowboat from a man at Plano, Ill., and selling it at Peoria. Russell's condition is such that he will need the services of an able-bodied convict to take care of him while he is "at hard labor" in prison.

At White Store, near Bristol, Va., Henry Cole, aged seventeen years, eloped with Lucy Spies, aged fourteen, and married her in Bristol, Jan. 31st. The pair were accompanied by two young friends of the groom's, but among the crowd they could only raise fourteen cents, while the town clerk refused to issue a license until he was paid the regular fee of $1; this postponed the ceremony till evening, when the young men broke into a smoke house, stole a lot of bacon and sold it, and the ceremony was shortly completed. Two hours later the entire party were arrested.

Queen Victoria has conferred upon Constable Cole, who was so severely injured in the discharge of his duty at the time of the explosion at Westminster hall, the order of the Albert medal.

Mrs. Jessie Benton Fremont, in her "Souvenir" in the February Wide Awake, gives some amusing reminiscences of the troubles of the ladies of the cabinet in Washington over the old question of precedence.

Mrs. Mary Griffith, an aunt of General Grant on the mother's side, died at Batavia, Ohio, a few days ago, at the age of ninety-two years.

The Boss Cart.

A humane blacksmith in Nevada has built a cart with the axles bent so that the horse is directly under it, sheltered from sun and wind. The driver sits in front, and other passengers sideways on seats running lengthwise over the horse's back. There is, of course, a steering apparatus, and also an arrangement with a wide band under the horse, so that in going down hill that animal can be lifted bodily off his feet and given rest, while the whole outfit "coasts." And the lifting machine comes into use if the horse tries to run away, as a turn of the crank leaves him working his legs in the air to no purpose whatever.

Don't Look Like a Wreck:

"When a man is going down hill everybody is ready to give him a kick." Yes, that is so. It is sad, but natural. Why, many a man and woman, seeking employment, would have got it if their hair hadn't been so thin and gray. One bottle of Parker's Hair Balsam is then the best investment. It stops falling hair, promotes new growth and restores color. Clean, highly perfumed, not a dye. A great improvement over any similar preparation, and sold at the low price of 50c.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Has "decided" claims upon the public. This is positively proven by the immense good it has done to those who have been cured, of diseases from which they have suffered intensely for years, as testified to by the published testimonials. All Every one of which is a positive fact.

Chelsea, Vt., Feb. 24, 1879.

Messrs. C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: The 6th day of last June I was taken sick with a swelling on my right foot, and with an awful pain. The swelling went all over me. My face was swelled so that I could with difficulty see out of my eyes, and I broke out over the whole surface of my body; my right foot up to my knee was one raw, boiling mass, and my ankle and foot so lame and sore I could not step on it, and it would run so as to wet a bandage through in an hour. In this condition Mr. W. F. Hood (of the firm of A. H. Hood & Son, druggists, of this town), handed me a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and told me to take it. I did so, and by the time I had taken one bottle I found that it was doing me good. I have since taken five bottles more. After I had taken three bottles my soreness began to leave me, and I have been growing better every day, so that to-day I can walk without going lame. I have no soreness in my ankle and it has healed all up, and does not run at all. I owe my recovery to your Sarsaparilla. I write this to let you know that I think it deserves the confidence of the public, especially those who are troubled with humors.

Yours most truly,

JOSIAH PITKIN.

P. S. Every person that saw me said that I never would get over my lameness without having a running sore on my ankle; but thank God I have. J. P.

No other Sarsaparilla has such a sharpening effect upon the appetite. No other preparation tones and strengthens the digestive organs like Hood's Sarsaparilla.

POLICE COURT -- BATCHELDER J

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 4th.

After a rest of a week, court was opened on Wednesday for the trial of Henry Barrett on a charge of being a common drunkard. He was ordered to Brentwood for sixty days, and to pay costs.

THE DIME SHOW.

The Birds of a Feather finished their three-days' engagement at Music hall on Wednesday evening, the 4th inst., and had a good audience notwithstanding the storm. Circumstances have been somewhat against the "Birds" during their stay here, the weather having been a very poor article all the time, and a big masquerade dance having been held one evening, no doubt drawing away many from Music hall; yet the engagement has been successful, the attendance having been good every evening.

The show is a "cheap" one, but in price only, the entertainment afforded being superior to what is offered by many companies which charge the old "war prices." There is fun all through the programme,—good, clean fun at that,—and it is well served up by the performers, every one of whom is capable of pleasing and evidently strives to please, and succeeded in pleasing the audiences here, if continuous laughter and liberal applause indicate pleasure. The "comedy sunbeam, Mora," was an especial favorite from the first, and all were well received.

THE MASQUERADE.

The following list of the characters represented by the masqueraders at the Portsmouth skating rink on the evening of the 3d inst. we take from the Times; it is as complete as was obtainable, though of course omissions are unavoidable:

The grand march was led by Mr. George H. Sanderson and Miss Alice Perkins. Very satisfactory music was furnished by Lord & Tasker's orchestra, of Dover.

THE "BUNCH OF KEYS."

Reserved seat tickets for the "Bunch of Keys," which will unlock the stores of fun in Music hall on Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week, can now be procured at Mr. M. Goodrich's bookstore. Of this play the St. Paul Pioneer Press says:

This is one of the best entainments of the kind which our city has had the good fortune to witness for some time. Miss Anderson, the star, was excellent. Her rendition of the character of Teddy was well received, and her singing was admired by all. F. H. Frear, as Scuggs, was good, and his comedy acting was much admired by the audience. Arthur Dunn, as Grimes, was splendid; he captured the audience at once, and kept it in an excellent spirit throughout the whole entertainment. Miss Jennie Dunn, as Dolly, attracted attention by her fine acting and singing. The company is a thoroughly well balanced one in every particular.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., Feb. 3d.

Geo. W. Muchmore, Jr., son of Geo. W. Muchmore, foreman blacksmith in the construction department at the navy yard, having passed a successful examination has been given a position as apprentice in the construction joiner shop at the yard.

Mr. Joseph S. Grant has commenced cutting and harvesting his ice-crop, which is of a good quality and thickness.

Mr. Ephriam C. Cook and wife, of Hampton, N. H., were in town last week on a short visit at Mr. Albert S. Wilson's.

The recent heavy snows and high winds have filled the roads in the country full even to overflowing, and it requires the persistent efforts of every available man or boy that can be mustered out to keep the highways open to travel.

Joseph T. Mason, of Biddeford, District Deputy of York District, I. O. G. T., will visit lodges in Kittery and York this month; he will be accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Ella H. Mason, Past Grand Worthy Vice Templar of the Grand Lodge of Maine. A union meeting will probably be held with Whipple Lodge, at the village. SUB ROSA.

The whole number of births recorded in this city during the month of January was seven, while three times that number of burial permits were issued. Of the eleven couples united in marriage, in only four cases did both the contracting parties belong in this city; in one other case the bride belonged here.

Hon. Frank Jones arrived home from Washington—that is, if he has been in Washington as "the papers" have stated—on Wednesday forenoon.

The house No. 5 Dennett street was sold by auction at noon on the 4th inst., and was bought by William P. Maloon for $850.

A grand vocal and instrumental concert of the highest order of artistic excellence, complimentary to Miss Florence P. Whidden of this city, will be given by the celebrated pianist, Prof. John Orth, assisted by Mrs. E. Humphrey Allen, the superb soprano, and the renowned Temple Quartette, all of Boston, at Music hall on Thursday evening, Feb. 26th. Miss Whidden will take part in the programme, and give her many friends here an opportunity to judge of her remarkable proficiency on the piano.

Capt. Daniel W. Marden, who has for many years commanded the navy yard ferry steamer Emerald, left on Wednesday morning of this week for California, on account of the serious illness of some of his relatives there, and expects to be absent about three weeks, during which time Capt. H. W. Trefethen, of the steamer Mystic, will have charge of the Emerald, the Mystic in the meantime being commanded by Capt Wm. W. Locke of Kittery, an experienced steamboat skipper and river pilot, and a general favorite with the patrons of the steamer.

There was some floating ice in the river on Wednesday, 4th inst., but it was not heavy enough to be an impediment to navigation.

The north mill, which had been closed several days on account of the extreme cold, was reopened for grinding on Wednesday.

S. O. V., Military Ball.

The next ball is the Sons of Veterans military colonial, which comes on the evening of the 17th, at the skating rink. People from the Essex Costume Parlors of Boston will furnish costumes, representing military and other styles of dress in the present as well as the colonial period. The Salem band, 12 pieces, Ralph Reinewald leader, has been secured and will give a concert from 7:45 to 8:45, of elegant selections and solos.

LIVES OF PAIN

RHEUMATISM and NEURALGIA have long enough run riot in the human system.

They have tormented the human family and defied the medical faculty from time out of memory they have corrupted the blood, demoralized the joints, vexed the nerves, agonized the muscles and racked the brain with wearing pain.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is the enemy of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, repairs their damages, renews the blood, eases the joints, calms the nerves, soothes the muscles, gives rest and peace to the troubled brain, and ensures delightful sleep.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is a new remedy, but it has been abundantly tried. From far and near come testimonials from well-known persons who had long been sufferers. It has turned their diseases out. It has cured them. That is all,—and that is enough.

"ATHLOPHOROS" can do for you what it has done for these sufferers. It can drive out your Rheumatism and Neuralgia, and will do so if you give it a fair trial.

"ATHLOPHOROS" has by this time had such a good trial all over the country that its true worth is known, and its true character proved.

"ATHLOPHOROS" means "Prize-Bearer;" "Victor;" "Conqueror." It carries off the prize as Victor over the attacks of these terrible maladies, and Conqueror of the frightful agonies their victims have endured. Not a mere temporary relief, but a permanent, enduring, and triumphant cure.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

It must have been a terrible state of affairs, that caused the Psalmist to ask: "Who can stand before his cold?" In his day the remedies were few and doubtful; how much happier should this generation be that has a household remedy, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup; so wonderful has been its cures that millions rise up and call it "blessed."

—Little Polly has a neighbor who has a little donkey team, in which she often has a nice ride. One day, as she was sitting with her mamma, the donkey was heard to bray, and Polly, looking up, says, "Mamma, I like the donkey, but I don't like to hear him donk."

Her Dying Request.—Lily is very ill—dangerously ill. Her mamma is very anxious about her. "Say, mamma, am I going to die?" asked the little patient. "Hush, child; you surely don't want to break your poor mother's heart?" "No, mamma; only, if I die, I want you to put all my dolls into mourning!"—Sondagsblad.

Parson Whangdoodle Baxter distinguished himself once more at the funeral of a aged colored man: "Our discased brudder was married foah times during his life," said Whangdoodle; "but only one ob de widows am so fortunate as to be able to survive him long enough to be present on dis heah solemnious occasion."—Texas Siftings.

An inspector, who had been explaining to a class that the land of the world was not continuous, said to the boy who happened to be standing nearest to him: "Now, could your father walk round the world?" "No, sir," was promptly answered. "Why not?" "Because he is old," was the altogether unlooked for response.—All the Year Round.

A man went fishing in the Minnesota River recently, and hooked a large wall-eyed pike. He began to play him, when the fish, running under the boat, capsized it, got in himself, and, putting on the man's overcoat, started for New Orleans. This shows the danger of going fishing in a state where the whisky is stronger than the veracity of the inhabitants.—Burlington Free Press.

He had just had his hair cut and returned home. "Hum!" he says, after examining him elf in the glass critically, "I guess I shall have to go back to the barber's shop again. This'll never do!" "What's the matter?" says his wife; "has he cut your hair too long?" "No, confound him; he's so one and cut it too short. I'll make him cut it over again."—French Paper.

There are a number of very eligible young men of Pembina County, Dakota, but no young women. Although it is not spring, the young men's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love, and, pooling their issues, they have deputed one of their number to go to Boston and secure wives for the rest. It is commendable for the young men to take unto themselves wives, but why go to Boston?

The Tartary young man who breaks his engagement with his girl does so at his peril, for then he has to egg-go himself to the next older sister. If anything happens to her, he has to take the next one, and so on down. The family that matrimonially catches a Tartar doesn't let go its grip until grim death has been very busy, for Tartar families are always blessed with a large bevy of girls.—Waterbury American.

Stranger than Fiction

Are the records of some of the cures of consumption effected by that most wonderful remedy—Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Thousands of grateful men and women, who have been snatched almost from the very jaws of death, can testify that consumption, in its early stages, is no longer incurable. The discovery has no equal as a pectoral and alterative, and the most obstinate affections of the throat and lungs yield to its power. All druggists.

—In a certain town in New Hampshire a minister being on trial for a grave offence, one of his brethren was so anxious to clear him that he said to the judge, "May it please your honor, I had a dream last night, and saw two angels who declared the prisoner to be not guilty." "Very good," returned the judge; "cause them to appear as witnesses, and I'll swear them."

After Diphtheria.

Diphtheria is a terrible disease, requiring the greatest medical skill to effect a complete cure. Even when its power is broken, it clings to the patient with great persistency, and often leaves the system poisoned and prostrated. Just here Hood's Sarsaparilla does a vast amount of good, expelling impurities from the blood, giving it richness and vitality, while it renovates and strengthens the system.

—About the most sensible thing done in the way of celebrating the majority of Prince Albert Victor was the action of the mayor of Newcastle-on-Tyne. He had intended to give an entertainment in honor of the event, but, in consequence of the acute distress prevailing in the town, he sent £100 to the relief fund instead.

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

For the Cure of Kidney and Liver Complaints, Constipation, and all disorders arising from an impure state of the BLOOD.

To women who suffer from any of the ills peculiar to their sex it is an unfailing friend. All Druggists. One Dollar a bottle, or address Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

ON THE ENGINE.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River branch between Fall River and Lowell, stopping in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was due partly to irregular habits of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes I would sleep like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fists. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as though it were a great raw and sore surface, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1878 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the constant jar brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next year, when I grew so much worse that I could virtually do nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this critical time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pain left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good and it is entirely free from opiates and discomfort. I feel no ill effects from it, and I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night, a while ago, John Clayton, an engineer who runs the main line boat train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," said, "cheer up. I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, filled his head full and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Dan," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY," I replied. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of the ills arising from impure blood and ronsing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office—everywhere.

We understand that sealskin coats are going out of style, and in consequence, colds are increasing among the fair sex. How fortunate there is such a remedy as Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup!

—Dr. Warren, of the Boston University, declares his firm belief that the Garden of Eden was situated at the north pole. Come to think of it, the theory is quite plausible. It certainly was a cold day when Adam got bounced.

The combination, proportion and process in preparing Hood's Sarsaparilla, are peculiar to this medicine, and unknown to others.

—There used to be a barroom in Boston called "The Office." It was very convenient for business men to refer to when asked by their wives where they had been staying so late at night, and many downright lies were prevented in consequence.

Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer is a sure and safe remedy for coughs, colds, diphtheria and pneumonia. Before the public 40 years. Has saved thousands of lives. 25c., 50c. and $1 00 per bottle. Try it.

—An Englishman, who daily consumed at least two bottles of port, was asked if he had ever finished three bottles without assistance. "No, not quite that," he replied. "I had the assistance of a bottle of Madeira."

I was a non-believer in patent medicines, but having experienced marked relief from nasal catarrh and hoarseness by the use of Ely's Cream Balm, I can recommend it to those suffering from this loathsome complaint and to those afflicted with hoarseness or stoppage of the throat so annoying to singers and clergymen.—Louis E. Phillips, 1428 N. Y. Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C. Price 50 cents.

—A certain Pennsylvania young man asked a belle at the rink the other evening if she had "a ta-te for literature." "Oh, I don't know," she replied, "I believe I have never eaten any."

Commence the Year Aright.

Don't make too many resolutions, but hold on like grim death to those you do make. If your physical system is out of order you should attend to that at once; for its no use trying to keep a stiff upper lip when your kidneys or liver are taking the courage out of you. If you have really made up your mind to turn over a new leaf, commence the year by taking a thorough course of the celebrated Kidney-Wort. Thousands of people testify to its good effects for kidney diseases, biliousness, piles, constipation, etc.

—Postman—"What are you looking at, old gal?" Mrs. Mulligan—"Shure an' I was thinkin' how foine me b'y Moike will be lukin' whin he gits thim clothes on."

I Wished I was Dead!

After suffering several years with the Leucorrhœa, and no doubt I would have been, only a lady induced me to try Sulphur Bitters. Now I am well. Three bottles cured me.—Mrs. Copps, Newport, R. I.

—A Philadelphia paper says that if Mr. Keely wants to run his motor from Philadelphia to New York on a pint of water, he should be careful to use Schuylkill water. After it has stood awhile the animals will grow big enough to get out and help push.

WETHERELL'S SARSAPARILLA

Is the best remedy ever devised for all diseases of the blood, liver and kidneys, giving immediate and permanent improvement. No remedy has ever before been so compounded as to bring together in one bottle so many active ingredients, which are known to all physicians as a specific for impure blood, the fountain-head of all diseases.

Bilious Headache.

I have suffered for a long time from bilious headache, and have tried many preparations of Sarsaparilla, but found no relief. I was induced by my friends to try Wetherell's Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla, with Iodide of Potassium. After taking one bottle I am entirely cured, and feel better now than for years. I cheerfully give you the use of my name, believing that many who suffer as I did will be cured by your wonderful medicine. J. A. ROWELL, Brentwood, N.H.

The Mangrove and Oyster in Western Florida.

I am inclined to believe, in the economy of nature, so far as constructive process goes, the mangrove, in combination with the oyster, has had much to do with the building up of this western fringe of Florida. There is that factor of resistance or obstruction to a passage which renders a mangrove thicket impossible to traverse save by raccoons, snakes, or birds. Starting in a delicate way, with a single thin, pliant stalk right in the salt-water, after a while, when the mangrove grows to some four or five feet high, it throws down suckers from its trunk or branches, which meet the waters again. In time, the suckers being all around, the main trunk seems to hitch itself clear out of the water, and to stand upon its lower branches like a cheval-de-frise. Now suppose a manufacturer of gas fixtures had made a hundred big candelabra, and had stacked them in a disorderly way in a large room, the main pipes upward, and the crooks and querks of the branches on the floors. If you were requested to walk across that room you never could do it. You can fight through an alder thicket, but never through a growth of mangroves.

I do not think sufficient importance has been given to the role the oyster plays in conjunction with these trees. When the mangrove grows on the outer edge of the water-line, and drops its aerial roots, no sooner are these at the surface than at once the spat of the raccoon oyster finds a lodgment, for there can be no waters so charged with life as those in these warm seas. Ostrea parasitica nature originated to weight down the mangrove and anchor it in place. These oysters accumulate, growing in bunches as big as a man's head. In time these run through the cycle of oyster life, die, and drop from their branch, and fall in the shallow water. The calcareous portions of the shells dissolve in part, but some of the debris, with the silicious matter, remains. A little more soil under water is made, and here will sprout another mangrove, certain in time to have oyster appendages. It looks to me as if the trees on the very outer edge of the clump show greater activity in this double vegetable and molluscan life than the trees in the inside. Growth, then, seems to be arrested at certain points in this dual system, and to be advanced at others. One, two, or three of these thickets are separated, and may remain apart for years; then a seed falls, finds its proper depth, sprouts, a new mangrove rises, and another and another, and the many islands become one. Ma groves are always growing, oysters depositing, then perishing, the shells dropping, and so nature's laws of life and death are balanced, and make up that grand everlasting harmony.—Barnet Phillips, in Harper's Magazine for January.

Woman's Devotion.

My son, I am pained to learn that you are becoming somewhat cynical in your views concerning the natural tendencies and qualities of womankind in general. Remember your mother was a woman. The only thing I can recollect at all derogatory to her blessed memory is that she was too coy with rod and household boot-jack. The natural consequence is, you are rapidly running to seed, and fast becoming a fit subject for condemnation by all members of your mother's sex. Your mother was a good woman, but she just escaped being a perfect martyr when she held her hand aloof from the bump of your self-esteem.

It is a wonder to me that the Lord don't permit the spirits of departed mothers to come back to this realm just to shake the nonsense out of their offspring, or paddle them with the proverbial golden slipper.

You sneeringly remark, in the casual manner akin to your class, that woman's devotion is a sham. You also add that the greatest devotion of woman is laid upon the shrine of fashion. Now, my young limb of the sidewalk posture, your mother was a lady of fashion. I cannot say that she wore out your father's patience teasing or a sealskin sacque and a forty-dollar bonnet. I have no recollection of this; still, she may have done so.

Once, I well remember, you got into a street fracas and had your Grecian nose demolished of its pristine line of beauty. You ran to your mother; she applied a twenty-dollar lace handkerchief to staunch your life blood, when a ten-cent towel would have sufficed. She didn't stop to question the cause of the fracas. No; but she ruined that elegant bit of lace in the utter abandonment of maternal instinct and motherly devotion. The genuine cause of your nasal organ's disaster was—you tried to walk over a poor little street Arab, who proceeded to do you up after the style set down in the volume known as "The Manly Art of Self Defence."

That, my son, is a sample of woman's devotion; a specimen of effect without going behind the returns to get at the cause.

While you are burning the midnight gas, busily engaged with the hemispherical ivories on a green-baize table, there's a light in a sensible girl's parlor not burning for thee. One of these days you will open your eyes to the fact that the lusty-limbed mechanic got the deadwood on you, also got the girl you thought put had, sure pop. A tet he's gone and married her, you'll lug around a big lump of misanthropy and swear that woman's devotion is all a myth.

Boy, you've got to come down from your perch. Ta re are too many of the prime articles, homo sum, floating around this part of the globe, for women to yearn after such game as you are. You must drop this vapid ignis fatuus of your foolish brain and buckle down to biz, else you'll get left when the cake of domestic bliss is passed.

A woman's heart just gushes fountains of pure devotion. If you don't receive some of the pellucid drops it's because you are proving by your daily comings and goings that you are only worthy of an existence which is environed by the cold walls and chilly sheets of a poor old bachelor's proscription.—H. S. Keller, in Cambridge Tribune.

Who says a woman can't climb? An old maid in Massachusetts saw a dead field mouse by the roadside the other day, and in less than forty seconds she was in the topmost crotch of an apple tree, tucking her skirts, and peering around among the branches for her spectacles.—Burlington Free Press.

The following advertisement recently appeared: "Being aware that it is indelicate to advertise for a husband, I refrain from doing so; but if any gentleman should be inclined to advertise for a wife, I will answer the advertisement without delay. I am young, have a good figure, am domesticated, and considered ladylike. Apply, etc."

Smillkins is the meanest man in town, and when a baby was left in a basket on Johnling's steps the other night, he said "That Johnling is an awfully lucky fellow." "Lucky!" ejaculated Mr. Greatheart, whom he was address-ing; "what do you mean?" "Why said Smillkins, "that basket was worth 40 cents.—Washington Hatchet.

The Champion's Friend.

England's champion bicyclist, Mr. John Rolfe, says that in the championship contest, riding eight hours each for six days, and one hundred miles against time just after, he is positive that St Jacobs Oil by its wonderful effects in training and racing, enabled him to win both races. He calls it a good companion and recommends it to all athletes, and would not be without it. Fifty cents.

Some years ago Mrs. Frank Hunter, who resides in Gilford, arrived in that town from Boston. On the 4th inst. her former husband arrived from Boston with an unknown lady, and took Mrs. Hunter's only child, a girl about eight years old, from the mother. The latter notified Sheriff Story, who detained the abductors as they were about taking the evening train for Boston.

The Fall of Khartoum.

The British war office shortly after noon on the 5th inst. issued the following bulletin:

"Telegrams from Gen. Wolseley announce that the fall of Khartoum took place on January 26th. He says Colonel Wilson arrived at Khartoum on January 28th, and was greatly surprised to find that the enemy were in possession of that place. He immediately started on his return down the river and proceeded under a heavy fire from the rebels, until, some miles below the Shublaka cataract, Col. Wilson's steamers were wrecked, but he and his whole party managed to reach an island in safety, where they are secure. A steamer has gone to bring them back to the British camp near Metemmuch. Gen. Wolseley says he has no information regarding the fate of Gen. Gordon, and does not know whether he is dead or alive. A native reports that the Mahdi had 60,000 men in the vicinity of Khartoum, and that he introduced a number of his emissaries in the city. These emissaries mingled freely with the native troops under Gen. Gordon, and by bribes, threats and working on their religious feelings induced them to mutiny. Seven thousand of the garrison deserted to the rebels, leaving Gen. Gordon only 2500 faithful soldiers. With this small force he attempted to hold the city against the Mahdi's great army, but after severe fighting, in which a large number of the rebels were killed, he was compelled to surrender."

A later bulletin reported that Sir Charles Wilson tried to land at Khartoum to ascertain the fate of Gordon, but was driven off by the enemy's guns. Some hope is entertained that Gen. Gordon may still be holding the citadel.

The excitement in London is intense. The jubilant gladness which has been apparent since Gen. Stewart's arrival near Metemmuch has given way to universal depression. The capture of Khartoum has created grave fears, especially in army circles, for the safety of Gen. Stewart and his army. A number of military officers of repute even express the opinion that unless reinforcements are hurried forward to Korti the fall of Khartoum may lead to disasters to the forces under Lord Wolseley and Gen. Earle. Numerous army officers are asking for assignments to duty.

The Dynamite Business.

James G. Cunningham, charged with complicity in the attempt to blow up the Tower of London, left New York suddenly in last October. He was employed at the docks of the Morgan steamship company, and is recognized by numbers of men there who have read the description telegraphed from London. He has two brothers and three sisters now living in New York. His real name is Cunningham, though he had one or two aliases in London. He came to this country from Ireland about five years ago.

A despatch of Feb. 4th from London says: "The Paris section of the Irish dynamite party has declared that the person of the Prince of Wales is sacred from injury, he being grand master of Free Masons of the United Kingdom. Many of the party belong to the Masonic order."

In the report of the British police court before whom Mrs. Dudley, the would-be assassin of O'Donavan Rossa, was examined on a charge of attempting suicide on a railroad train, she is spoken of as "Lucilla Dudley, a lady-like looking person, aged twenty-four years, who describes herself as a governess." According to one account Mrs. Dudley was the victim of a mock marriage with an English clergyman in the south of England, who was already married. When she learned that she was deceived by this mock marriage she was terribly affected, but declined to prosecute her betrayer. Persons who were intimately acquainted with her say that her love for her children was intense, and that for a long time after their deaths she daily visited their graves and would lie on the mounds for hours."

News and Notes.

During a severe gale on the 4th inst. a passenger train on the Colorado Central railroad, near Denver, was blown from the track, and remained lying upon its side. Several persons were severely injured.

Dr. Samuel J. Allen, of White River Junction, Vt., has been sentenced to state prison for five years for killing Dell Hansell in a Boston bar room last May. The killing was deliberate and unprovoked, and if it was any crime at all, was murder.

Two serious fires visited New York city on the night of the 4th inst. The first one occurred in the early evening, burning several manufacturing establishments in a large building on the corner of Barclay street and College place, involving a loss of $275,000. The second broke out about midnight in the wine vaults of Steinhardt Brothers on Wooster street, and spread very rapidly, destroying, it is estimated, a million and a half dollars' worth of property.

Captain William H. Prescott of New Hampshire has been restored to his position as assistant engineer of the national senate, a place which he lost through no fault of his own.

The secretary of the navy has authorized Lieut. George M. Stoney to make further explorations of Alaskan waters, particularly with reference to the large river previously discovered by him and named Putnam river.

The court martial in the case of Gen. Swaim, finds him guilty of neglect of duty and conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline in failing to report to the secretary of war his knowledge of the alleged duplication of Col. Morrow's pay accounts—with a recommendation that he be temporarily suspended on half pay.

At South Shrewsbury, Mass., Mrs. Clara L. Bigelow, better known as Clara L. Livingstone, has been arrested on a charge of vagrancy, but is really held to wait the investigation of a charge of poisoning her husband, Dana Bigelow of Northboro, Mass.

FRENCH CLAIMS.

S. P. Mayberry, an antiquarian of Cape Elizabeth, Me, purchased several years ago in Philadelphia a historical manuscript volume of the French spoliations, with names of claimants, vessels, etc. From inspection he thinks them all in the United States. The volume would probably be very interesting to antiquarians, genealogists and historians.—Boston Journal.

New Hampshire in 1834 had sixty two claimants for French spoliations, and of these fifty-five were in Portsmouth. In the list of 1803 there were many less, and before 1834 many of these were assigned, so that the speculators are interested largely. In 1814 the British burnt Washington, and many of the papers were destroyed. I would suggest to those interested in claims, by inheritance, that before they expend too much money they see whether their claims have not been sold. Mr. Livingston in 1803 had the specifications of the damage done by the French lodged with him.

S. P. MAYBERRY, Boston, Mass.

Work on the upper stories of the Rockingham house, which had been suspended for some days on account of the weather, was resumed on Thursday. The work of laying the pressed brick front has kept on during all the cold weather, the front of the building being housed in and warmed by artificial means.

The fishing fleet came in on Thursday, mainly with good fares.

A train from Boston, on Wednesday afternoon of this week, came into the railroad station in this city on the wrong track. Mr. Sanborn, superintendent of the Boston & Maine railroad Eastern Division, was on board the train, and on Thursday morning a new switch-tender was at the post.

Gulls were quite numerous in the bays of the Piscataqua on Thursday, diving, and feeding upon the mussel beds which were uncovered by ice. The intense coldness of the weather outside is probably what drove the birds in.

Hay is being hauled in now from the country in limited quantity, and sold at $15 per ton, loose. The local teamsters report the recent cold snap as having been very hard on their haymows, their horses developing an immense capacity for stowing away hay when the weather is excessively cold.

There was so much floating ice in the river on Wednesday evening, the 4th inst., that the steamer Emerald was fourteen minutes in making her last trip from this city to the navy yard, and the last round trip on the schedule was omitted.

The schooner Clara E. Simpson, Hontvet master, bound from New York to Baltimore, passed Cape Henry on the 1st inst. with her spanker boom carried away.

The brick store at the head of Commercial wharf, in which a vast amount of business has been transacted since it was first opened, is now occupied by Capt. Joseph W. Amazeen, an "old salt" and Piscataqua river pilot, and is a favorite rendezvous for the fishing and coasting skippers, who congregate there to spin yarns and relate marvellous tales of the ocean.

There was a loud explosion on Bow street, Thursday, and visions of dynamite outrages caused the hair of the residents in that region to stand on end like quills upon the frightful porcupine. But it turned out to be only the bursting of a soda syphon which was being charged for a Congress street pharmacy at C. E. Boynton's extensive establishment for the manufacture of cooling drinks.

The law for the protection of partridges and quail went into operation Feb. 1st, and there is a fine for selling, buying, or having in possession any of these birds now, the same as for killing and destroying.

The clam banks of York have suspended during the long continued cold term, being mostly frozen over; but very large blue clams are being brought in on Water street from the ocean shores of Newcastle, near Jerry's point.

The street commissioner's teams are busily engaged in hauling off the snow banks from the streets and dumping them overboard.

A large gang of railroad men have been employed this week loading the platform cars with snow from the street crossings here, and "dumping" it elsewhere, where it may melt away in a few weeks without inconvenience to the public.

There was quite a large attendance of business men, brokers and agents of Boston houses at the sale of the remaining credits of the Ten Cents Savings bank at the First National bank on the 4th inst. Mayor Page acted as auctioneer. The largest claim was bought by George William Ballou of Boston. The total amount realized by the sale was a little over $2000.

The democrats of the Illinois legislature have nominated Morrison for United States senator, leaving Carter Harrison out in the cold.

At Audubon, Iowa, Feb. 4th, three men named Smith, Wilson and Jefferson, murderers of Hiram Jefferson, were lynched. Smith and Wilson were shot in their cells, after making a desperate fight, and Cicero Jefferson was hanged from the band stand in the park. The latter had confessed that he had murdered his father, and implicated Smith and Wilson, his brothers-in-law.

It has been learned that the numerous incendiary fires in Cleveland, Ohio, some months ago, were started by a man known to have been connected with the Chicago socialists.

Two men with dynamite in their possession were arrested at Montreal, Can., Feb. 3d. It was learned that they were ordinary cracksmen, who intended to use the explosives to blow open a safe.

While J. S. Shivers, a bailiff of Worth county, Ga., was attempting to arrest T. B. Boothemight, the latter resisted. Pistols were used, and both men were killed.

Miss Rogers, daughter of the sculptor, is about to be married in Rome to a Colonel in the Italian army and a man of distinction.

There is much opposition to Chinese immigration in British Columbia, and the matter is being agitated in the Dominion parliament.

A Wonderful STRENGTHENER

The Fontaine locomotive, which won peculiar celebrity some time ago on the line of the Canada Southern railroad, has finally disappeared. The central idea was the introduction of two friction wheels above two driving wheels. By the contact of the upper wheel with the lower a greater number of revolutions per minute, and hence greater speed, could be obtained. A company was formed with $1,000,000 nominal capital stock at $25 per share. Two engines were built at an expense of $25,000, but they proved failures. Altogether the company paid out $645,000 and received $2,700 in return.

Several woodchoppers were fatally poisoned near Dallas, Texas. The poison was in the coffee, and on investigation, a worm was found in the dregs which was pronounced by the men in the camp to be a centipede. It is presumed it had been dipped up in a water vessel from a creek near the camp.

The recent revolutionary disturbances on the isthmus of Panama were mainly confined to local political parties, causing serious trouble to all foreign interests there. The United States government promptly protested against any unjust interference with foreign affairs by the local authorities, consequently all censorship and restrictions have been removed.

Rev. John Parker, of the Methodist church at Jamaica, L. I., has issued an edict against roller skating, and has threatened to expel from his church any member visiting a rink. The younger members of his church denounce Mr. Parker's conduct, and threaten to leave the church if he persists in his opposition. The affair has created considerable excitement in the neighborhood.

Frank Bickford, just sentenced at Saco to three years in state prison, is but thirty-five years old, and has already served one term of two years and another of fourteen years for burglary. He has escaped from the Alfred and Portland jails, and from the state prison.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA
Has "decided" claims upon the public. This is positively proven by the immense good it has done to those who have been cured of diseases from which they have suffered intensely for years, as verified by the published testimonials, every one of which is a positive fact.

CHELSEA, VT., Feb. 24, 1879.
MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.: The 6th day of last June I was taken sick with a swelling on my right foot, and with an awful pain. The swelling went all over me. My face was swelled so that I could with difficulty see out of my eyes, and I broke out over the whole surface of my body; my right foot up to my knee was one raw, itching mass, and my ankle and foot so lame and sore I could not step on it, and it would run so as to wet a bandage through in an hour. In this condition Mr. W. F. Hood of the firm of A. H. Hood & Son, druggists, of this town, handed me a bottle of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and told me to take it. I did so, and by the time I had taken one bottle I found that it was doing me good. I have since taken five bottles more. After I had taken three bottles my soreness began to leave me, and I have been growing better every day, so that today I can walk without going lame. I have no soreness in my ankle and it has healed all up, and does not run at all. I owe my recovery to your Sarsaparilla. I write this to let you know that I think it deserves the confidence of the public, especially those who are troubled with humors.
Yours most truly,
JOSIAH PITKIN.
P. S. Every person that saw me said that I never would get over my lameness without having a running sore on my ankle; but thank God I have. J. P.

No other Sarsaparilla has such a sharpening effect upon the appetite. No other preparation tones and strengthens the digestive organs like HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

LIVES OF PAIN

RHEUMATISM and NEURALGIA have long enough run riot in the human system.

They have tormented the human family and defied the medical faculty; from time out of memory they have corrupted the blood, demoralized the spirits, vexed the nerves, agonized the muscles and racked the brain with wearying pain.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is the enemy of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, repairs their damages, recovers the blood, eases the joints, calms the nerves, soothes the muscles, gives rest and peace to the troubled brain, and induces delightful sleep.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is a new remedy, but it has been abundantly tried. From far and near come testimonials from well-known persons who had long been sufferers. It has turned their disease out, it has cured them. That is all—and that is enough.

"ATHLOPHOROS" can do for you what it has done for those sufferers. It can drive out your Rheumatism and Neuralgia, and will do so if you give it a fair trial.

"ATHLOPHOROS" has by this time had such a good trial all over the country that its true work is known, and its character proved.

"ATHLOPHOROS" means "Prize-Bearer;" "Victor;" "Conqueror." It carries off the prize as VICTOR over the attacks of these terrible maladies, and CONQUEROR of the fearful agonies their victims have endured. Not a mere temporary relief, but a permanent, enduring, and triumphant cure.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

The American Type.

In an interesting article in the Current, W. A. Croffut says:

Why is it that Americans—at least, New Yorkers—have lately fallen to mimicking whatever is English, I cannot divine. A few years ago, Anglophobia prevailed here, and whatever was English was carefully, perhaps too carefully avoided. But that tendency passed with the last generation.

The aristocrats of New York—those who can live without work because their unfashionable grandfathers grubbed—ape the English aristocracy as nearly as they can. Their youths are expected to marry no girl unless her father can make a substantial "settlement" of a regular annuity, English fashion. Our swell mimic wears his hat in the elevator because the English do, and he is trying to learn to call that vehicle a "lift." When he goes out in a carriage he never speaks of "going to ride," but of "going to drive," though as a matter of fact he does ride, and (if he have a coachman) does not drive.

Half of our young men in our swell-dom part their hair in the middle, wear English clothes, imitate English manners, use English slang, cultivate English inflections of speech. Meet these youths in society and you shall hear them allude to the "nasty weather" (or, rather, the "nawsty weather,") the "beastly walking," and the "deucedly clever actor." They call their pantaloons "trousers," their vests, "weskuts," and some of them allude to the ladies' "gowns." They are trying to be English all over.

It is not necessary. It is scarcely becoming. No American can have traveled in England without learning that its people are no whit superior to ours in bearing or in speech. Moreover, their feeling of comp acency often deprives them of the power of changing for the better—that is, of learning. The nation that does not progress retrogrades. England is insular and provincial. America is continental and cosmopolitan. Englishmen seldom change except by forgetting. Americans, during a century, have added hundreds of needful words to the language. What we ought to do is, not to drop good words because the English do not use them, but to hold on to them, to fill up the awkward chinks of the common tongue.

Our language is sadly in need of new words, to describe new things, new relations, new tendencies of thought; and the refined slang and common speech of the United States constitute the chief fountain of its enrichment. Mr. Roswell Smith of the Century Company, tells me, and I am glad to learn it, that the new dictionary will contain some hundreds, perhaps thousands, of new words, notably Americanisms and provincialisms which, by their usefulness, have vindicated their right. This is an example of courage and discernment as well as public spirit.

It will not answer for Englishmen to object that a new word cannot be admitted as proper till they see fit to adopt it. That day is gone by forever. They are outnumbered, and have ceased to be the official custodians of the common tongue. A majority of all English-speaking people are now on the Western Continent; in another generation three-quarters of them will be here; and to our progressive scholars and expert philologists is allotted the task of henceforth guarding, improving, reinforcing and fertilizing the language till it shall make its triumphant way around the world and become adapted to the needs of all races of men.

The pain and misery suffered by those who are afflicted with dyspepsia are indescribable. The distress of the body is equalled or surpassed by the confusion and tortures of the mind, thus making its victims suffer double affliction. The relief which is given by Hood's Sarsaparilla has caused thousands to be thankful for this great medicine. It dispels the causes of dyspepsia, and tones up the digestive organs. Try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

ON THE ENGINE.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River Branch between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was one part of my habitual habits of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes my head would snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fist. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach failed as though it were a great raw sore from surface, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the excitement brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the last attack when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Boston. At this critical time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the annoying pain left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good, and it does every note, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night, a while ago, John Layton, an engineer who runs the main line boat train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," said, "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, lifted his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Ben," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, Rondout, N. Y.," said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office—everywhere

We walk in the midst of secrets, we are encompassed with mysteries, but it is an open secret that there is no remedy in the world so wonderful as Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for coughs and colds.

Before the court-martial appointed for his trial, in Washington, Col. Morrow pleaded guilty of triplicating his pay accounts, and made a plea in extenuation of his offence.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, and in this way positively cures catarrh.

The British National Rifle association will probably not send a team to America this summer.

Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer is a sure and safe remedy for coughs, colds, diphtheria and pneumonia. Before the public 40 years. Has saved thousands of lives. 25c., 50c. and $1 00 per bottle. Try it.

Ex-Senator A. H. Cragin has opened a law office in the city of Washington, and will practice his profession before the departments, the supreme court and the court of claims. He will make a specialty of French spoliation claims in the court of claims, and invites correspondence on that subject.

I was a non-believer in patent medicines, but having experienced marked relief from nasal catarrh and hoarseness by the use of Ely's Cream Balm, I can recommend it to those suffering from this loathsome complaint and to those afflicted with hoarseness or stoppage of the throat so annoying to singers and clergymen.—Louis E. Phillips, 1428 N. Y. Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C. Price 50 cents.

A dispute is likely to arise between Russia and England regarding the Afghan question.

Commence the Year Aright.

Don't make too many resolutions, but hold on like grim death to those you do make. If your physical system is out of order you should attend to that at once; for its no use trying to keep a stiff upper lip when your kidneys or liver are taking the courage out of you. If you have really made up your mind to turn over a new leaf, commence the year by taking a thorough course of the celebrated Kidney-Wort. Thousands of people testify to its good effects for kidney diseases, biliousness, piles, constipation, etc.

Daniel Harrington, of Carmel, Me., left his father's house Monday evening, Feb. 2d, to go to his own home. Not arriving there, search was made, and he was found Thursday in the woods, frozen to death. He leaves a widow and five children.

All In the Line of Nature.

There is nothing in the line of magic or mystery about that wonderful and popular medicine, Parker's Tonic. It is simply the best and most scientific combination possible of the essential principals of those vegetable curatives which act powerfully and directly on the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood. But there neither is, nor will be, any successful imitation of it. It is all the time curing those who had despaired of ever getting well. For yourself, your wife and children.

The ocean steamers have suffered much from the recent heavy weather. The steamer Lake Manitoba, at Liverpool from New York, lost one man and sixty-three head of cattle, and sustained some damage. The Scandinavian, at Glasgow from Boston, lost one hundred and forty-two head of cattle.

HAS A PREPARATION BEEN SO HIGHLY PRAISED.

WETHERELL'S SARSAPARILLA

Is the best remedy ever devised for all diseases of the blood, liver and kidneys, giving immediate and permanent improvement. No remedy has ever before been so compounded as to bring together in one bottle so many active ingredients, which are known to all physicians as a specific for impure blood, the fountain-head of all diseases.

Bilious Headache.

I have suffered for a long time from bilious headache, and have tried many preparations of Sarsaparilla, but found no relief. I was induced by my friends to try Wetherell's Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla, with Iodide of Potassium. After taking one bottle I am entirely cured, and feel better now than for years. I cheerfully give you the use of my name, believing that many who suffer as I did will be cured by your wonderful medicine. J. A. ROWELL, Brentwood, N. H.

A Mad Poet.

Ye dodgeling bard, that fain on downy wing
Would try with tougher quills to soar and sing;
Young larks, on whom the cage door never has slammed,
To lock you in, "all silent and all damned!"

These poets counted great in other days,
In writing now, would have to mend their ways.
They thought too much, and, on their thinking bent,
With plain heroic couplets were content.

But woe to him who rashly now repeats
The measure of a Goldsmith or a Keats!
One form, and only one, could serve him worse—
Let no live poet venture on blank verse.

If you've originality disguised it;
Be sure that Aristarchus would despise it.
Keep off the grass! Remember poor old Wait?
Be insignificant, and shun his fault.

Become sophisticate, and never reveal
Aught of emotion you may chance to feel;
'Tis execrable form, 'tis most ill-bred;
Song comes not from the heart, but from the head.

Write Christmas verses in the month of June;
In January sing a summer tune;
Chant elegies before the victim's dead—
For magazines want verse six months ahead

When following my advice, you've conquered fame,
Fail not to sign in full your middle name,
My lot in this record was very sad;
I had no middle name—they thought me mad.

—Nat Lee in the Century.

EARNING THE RIGHT.

She was young and delicate, and fair with the fairness of purity.

Mark Mannering stood by her side, a world-worn man of thirty-five; not necessarily a man whom the world had taught her cruel ways, but a man who had buffeted fortune, who had earned his living from boyhood by close application to work, that had left him no time to become a pet of society.

Yet for all "Brutus was an honorable man," he felt so far the inferior of the graceful girl beside him that he could not summon sufficient nerve to tell her how dear she was to him, and how he wished to marry her and show the world this fresh creature, with her frank, speaking eyes, as the bright fairy who was to lead him upward and onward through all the future.

"Mermelle!" called a high treble voice, and the golden opportunity was lost.

Mermelle entered the sitting-room whose pleasant white-curtained windows opened upon the honeysuckle-embowered veranda upon which they had been standing. She entered to meet a young, attractive man advancing toward her.

"Mr. Tremnor, my dear, is not acquainted with Mr. Mannering," said her mother softly, "so I thought I had better call you."

Mermelle turned back to the piazza with her graceful, frank air.

"Mr. Mannering, let me introduce you to Mr. Tremnor."

The men bowed, but Mark Mannering stood for a moment, then began making his adieu.

The young man had eyed him with a look bordering on dislike, and was doubtless only too well pleased when the first caller took his departure.

Theodore Tremnor was evidently a favorite with Mrs. Chesborough, and of this he was doubtless aware, since her marked preference for the young man as a visitor at her house was openly admitted by the mother.

Young Tremnor knew why his attentions to Mrs. Che borough's daughter were encouraged.

His father had recently died, and he was reputed to be worth property to the amount of nearly half a million. The Chesboroughs were also wealthy and of a good family.

Two weeks passed away, and in that time Mark Mannering left the field clear for his rival, for he abstained from again visiting the girl he loved because he knew so well her mother dest ned her for a wealthy marriage, and he knew his chance with Mermelle were less ned should his attentions become too frequent and assiduous.

The gay season was at its height, when one night a party had been formed, comprising young Tremnor, Mrs. Chesborough, and Mermelle, to attend the opera.

Mrs. Chesborough, at the last minute, found herself unable to join them, and Tremnor, promising to call and take an aunt of his with him in her stead, the mother at last consented to allow Mermelle to accompany him.

But his worthy aunt, as Tremnor was well aware, was a large body who not only moved slowly, but nearly. Her opera days were well over, and though her nephew made a point of urging her chaperonage, he knew well, before entering her abode, that nothing would induce her to leave her warm fireside on this cold night.

The exclusive life of the old lady (Tremnor's only relative in the city) prevented her from hearing the many rumors current about her nephew. That he was sading the life of a fashionable young man she was well aware; but that rumor accredited him with large wea th she did not know.

Had any one whispered the word "money" in connection with her nephew she would have looked aghast.

"Money! Don't speak to me of his money!" would have been her emphatic reply. "He has inherited through the small property his father left him speedily enough, and now the debts his fashion and folly have led him into have made him a disgrace to his family. What his wild course will lead him to is only too plain. Never mention his name again to me. His position in fashionable society is bought with dishonor—"

But the indignation of this frank-spoken lady did not reach the outside world, so Mrs. Chesborough was not alone in believing Theodore Tremnor a young man of fortune.

It was the fashion for the party, when, of course, as on previous occasions, it had included a chaperon, to resort to a select dining-saloon for supper when the performance was over.

To-night, as usual, young Tremnor drove to their select d resort.

At first his companion hesitated, but her escort took it so much as a matter of course that she found herself seated amid the lights and company of the dining-hall almost before she had time to think.

As usual, wine was served, and presently they were again whirling over the stones of the city.

But an unconquerable drowsiness had taken possession of Mermelle, and consciousness that she was yielding to a kind of sleep, yet utterly unable to throw it off, she at last lay back in the carriage in a state of complete unconsciousness.

The moon flooded fields and woods with its silne sea of light.

In decent silence the ocean rocked to and fro upon the beach, while its moanings died away in the distance, and left a silence unbroken and perfect.

Not far from this bleak shore, with its dull ruined lighthouse, might have been seen a boat out upon the waters.

Slowly it neared a point of land about which some fishermen's huts were gathered, and where a few small boats lay rocking upon the waters.

To reach this point, however, the boat man must pass the promontory where stood the old tower like structure we have descr bed.

As he drew near something like a faint cry reached his ear. He listened; it came again, and seemed to emanate from the lighthouse.

Then a small flame lit up the high window; it flashed, then flattered down—down the rugged old gray wall to the ground.

He made all speed to land at the nearest point of safety, and made his way at once to the lighthouse.

As he reached the spot, he again heard a woman's scream, and it was plain that some one was calling for help at the summit of the edifice.

Cuticura THE GREAT SKIN CURES

Mrs. Smith's Case, and what the Rev. Mr McKinstry has to say about it.

TO THE PUBLIC: I have been a fearful sufferer for fifteen years, most of the time with what has been called Eczema or Salt Rheum, Psoriasis and Lepra, and the like, and have always been told that there was no cure for me, and have been so discouraged that I had a sense of despair. I have been a battle afflicted some in a way that there was not the small st spot from the crown of my head to the sole of my feet that was not diseased and a real sacrifice of flesh. It would commence in small white spots, which had a silvery appearance, but were not deep, but if I attempted to be idle, or some of their first appearance, they would burn and run to gether until there was a complete dry, red scale, which would become so inflamed as to crack and look deep and angry, and the burning sensation would be almost intolerable.

I was at times so lame that I could scarcely get about, and could not dress myself without assistance. I have tried many remedies, and have paid $50 in a single instance to a physician, but have never obtained only temporary relief. Although helped for a time, I soon relapsed again to be as badly troubled as ever, and during the winter of 1881 and 82 I suffered so much as to be entirely discouraged. Last June, however, I was advised by Elder and Mrs. C. McKinstry, who are well known in these regions, to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES; and I felt somehow a little encouraged, from their favorable opinion of them to try their virtues. About the second week of July last I commenced taking the remedies, and within six weeks I commenced a permanent improvement (until now I feel I am about as good as new, and my flesh I am the flesh of a child

The Champion's Friend.

England's champion bicyclist, Mr. John Rolfe, says, that in the championship contest, riding eight hours each for six days, and one hundred miles against time just after, he is positive that St. Jacobs Oil by its wonderful effects in training and racing, enabled him to win both races. He calls it a boon companion and recommends it to all athletes, and would not be without it. Fifty cents.

The Fall of Khartoum.

The first news of the fall of Khartoum received by General Wolseley was brought by a messenger, who left the island where Colonel Wilson was stranded and came on foot to Gubat. Two messengers were dispatched to Korti via Abu Klea and Gadkal. They reached their destination in safety, owing to the fact that the news of Khartoum's fall had not reached the desert. Information of the disaster, however, has since spread far and wide. Some of the tribes that have hitherto professed friendship for England have declared for the Mahdi. The Arabs still hold Metemneh. The garrison there received the news of the fall of Khartoum with repeated salvos of artillery. Colonel Wilson had three steamers, two of which were wrecked in the Nile, exactly half way between Khartoum and Metemneh. The third steamer, bearing Colonel Wortley and his party, came in and brought the news to the British camp near Metemneh.

The first tidings of the fall of Khartoum received in Cairo were by way of London, and caused the utmost consternation among the inhabitants; the official despatches had not been published in Cairo.

The rumors concerning the fate of Gen. Gordon are many and varied, but all agree that the Mahdi captured Khartoum by treachery. The most reliable reports point to one Farez Pasha as the traitor. It is said that he, being left in charge of the ramparts, opened the gates on January 26th, and admitted the enemy. Some rumors state that the general, together with a few Levantines, is cooped up in a church. Others say Gen. Gordon has been seen wearing the Mahdi's uniform. The majority agree, however, that Gen. Gordon has been killed.

The people in the provincial districts of England are as much excited over the news of the disaster in the Soudan, as are the Londoners. At the military camp at Aldershot the intelligence was received with mingled sadness and indignation; and a great sensation was caused in the Irish garrisons at Dublin. The excitement in Paris, in certain circles, was almost as great as in London, and the British ambassador and the French prime minister had a long interview.

It is reported that the fall of Khartoum will not check the advance of Gen. Wolseley, whose main army will probably march across the desert at once, and besiege Khartoum at the earliest possible moment. Orders have been sent to Portsmouth by the British war office to begin immediately to fit troop ships.

At the council held at the war office, on the 5th, it was decided to advise the dispatch of 3000 troops to Suakim. Gen. Stephenson says 5000 will be needed to clear the road to Berber, and urges that the reinforcements be drawn from England and India. The English garrisons in Egypt, which must be kept up, now consist of 1200 men at Alexandria, 3850 at Cairo and 150 marines at Suez. There are no forces at Port Said, excepting one gunboat. The man-of-war Monarch is at Alexandria. Rumors have reached Cairo that 2000 men were massacred at the fall of Khartoum.

A despatch from Massowah reports the arrival there of Abd-el-Kader, sheikh of the Beniamer tribe, with news that Kassala can hold out a long time. Also that a great battle has been fought between the garrison of Ghira under Sheikh Saleh, aided by three Abyssinian chiefs and their tribes, and a large force of Baggara rebels detached from Sennaar, in which the Baggaras were utterly routed, losing 6000 men and four emirs, one of whom was a nephew of the Mahdi.

The following is the account given of Col. Wilson's reception at Khartoum: "When Col. Wilson's flotilla approached Khartoum it was compelled to run the gauntlet of a heavy fire from both banks. The rebels had four Krupp guns on the river banks at Halfujeh to bombard the steamers. When the British force reached Omdurman, numbers of rebels continued the fusilade. Things looked worse when it was discovered that the enemy was in possession of the island of Tuti, just outside the city. The English still pushed ahead, but were dismayed to find that the garrison commenced firing upon them. No flags were flying from the public buildings, and the town appeared to be in undisputed possession of the enemy. The palace seemed to have been gutted. Finding it impossible to land in the face of overwhelming numbers, the British retired."

The British ministry on the 6th decided to order troops from India to Suakim, by telegraph, and to send troops from England and the Mediterranean. Gen. Wolsley telegraphed from Korti that the rebels at Metemneh are defiant, and that an attack on Gubat may be looked for at any moment.

Thomas J. Libby, who shot Lydia S. Snow at Portland, has been found guilty of murder in the second degree. His counsel gave notice of exceptions.

The noted steamship Alaska was five days overdue at New York on the 6th inst., and fears of some disaster were entertained. She is one of the largest and fastest steamships in the world.

Durham town hall was crowded Wednesday evening, the 4th inst., with those who came to enjoy the exercises of the lyceum. When the exercises were about half over the wood work near the stove caught fire, and there was a panic, the entire party rushing out of doors. It was well the means of egress was equal to the crowd, or somebody would have got crushed. Before the flames could gain any headway a couple pails of water extinguished them.—Dover Democrat.

The two-years old son of Levi Cole of Newington attentively watched his father shave one day recently, and after his father got through, picked up the razor to shave himself. The baby cut a long gash across his throat, narrowly escaping severing a large vein. He is doing well and will recover.

The French War in China.

Admiral Courbet, commander of the Formosa expedition, telegraphs that he requires reinforcements to enable him to capture the Chinese positions and to move upon Tamsui. The French, it is rumored, intend to abandon the blockade of Formosa, and apply a blockade to the Canton river. The French commanders have given notice of their intention to search all neutral vessels in Chinese waters for contraband,—a measure quite likely to disturb the relations of France with other nations besides China. It is reported that a mutiny has broken out among the French-Algerian troops in Kelung.

The steamer Wilmington, from San Francisco for Victoria, B. C., had not arrived on the 5th inst., and was supposed to have gone down with all hands.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Has "decided" claims upon the public. This is positively proven by the immense good it has done to those who have been cured of diseases from which they have suffered intensely for years, as verified by the publication of testimonials, every one of which is a positive fact.

CHELSEA, VT., Feb. 24, 1879.

Messrs. C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: The 6th day of last June I was taken sick with a swelling on my right foot, and with an awful pain. The swelling went all over me. My face was swelled so that I could with difficulty see out of my eyes, and I broke out over the whole surface of my body; my right foot up to my knee was one raw, itching mass, and my ankle and foot so lame and sore I could not step on it, and it would run so as to wet a bandage through in an hour. In this condition Mr. W. F. Hood of the firm of A. E. Hood & Son, druggists, of this town, handed me a bottle of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and told me to take it. I did so, and by the time I had taken one bottle I found that it was doing me good. I have since taken five bottles more. After I had taken three bottles my soreness began to leave me, and I have been growing better every day, so that to-day I can walk without going lame. I have no soreness in my ankle and it has healed all up, and does not run at all. I owe my recovery to your Sarsaparilla. I write this to let you know that I think it deserves the confidence of the public, especially those who are troubled with humors.

Yours most truly,
JOSIAH PITKIN.

P. S. Every person that saw me said that I never would get over my lameness without having a running sore on my ankle; but thank God I have. J. P.

No other Sarsaparilla has such a sharpening effect upon the appetite. No other preparation tones and strengthens the digestive organs like HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

Price one dollar, or six bottles for five dollars. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

MATRIMONIAL.

Mr. John D. Randall and Miss Ella May Wiggin, daughter of Mr. Thomas Wiggin, were united in marriage on Thursday evening by Rev. Dr. Alden, at the residence of Mr. Wiggin near the Plains. Mr. Randall is a member of the printers' fraternity, having passed through the grades of apprentice, jour., pressman and foreman in this office,—hence we know that as a printer he is superior, and in his dealings is "square as a brick;" and he and his bride have our best wishes for their prosperity and happiness. The wedding was a quiet one, only the relatives of the contracting parties being present, and at the conclusion of the festivities incident to the occasion, the newly married couple repaired to their home on Austin street.

THE CONCERT PROGRAMME.

The promenade concert to be given by the Salem band, Ralph L. Rennewald leader, at the Military Colonial ball to be given by the Sons of Veterans of this city in the Portsmouth skating rink on Tuesday evening, Feb. 17th, will be one of the best ever presented in this city, as new and choice selections have been secured for the occasion. Reserved seat tickets can be procured at M. Goodrich's bookstore; price thirty cents each. Gallery tickets, at twenty-five cents, will be sold at the door of the rink on the night of the ball. A HANDSOME LAMP.

The pedestal of the new lamp-post to be maintained on Market square by the Portsmouth Gaslight Co. was placed in position on Friday by Mr. Silas Philbrick, under the direction of Supt. Martin of the Gas Co. Like the keystone of a true arch it is good work—very good work, and could not be rejected by the aldermanic committee on street lights. It is of granite, and rests on a solid foundation, in digging for which frost eight inches deep was found on one side of the excavation, there being none at all on the other side.

Later in the day the lamp-post was erected, and crowned with by far the largest and finest lantern in the city, of which we some time ago gave a description. The whole expense of procuring and erecting this fine lamp has been borne by the Gas Co., and gas will be furnished free, the city being only asked to attend to the lighting and extinguishing. The light was burning brightly in the evening, and a common expression of persons who passed in sight of it was that it was more satisfactory in its effect than an electric light would be in the same position.

The post as it stands not only looks lonesome, but is liable to be knocked over by some runaway or blundering ox-team, and it is suggested that an iron fence enclosing a small circle would not only be a protection to the lamppost but an ornament to the Parade. Another suggestion is that a circular watering trough of stone, raised high enough from the ground to enable horses and cattle to drink out of it without lowering their heads, would be an ample guard and also fill a long-felt want in that vicinity.

On Monday and Tuesday evenings next will be at Music hall the performance of "A Bunch of Keys," which is styled by the critics as a rattling comedy or farce, "probably the most profitable attraction on the road this season." The Buffalo Courier says the audience there "was large and hilarious. This play is said to be Mr. Hoyt's best production. Its superiority over the plays which have followed from the same pen lies in the fact that it has a more definite aim, being a neatly-conceived satire on country hotel life, and furthermore it is more legitimately dramatic and coherent in structure and development. It has the stamp of originality, which is a desirable attribute in these days of dramatic appropriation."

Herbert A. Marden of this city was elected grand prelate of the Grand Lodge of New Hampshire, Knights of Pythias, at the annual meeting in Manchester on Thursday.

The regular clam chowder at Garrity's to-night.

At an adjourned parish meeting of the Middle street Baptist society on Wednesday evening, the 4th inst., wardens were elected as follows: Lewis E. Staples, William A. Hodgdon, John H. Broughton, Albert E. Rand and John M. Pebbetts. Mr. Chas. H. Clough had previously been chosen clerk. All other business was deferred to a meeting to be called by the wardens.

The tug Clara Clarita, Locke master, bound from Bath for Boston, put into this harbor on the 6th inst. The captain reports very rough weather outside. The Clara Clarita will tow from Boston to a Maine port two schooners, which will coal ice for southern ports.

The several vanes of the city on Friday pointed north; they have been very hard to turn to the southward for a month, and one of them—the vane of the Methodist Episcopal church on State street—true as the needle to the pole, has not varied many points from north for the last half-dozen years. That is first class for the 4th of July, but the oldest inhabitant would like to see it pointing south in February.

Mr. George F. Thompson, manager of the Rockingham and Wentworth houses, was taken seriously ill at the Wentworth, where he is temporarily residing, the first of this week, and for a time was in a critical state. The community in general will be pleased to learn that he is recovering, though more slowly than could be wished.

About forty fishing vessels came in on Friday, most of them bringing moderate fares, which sold at an average of about $3.40 per hundred lbs.

Sagamore and Gov. Goodwin lodges, Knights of Honor, of this city, will be officially visited on Wednesday evening, Feb. 11th, by Grand Dictator George H. Everett, in the hall of Sagamore Lodge on Market street; a banquet will be served after the ceremonies.

Mr. Howard Anderson of this city, for many years with the late John H. Bailey of this city, and lately with Darling & Co., hardware dealers, of Boston, has accepted a position as bookkeeper with Pryor & Matthews.

Six thousand barrels of apples and five hundred barrels of potatoes are being repacked at Charles H. Hayes' store house on Bow street, and will be shipped to Baltimore per schooner Mabel L. Phillips, just discharged at the Concord wharf. They are in good order, very few having decayed, and scarcely any frozen.

"Long John" drives into town every day from his country seat with a pretty little gray mare, to his place of business on Water street; she was raised from Shetland pony stock by Henry R. Stoddard, shows good keeping, and is able to easily draw her owner, but some of the fishermen declare that John being able, would best present her to a newspaper writer who has shorter reins, even if he would not ride into the mayoralty so quickly. The animal is better than a Texas pony. P.

Several very large sticks of white oak timber, which must have belonged to very old trees, judging from the number of their rings and their measuring four feet in diameter, have been brought to the Eastern railroad station here on sleds recently, from Newington, having been purchased by George A. Hammond, of Eliot, for transportation eastward. The last were cut on the Fabyan farm. There was a time when such timber would not have been allowed to go away from here; it is suitable for windlasses and pointers in ship-building. Many people regret to see the cutting down of such trees, but there is a period when if wood is ever to be used for proper purposes, it must be cut. There were several very valuable white-oak trees upon the extensive farm and property of the late Hon. John Elwyn on Lafayette road, which were personally sought for by the late George Raynes. Mr. Elwyn said: "Mr. Raynes, ask me for anything—money or anything else which I can give you, and you shall have it; but do not ask for those trees." Some time after the decease of Mr. Elwyn, however, Hon. Daniel Marcy's employes went for those same trees to Rev. Alfred Elwyn, the present owner of the premises, who was willing to dispose of them; but upon examination it was discovered that the trunks were so far decayed that in heavy rains the water poured through holes near the ground as if through spouts. Mr. Elwyn says he would utilize timber at the proper time, and replace it by planting young trees.

At the annual meeting of the subscribers to the stock of the York Harbor & Beach railroad company, the old board of directors were re-elected. Of the 300 shares sold there were present and represented by proxy 280; of these 260 voted. Edward S. Marshall, Henry E. Evans, Samuel W. Junkins, Jeremiah P. Simpson, all of York, and Dr. Evan B. Hammond of Nashua, N. H., had 260 votes each; Dr. Joshua C. Stewart, of York, had 240 votes, John E. Staples of York, 160 votes, and Hon. Edward C. Moody of York, 120 votes. At a subsequent meeting of the directors Edward S. Marshall was re-elected president, Dr. Stewart was re-elected clerk, and Jeremiah P. Simpson was chosen treasurer vice S. W. Junkins resigned.

LIVES OF PAIN

RHEUMATISM and NEURALGIA have long enough run riot in the human system.

They have tormented the human family and defied the medical faculty; from time out of memory they have corrupted the blood, demoralized the joints, vexed the nerves, agonized the muscles and racked the brain with wearying pain.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is the enemy of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, repairs their damages, renews the blood, eases the joints, calms the nerves, soothes the muscles, gives rest and peace to the troubled brain, and ensures delightful sleep.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is a new remedy, but it has been abundantly tested. From far and near come testimonials from well-known persons who had long been sufferers. It has turned their diseases out. It has cured them. That is all—and that is enough.

"ATHLOPHOROS" can do for you what it has done for those sufferers. It can drive out your Rheumatism and Neuralgia, and will do so if you give it a fair trial.

"ATHLOPHOROS" has by this time had such a good trial all over the country that its true work is known, and its true character proved.

"ATHLOPHOROS" means "Prize-Bearer;" "Victor;" "Conqueror." It carries off the prize as victor over the attacks of these terrible maladies, and Conqueror of the frightful agonies their victims have endured. Not a mere temporary relief, but a permanent, enduring, and triumphant cure.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

Never Before.

Never before in the history of medicine has a preparation been so universally praised by Wetherell's Sarsaparilla with iodide potassium. It goes right to the spot, and builds the system up as no other medicine does. One dollar per bottle. Six for $5. Druggists sell it.

Don't Look Like a Wreck.

"When a man is going down hill everybody is ready to give him a kick." Yes, that is so. It is sad, but natural. Why, many a man and woman, seeking employment, would have got it if their hair hadn't been so thin and gray. One bottle of Parker's Hair Balsam is then the best investment. It stops falling hair, promotes new growth and restores color. Clean, highly perfumed, not a dye. A great improvement over any similar preparation, and sold at the low price of 50c.

Kate H. Summers, the twelve-years-old daughter of Martin F. Summers, while coasting last Thursday evening in Lowell, Mass., was run over by a sleighing party and received injuries from which she died in about half an hour.

Dr. Seth Arnold's Sugar-Coated Bilious Pills unequalled for costiveness, jaundice, liver troubles. 25c.

An eight-years-old girl in charge of a $1,400 postoffice aroused the citizens of Steelton, a suburb of Harrisburg, Pa., to the fact that something was wrong. The little one did the best she could for two days, until an inspector arrived in obedience to orders from Washington. Her father was the postmaster. He deserted office and family, and left his sureties to pay about $1000 for him. The place was in the utmost confusion, and there was a mail-bag full of letters that had been lying in the office—some of them for a year.

the occasional glimmer from a slit-like window. He struck matches to light his way.

Suddenly he heard just ahead of him other feet treading the winding stairway. They halted, but the man from the boat persevered, and presently stood facing a fashionably-attired young man.

His face was white as chalk. He attempted bravado, however, as he saw determination upon the face of his pursuer.

"Mr. Theodore Tremnor, what does this mean?"

"It means that you're a cursed fool, and you'd better turn back and go about your business."

"Not until I find out who is in distress in this building at such an hour," said the other.

As he spoke he attempted to pass the man, who now completely barred his passage upon the stairs.

As he took a step forward, the other snatched from his pocket a revolver, and took aim.

Anticipating this, his companion dashed, with one blow against Tremnor's shoulder, himself and his weapon several steps below him. It was the work of a moment, and the next he was rushing up the stairs.

Tremnor, struggling to his feet, scudded down the stairs, and fled through foot-path and field, till he reached a point where stood a carriage and driver.

"Drive like mad—stop for nothing—to——— Station. You will be well paid!"

And the next train which left for London carried away Theodore Tremnor on his way to the continent.

Meanwhile, Mermelle Chesborough looked up from the rotten planks where she had lain, hearing naught but the waves and the scuttle of rats near at hand, to encounter with a shudder the face, not of the one she most dreaded and expected, but that of a deliverer—the face of her friend, Mark Mannering.

How he came she did not ask. Briefly she told him of the evening's performance—of the circumstances which had placed her in Tremnor's power.

"I knew nothing since we left the restaurant till I opened my eyes to find myself alone here. Yet, I recall the circumstances, and guessed at the rest. I was drugged—drugged and brought here. Hark—what is that? He may come at any moment. Where can he have gone?"

"I met him on the stairway on his way up. But he will not come now. Fear nothing; he is but too well pleased to flee after meeting me. Come with me—Mermelle—Miss Chesborough—my boat is near. I will get you safe home to your mother."

Mermelle broke into wild sobs of relief.

"Oh, what kind fate was it that sent you to my deliverance?"

She rose, and attempted to feel her way, with Mannering for a guide, down stairs.

But Mannering placed a strong arm about her, and bore her below as he would a child.

Mrs. Chesborough was in a condition impossible to describe when her daughter, with Mark Mannering for a companion, made her way into the house at four o'clock in the morning.

Almost frenzied, the mother could not for some time comprehend the circumstances. When at last she did so, she rose and seized Mark by the hand.

"What—what great thing," she cried, "can I ever do to thank you for this?"

"There is one thing," said Mark, modestly, "and it is a great thing, and it is this: I love your daughter dearly, and if I cannot give her great wealth, I can give her the protection that an honorable man can bestow. Will you give her to my care? Will you consent to her becoming my wife?"

Mrs. Chesborough hesitated but a minute.

She saw that Mermelle was not to be questioned. She had already consented.

Without a word she took the hand of her daughter and placed it within that of Mark Mannering.

"You have earned the right," she said, "and she is yours."

"What we learn with pleasure we never forget."—Alfred Mercier. The following is a case in point: "I paid out hundreds of dollars without receiving any benefit," says Mrs. Emily Rhoads, of McBrides, Mich. "I had female complaints, especially 'ragging down,' for over six years. Dr. R. V. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription' did me more good than any medicine I ever took. I advise every sick lady to take it." And so do we. It never disappoints its patrons. Druggists sell it.

—"John," said Mrs. Bascom, to her husband, "I intend to return some calls this afternoon. Would you step down to the stable and tell them to send up a carte-de-visite with a driver?"

Captain Mitchell, of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havanna trade, came home in May, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains, but receiving no benefit, at his wife's request began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. He immediately began to improve; in two months his rheumatism was all gone, and he sailed in command of his vessel a well man. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you. Sold by all druggists.

ON THE ENGINE.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River Branch between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was caused by the jar of the engine, and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes my head would snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eye, which would feel as big as a man's fist. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as though it were a great raw and sore surface, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1880 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the constant jar brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next spring when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this critical time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can hardly forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pain left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good and it drives every ache, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night, a while ago, John Clayton, an engineer who runs the main line boat train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a big fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," said "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will put you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, filled his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Dan," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, Rondout, N. Y." said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and running every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office—everywhere

The æsthetic movement in England has entirely died out, because—well because people think there is more good common sense in taking a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup than in carrying a lily.

A triple murder near the village of Radical City, Kansas, was discovered Feb. 5th by Frank Borham, the son of a widow living on a farm. Near Carbondale, Ill., two boys returning from school quarrelled, and agreed to fight out their differences. The other boys formed a ring, and the two began to spar. He was nineteen years old, and Prickett is eighteen. Their families are prosperous farmers.

Wintry Winds.

It's all right for poets to sing the praises of the beautiful snow, and the merry sleigh bells, and the ringing skates on the glassy ice, but they can't fill the bill with that sort of stuff when one is sitting with his feet in a tub of hot water, his head done up in flannels, and with mustard plasters on both sides of his chest. What a person needs then is a thorough dose of Kidney-Wort to act as a cathartic, for nothing will so quickly relieve that congestive, feverish condition which comes of a hard cold. Often these colds cause bilious attacks, lame backs, disordered kidneys, rheumatism, catarrh, etc. Kidney-Wort can be relied on to bring back a healthy condition.

Among the persons who confronted Cunningham, the alleged dynamiter, in the London prison on the 4th inst., were a policeman and brakeman connected with the underground railway that runs beneath Euston road. They positively identified him as having travelled on the train, from one of the car windows of which the dynamite package was thrown on Jan. 2d, between the stations at Gower street and King's Cross, which partially wrecked several of the railway carriages and destroyed a part of the wall of the tunnel.

Of That Blithe Throat of Thine.

[More than 82° north—about a good day's steaming distance to the Pole by one of our fast oceaners in clear water—Greely heard the song of a single bird merrily sounding over the desolation.]

Of that blithe throat of thine, from arctic bleak and blank,
I'll mind the lesson, solitary bird; let me too welcome chilling drifts,
E'en the profoundest chill, as now—a torpid pulse, a brain unnerv'd,
Old age land-lock'd within its Winter bay—(cold, cold, O cold!)
These snowy hairs, my feeble arm, my frozen feet;
For them thy faith, thy rule I take, and grave it to the last.
Not Summer's zone alone, hot chants of youth, or South's warm tides alone,
But held by sluggish floes, pack'd in the North ern ice, the cumulus of years—
These with gay heart I also sing.
—Walt Whitman, in Harper's Magazine for January.

A WOMAN SCORNED.

"I didn't mean to vex you, Dane, and I'll stay here without you if you wish me to."

"Oh, you will, will you? I rather think so myself," Dane Eckhart said, with a sneer that made Ginevra, his wife, lift her clear, dark eyes wonderingly. "You needn't stare so, Ginevra, its time I told you the truth, if I'm ever going to."

Ginevra got up from the pot of geraniums he was watering and came to her husband's side, an odd pallor in her lovely face.

"Yes, dear," she said in a low tone, "if there is anything I need to know, tell it to me at once, pray."

The man stirred uneasily in his chair, and looked at her stealthily from under his black eyelashes.

He was a singularly handsome man, but with a dangerous droop about the corners of his finely molded lips, that would have warned any reader of character against trusting him too far.

"I shan't be likely to come back," he said in a sulky tone.

Ginevra looked at him, her face whitening.

"You will send for me to come to you?" Very well."

"Not a bit of it," Dane Eckhart said in a hard voice. "You'll have to go back to your aunt."

"Never!"

"As you please; only I wash my hands of you. I want you to understand that you and I have both got too much temper to get on well together."

"It is a pity you had not discovered as much before you married me."

"Well, I know it now; and as for the marrying, you ought to be as thankful as I am that it was just a farce."

"What?"

"Only a game, my dear. You and I have only been playing married."

He threw up his handsome head insolently, but involuntarily shoved his chair back a step as he encountered Ginevra's blazing eyes.

She stood an instant, trembling with passion, then she came nearer to him, and dropping upon a low seat, wound a white arm around his neck.

"Don't plague me with such horrid talk, love," she said sweetly, "and I'll try not to lose my temper so easily."

Dane Eckhart cast her arm off his neck impatiently, and rose with a muttered imprecation.

"It is no talk, as you'll find," he said savagely. "While you were Margaret Moxley's heiress such talk was well enough; but you ought to have known I couldn't afford to marry a poor woman."

"And you are not married to me? What, then, was that ceremony between us?"

"The merest farce. That man wasn't a minister more than I am. There, don't make a fuss. It was all because your aunt Margaret's money, and under the circumstances, really you ought to be thankful to be rid of me, as I am——"

"To be rid of me," Ginevra said in a hard, cold voice. "Very well, you are rid of me. Go!"

Dane Eckhart laughed nervously.

"I think I will go until you are in better humor, at least;" and he sauntered gracefully out and down the garden walk.

The passionate young creature he had left sat staring after him with a look of piteous misery on her blanched face.

She sat where she could see the man she had till this moment supposed to be her husband; the man whose dangerous beauty and luring words had brought her to this—even her from a luxurious home, of which she was the idol and prospective mistress; the man for whom the aunt who had been a second mother to her had cast her out, disinherited her—and now he cast her off.

She could see him, smoking as he walked and lazily smelling the flowers, and her hands clenched and unclenched themselves almost viciously.

In her absorption she did not see till he was at the door a man who came swiftly up the walk—unnoticed, too, by Dane, whose face was the other way. The man scarcely stopped to knock, and Ginevra ran to him with both hands outstretched.

"Oh, Robert, Robert!" she cried.

"I've come as I promised you, miss. Mistress Margaret lies a-dying, and she's asked for you over and over again."

An indescribable change passed over Ginevra's face, and she glanced swiftly in the direction of the shrubbery, where a faint blue smoke was curling past the leaves.

"I will go with you instantly—instantly, Robert," she said, her eyes gleaming. "I see you have a carriage; go back to it; I will join you. Take this path, Robert; I should like to get off without being seen."

Robert did as he was bidden, and Ginevra, stopping barely long enough to don cloak and hat, ran after him.

Dane Eckhart tossed away the stump of his cigar and lighted a fresh one.

"Deuced hard thing," he muttered. "I'm glad it's over. Now if Dame Margaret should leave her the money after all, she'd rather have the upper hand of me, wouldn't she?"

He sauntered back to the house again. There was no one in the little sitting-room where he had left Ginevra, and he noticed at once that her cloak and hat were gone.

"What now?" he grumbled aloud. "Where can she have gone to?"

"Please, sir, I can tell you all about it," said a sharp little voice at his elbow, and Ginevra's small maid-of-all-work popped out from behind the window curtains, where she had been curled this long time.

"I heard 'em, I seen 'em," she nodded briskly; "The man's name was Robert, and he said Miss Margaret was a-dyin', and she went off with him."

"In a carriage?" demanded Dane, in breat less amazement.

The child nodded.

"Did he say her aunt had sent for her?"

Another nod.

"Gad, I must overtake them! What a fool I've been! The old woman is going to forgive her after all, and then I'll get the cold shoulder;" and Dane Eckhart hurried away toward the town for a horse.

It was something of a walk, however, and two hours had gone before he had started.

* * * * *

At Moxley the dying woman tossed on her thorny couch and moaned constantly one inquiry:

"Has she come? Robert said he knew where to find her. Robert has gone for her. Jane! Jane, I say!"

An elderly-looking woman came forward to the bedside.

"Go down, Jane, and see if she has not come."

"They have orders, madame, to let you know the instant she arrives," the woman said.

"Yes, but they may linger. Moments are ages to me now. Go, go!"

"But the doctor's orders—you were not to be left alone for an instant."

"The doctor is an idiot! Do you serve me or him?" demanded Margaret Moxley, in sharp, querulous tones.

"You, certainly. I only thought——"

"Stop thinking, then, and do as I bid you."

Reluctantly the woman departed. It was not the first time she had been on this fruitless errand, and each time she had been in terrible fright lest her mistress should fall into one of her dreadful spasms, and so be dead when she got back.

She was not absent from the room more than ten minutes in all. She found Robert and Miss Ginevra just arrived, and she only stopped for half a dozen words with the latter, before she dragged her up the stairs to her aunt's room.

Ginevra sprang ahead and entered the apartment first, but shrank back upon her own steps, as though she had encountered Satan himself in there, shuddering with horror, and uttering scream upon scream, that resounded to the farthest corner of the house.

Thinking that what she had feared had happened in her absence, the nurse pressed past her into the room. But how much more awful the sight that met her than any she had ever dreamed of.

The War in the Soudan.

The French government organ at Paris says the fall of Khartoum is a matter of concern to Europe. Should England continue powerless to restore order in the Soudan, the powers must interfere to do it.

There are 10,000 British troops at stations on the Mediterranean that are available for service in the Soudan. These include eight regiments of the line, thirteen batteries of artillery and five companies of engineers.

The fall of Khartoum has produced a profound impression in Rome. The newspapers unite in expressions of sympathy with Gen. Gordon, and give utterance to the belief that the Mahdi's victory will draw England and Italy into closer relations with a view to joint action in Egypt.

Disastrous Fires.

An oil train on the Pennsylvania railroad stopped on a bridge over the Raritan river at New Brunswick, N. J., Saturday morning, and was run into by another train. The oil took fire, and streams of it overflowed the bridge and filled the gutters of the streets, burning everything in its way. Two brakemen were burned to death in one of the cars, but the other train hands escaped; a bookkeeper in a manufactory was also burned to death. Aid was sent from Elizabeth and Jersey City, but the conflagration could not be stopped till the oil had burned itself out; Janeway & Co.'s immense wall-paper factory, and the New Brunswick Consolidated Fruit Jar Co.'s factory, employing between them over 2000 men; also six dwellings and a hotel, were destroyed. Two engines, many cars, and one span of the iron bridge, were ruined. Loss between $800,000 and $1,000,000.

There was a grand firemen's ball in Nashua, N. H., on the night of the 6th, and just after it ended on the morning of the 7th an alarm was sounded for the Nashua Iron & Steel Co.'s plate mill, which was burned to the ground. The building contained seven boilers, six engines, and much expensive machinery, and the loss is estimated at $75,000; insurance $48,200. Fifty men are thrown out of employment.

Excursions to the New Orleans Exposition.

The two grand excursions to New Orleans arranged by Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb will give their patrons a splendid opportunity not only to visit the great Exposition, but to see the south and southwest at a season when those sections of the country are most attractive to New England people. The parties are to leave Boston Feb. 26th and March 19th, and each will enjoy an extended trip on the Mississippi river. At New Orleans the general public is experiencing much difficulty in obtaining hotel accommodations, but the Raymond excursionists will have no trouble on that score, as they will stop on their elegant steamer while in the Crescent City. Only a limited number of passengers will be taken, and the steamers have large and comfortable staterooms. Full particulars regarding the trips may be learned from a circular which will be sent by W. Raymond, 240 Washington street, Boston, on application.

Naval Intelligence.

Rear Admiral English, commanding the European station, on the 5th inst. telegraphed the department that he would be ready to sail from Villefranche in the Lancaster on Feb. 9th, and would proceed to the Congo country with all possible despatch.

Lieut. Comdr. T. F. Jewell and Lieut. George H. Totten have been ordered to examination for promotion.

There has been some talk in the papers about the U. S. S. Shenandoah, of the Pacific squadron, not having been heard from since Nov. 29th, when she left Iquique for Valparaiso, Chili, four days' sail; she was at Coquimbo Dec. 6th, making some repairs, and expected to sail for Mollendo Dec. 10th.

The naval advisory board has been informed by Naval Constructor Samuel H. Pook, stationed at the League island navy yard, that he has received fifty-six applications from paint dealers to participate in the paint test proposed by the board.

The Providence Journal says: "Some first class big guns are being made in the Washington navy yard, and the government does not make much noise about it either. With all the cheap democratic talk about the American navy, we imagine that, in case of war, our enemy would find the nation fully able to take care of itself. There are several instances in American history of an insolent foe having first learned of the existence of an American navy when it was close upon time to haul down the hostile flag and surrender."

New Hampshire Items.

The selectmen of Campton have awarded the contract to build an iron bridge across the Pemigewasset river at Livermore Falls to the Berlin Falls (Conn.) Iron Bridge company, the same to be placed in position by June 15th. It will be a carbonized iron truss, and will cost $8000. This is the bridge over which a suit was brought to compel the town to build.

The grangers and milk producers of Sanbornton have held a meeting for the purpose of discussing the milk question, and were decidedly in favor of making butter instead of sending milk to Boston daily and receiving three cents per quart. They claimed that from a single cow in seven days can be made five and a quarter pounds of butter worth $1.57, while the milk would bring thirty-one cents less, and the butter-makers would have the skim-milk, which can be fed to hogs. It is thought the milk supply for Boston in Belknap county will be greatly reduced in the near future.

Turn the Rascals Out.

A despatch of Feb. 6th from Frankfort, Ky., says: A special investigation of the records of the state of Kentucky shows beyond question that a system of robbery has been carried on for fifteen years past, which rivals anything ever heard of. At the same time it has been conducted under cover of law. It is evident that the amount stolen will not fall far short of $2,000,000. A study of the books shows that in the department of criminal prosecution, the steal has reached at least a million in fifteen years. In the cost of keeping idiots during the same time there has been a steal of $500,000, while in other expenditures, which have not been examined closely, there are indications which may add $500,000 more to the robbery. It is believed that in most cases the money can be traced to county and district rings which have been abetted by the legislature.

The Dover Democrat of Friday says: "About $86,000 of the stock of the Rochester Aqueduct & Water company have been taken. The whole amount of stock to be sold is $100,000. Frank Jones, of Portsmouth, was the heaviest subscriber, taking $50,000 worth of stock. As soon as the stock is disposed of the company will meet and choose a board of directors."

Andrew P. Webber of York is prominently mentioned as prospective keeper of the Nubble light, Cape Neddick, which is under the jurisdiction of the collector of customs of Portsmouth as superintendent of lights. Mr. Webber being an experienced fisherman, and therefore practically aware of the importance of showing a good light, would be a good man for the place, and if a change is to be made it is to be hoped he may secure the appointment, rather than a hunter from Moosehead lake or a farmer from the Aroostook or Mount Washington regions.

Rev. E. E. Colburn, of Plainville, N. Y., has accepted the call to the Christian church at Kittery Foreside, and will commence his pastorate the first Sunday in April.

Miss Susanne Bancroft, who is spoken of as one of the most attractive young ladies in Washington, is a granddaughter of Hon. George Bancroft, with whom she now lives. She is the orphan daughter of a son of Mr. Bancroft, who went to France years ago and settled there, marrying a French wife.

The Great Attraction at New Orleans.

The vast crowd of strangers attracted to the great World's Exposition of Industry in New Orleans, looked with delight at the lottery which has led the 17th Grand Monthly Drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery, on January 8th, last. It resulted that ticket No. 5,365 drew the $ steam-ship prize of $1,000, and was held by Mr. Thomas M. Thornton, a promise in banking, of Shelbyville, Ill., who collected it through the Third National Bank of St. Louis, Mo.; No. 37,741 drew the second prize of $250, and it was sold in fifths (cost at $10) one to H. E. Browne, of Fairmount, Ind., who collected it from the Fairmount Bank; one to Isabel Stout, of Chicago, Ill., who collected it in person; other to Lee Sampson, of Saguenay, Iowa; and the remaining portions were altered elsewhere. No. 5,153 drew the third prize of $100, and also in fifths; two fifths collected through the Exchange Bank of Dallas, Texas, for Dr. A. E. Hall, salesman for Sanger Bros., Dallas, and Mr. Fred Chess Jr., also of Dallas; one to O. J. Perris, of Corinna, Me.; another to Louis H. Kehan, of St. Sara, Ohio, Kroome & Co., also of Cincinnati; and so it went with $252 50 worth of tens, $1 fifty in all other portions. Next (the 18th) drawing will be on Tuesday, March 10th, 1885, when Maj. P. G. T. Beauregard, New Orleans, La., will give all information on application. Be wise in due time.

There was a narrow escape from a serious accident upon the Concord & Portsmouth railroad, near the camp-ground in East Epping, about noon last Thursday. The locomotive "Pennacook," Edward G. Dodge driver, was going toward Manchester behind a snow plow. Upon reaching that point the plow struck a switch and went off, the iron colliding with the platform beside the track, wrecking the plow and sending the plank from the platform flying in all directions. Frank Chase, the boss section man, was struck in the stomach and knocked down by a plank, and George M. Hobbs, a brakeman, had one of his feet badly bruised. The men will not be able to resume work for a day or two, but it was a fortunate escape for them and for all others upon the train from very serious if not fatal injury. The locomotive did not leave the rails, but a sufficient blockade was caused to delay the noon freight from Portsmouth some two hours.—Dover Democrat.

I have tried every remedy that I heard of, but without benefit. Sulphur Bitters is the only thing that ever did me any good. When I commenced taking them I could not put my foot on the floor. My head is free from pain, my appetite good, and since using Sulphur Bitters I enjoy life with a zest long deemed impossible; and they will purify the blood as no other can do.

have saved my life. There is nothing like them. I earnestly entreat all afflicted with impure blood to try them and be cured.

The Cashier of the Boston Loan Co., WM. E. DURGIN, says: I recommend your Sulphur Bitters as the best spring medicine I have ever used; there is nothing like them to give an appetite, tone up the system, and do away with that languid feeling which is so frequent among those confined indoors. If you are sick and unable to obtain relief from other medicines, try Sulphur Bitters, for it will cure you. Cleanse the vitiated blood when you see its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, blotches and sores.

They Will Cure You.

The well known Manager of the Raymond Excursions to California, I. A. WHITCOMB, says: No other medicine can equal Sulphur Bitters for biliousness and dyspepsia. They have cured me when all other remedies failed.

POLICE COURT -- BATCHELDER J.

SATURDAY, Feb. 7th.

James Clark, for drunkenness, was fined $3, costs $6.90. Brentwood in default of payment.

Michael Ryan and Nellie Ryan, charged with assaulting John Lynch, after examination were dismissed.

John Smith, for "profanely cursing and swearing," was fined $1, costs $6 90. Smith is engaged in the clock peddling business, placing clocks in houses on a small sum being paid down, the rest of the purchase money to be paid in monthly installments. There was some hitch in one of his trades, and the dollar's worth of profanity he used was consequent on his removal of the clock being objected to by the woman of the house.

This evening, at Music hall, "A Bunch of Keys; or, the Hotel," a farcical comedy by Chas. H. Hoyt, which was played for over two hundred consecutive nights in New York. Miss Hattie Anderson appears as "Teddy Keys," and is supported by a strong company. New music and special scenery. Tickets at Goodrich's to-day.

Mr. Edward S. Smart of Boston spent Sunday in this city.

It was reported on Sunday evening that a woman broke one of her legs by a fall on the ice near Stott's corner of Hanover and bridge streets, that evening.

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Traveller on the 7th inst. telegraphed that up that date only three names had been prominently mentioned in Washington as Cleveland's postmaster-general, namely, "Miller of Nebraska, editor of the leading democratic journal of the state; Ex-Representative Frank Jones of New Hampshire, and Congressman Money of Mississippi. Both Mr. Money and Mr. Miller are in the fight for all they are worth, but Mr. Jones is believed to be indifferent to the matter."

The schooner Mabel L. Phillips sailed on Saturday, without having taken on board a large amount of apples and potatoes for Baltimore, as it was stated she would do. Her departure left the north end wharves entirely bare of vessels excepting such as are laid up there for the winter, for the first time in several months.

The Philadelphia & Reading Co.'s steam collier Achilles, Hand master, arrived at this port on Sunday with 1000 tons of coal to J. Albert Walker, and took a berth at the Concord railroad wharf. She was very much iced up. This is her first trip to this port, and she was seventy-four hours making the run, strong northerly winds and a heavy sea having impeded her progress.

The schooner Mary Willey, Capt. Williams, which has been lying at Broughton's wharf since she ceased running between this port and Bangor last fall, sailed on the 7th inst. for Kittery Point, where she will be loaded with ice for the hotels at the Isles of Shoals.

The coasting schooners have had a hard time getting from port to port during the past three weeks, and have made slow work of it. The schooner Martie A. Holmes, which sailed from Portsmouth lower harbor Jan. 26th, arrived at Baltimore on the 5th inst., having had a very unpleasant passage. When she sailed she left in the lower harbor the schooner Maggie J. Chadwick, bound from Portland for Baltimore, and the Minnie C. Taylor, from Portland for New Bedford, they having put in on Jan. 24th, with their sails badly damaged in a blow of the previous day, soon after leaving Portland; these two vessels swung to their anchors until Thursday, Jan. 29th, when they started out, but returned the same day, sailing again on Saturday last, the 7th inst. The schooner Charley Hanley was reported in the lower harbor on the 3d inst., having then been three weeks on the voyage from Rockland to Boston, and we do not know that she has yet sailed for her destination.

There was a considerable show of teams in the city on Saturday from the neighboring towns. York people reported the Post road as in a very bad condition for teams, on account of pitches caused by drifted snow.

In the list of names of the persons who start for New Orleans this morning on the New Hampshire Club excursion we find the following: Edward P. Kimball and wife, and Miss Frances A. Mathes, of this city; Hon. Warren Brown and wife, of Hampton Falls; J. C. Burley and wife, and Col. B. W. Hoyt, of Epping. Mrs. Alden, wife of Rev. W. H. Alden, D. D., and Miss Mary Fuller, of this city, visit New Orleans with the excursion party in charge of Conductor Henry J. Eaton of the Concord & Portsmouth railroad; Mr. A. W. Wingate of Kittery, Me., is also one of the latter party.

The river was entirely free of ice on Saturday—none was to be seen floating either up or down. The water looked a clear, bright blue, the same as in a fair summer day.

The schooner Herald, Fiske master, arrived at Broughton's wharf on Sunday with 880 barrels of lime from Rockland, Me., having been three weeks on the trip. She was well coated with ice from waterline to trucks.

Right Rev. W. W. Niles, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of New Hampshire, administered the rite of confirmation to thirteen candidates at St. John's church in this city on Sunday forenoon, and to seven candidates at Christ church in the evening. In the afternoon, at St. John's church, he baptised the infant son of Rev. H. E. Hovey, rector of the parish, born Jan. 10th—the first male child born to a rector of St. John's for over 200 years.

Saturday evening, as Mr. W. Horace Pettigrew, sexton of the Methodist church, was taking down a wreath from the interior of the church, he was thrown violently to the floor by the spreading of the step-ladder on which he was standing, and sustained a severe sprain. He was taken into a neighbor's house, and the use of morphine was required to still the pain.

In a Portsmouth place of business, Saturday evening, after the departure of an out-of-town party there was picked up on the floor a memorandum as follows: "Five cents Burdock, five cents Dandelion, two quarts Peanuts, Family Story Paper,"—evidently some sick person's allowance of medicines, luxuries and literature to get over Sunday with.

There are several good marine paintings to be seen at the office of E. F. Sise & Co., of famous Portsmouth ships of former times. Among them is a picture of the good and successful little ship Athens, built by George Raynes for E. F. Sise and brothers. She at length went under the English flag at Hull, and at last accounts had been refitted with wire rigging and was actively employed.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The navy department was last week informed that the U. S. S. Marion, now fitting out at this navy yard, would be ready for sea about the 15th inst.

The senate committee on pensions have reported adversely a bill to grant a pension of $50 per month to the widow of Commander S. Dana Greene, U. S. N., who committed suicide at this navy yard some weeks ago. Hon. Henry W. Blair, senator from New Hampshire, submitted a minority report recommending the passage of the bill.

The steamer Mystic on Saturday commenced making extra trips morning and evening, for the accommodation of the workmen on the navy yard, there being about 250 passengers to be transported between this city and the yard, and the Mystic's official limit being 175,—though not enough people can be crowded on the boat to make her unsafe in smooth water, or in the roughest water her skipper would take her into with a load of passengers on board. Her first trip from this city in the morning is now made at 6:40 o'clock, and the second at 7:05; two trips will also be made from the yard at night. These extra trips are necessitated by the taking off of the steamer James Sampson.

Quite a large number of men were "taken on" at the navy yard last week, among them being several democrats! At least such is the report, and it comes from a source we have hitherto found reliable. Among the workmen who have received calls are many ship blacksmiths, eight of whom went to work in the construction department on Saturday morning, and the local supply of mechanics in this branch being exhausted, requisitions for more have been sent to the private shipyards of eastern Maine, and to other navy yards.

Second Lieut. Joseph H. Pendleton, U. S. M. C., was on the 4th inst. detached from the marine barracks at Brooklyn, N. Y., and ordered to the barracks at Portsmouth navy yard. Lieut. Col. C. D. Hebb, commanding the marine guard at this station, was on the 5th inst. granted leave of absence for two months from the 7th, with permission to apply for an extension of one month.

Mr. Stephen T. Raitt of this city, an "old line whig" mugwump and a disciple of Andy Johnson, is mentioned as liable to be appointed boss blacksmith at the Piscataqua navy yard under the coming new dispensation.

Orders have been issued from the navy department to Comdr. Miller, commanding the Marion, to sail for the Asiatic station as soon as the repairs on the ship are completed. She will go by way of the Suez canal, and will not stop at Washington nor on the South Atlantic station, as has been stated.

Chief Engineer B. F. Garvin, in charge of the department of steam engineering at this navy yard, will be retired Feb. 14th by limitation of age. It is reported that Chief Engr. Wm. B. Brooks, fleet engineer of the North Atlantic squadron, will succeed Engr. Garvin here.

In South Berwick, Jan. 9th, a barn owned by Simeon P. Huntress was destroyed by an incendiary fire; and last week George D. Ford of that town, an employe in the Great Works woollen mill, was arrested, and on Friday was held in $1000 to answer to a charge of setting the fire. Bail was furnished, and he returned to his work in the mill. Saturday forenoon a supposed accomplice, named Fred Whitehouse, being threatened with arrest confessed that Ford set the fire, and that he was with Ford at the time. This statement led to Ford's surrender by his bondsmen, and Deputy Sheriff Ham took the accused to his boarding-house, where he entered his room, and being left alone a moment by the officer, shot himself in the head, and died in twenty minutes. Deceased was twenty-six years old, and unmarried.

HEREDITARY SCROFULA.

ARE you aware that in your blood the taint of scrofula has a prominent place? This is true of every one. It is liable at any time, on the slightest provocation, to develop itself in some insidious disease. Consumption and many other diseases are outgrowths of this impurity of the blood. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA has a wonderful power over all scrofulous troubles, as the remarkable testimonials we have received unmistakably prove.

"MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—* * * My youngest son has always been troubled with Scrofulous Humor; sores in his head discharging from discases, and a running sore on the back of his ear for two years; his eyelids would fester and ulcerate, discharging so that I was obliged to wash them open every morning, his eyelashes nearly all coming out; he was exceedingly dainty, most of the time eating but two sight meals a day. We were unable to find anything that had the least effect upon him till last spring, 1876, we gave him two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla. His appetite improved at once. * * The back of his ear healed up without a scar, and not a sore in his head since. Sincere yours,
MRS. N. C. SAWNOW,
No. 103 Merrimack St., Lowell, Mass

"We do not as a rule allow ourselves to use our editorial columns to speak of any remedy we advertise, but we feel warranted in saying a word for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sarsaparilla has been known as a remedial agent for centuries and is recognized by all schools of practice as a valuable blood purifier. It is put up in forms of almost infinite variety, but Messrs. Hood & Co., (Lowell, Mass.) who are thoroughly reliable pharmacists, have hit upon a remedy of unusual value. Certainly they have vouchers of cures which we know to be most extraordinary."—Editors Lowell Weekly Journal.

Persuaded my friends to try it and it has cured every case."—Marshall H. Moody, South Hadley, Mass.

In view of the warnings recently received by the Montreal police of the intention of dynamiters to destroy the Victoria bridge across the St. Lawrence river, no precaution is being overlooked to preserve the structure. Wooden shanties have been built on the ice near both ends of the bridge, and three guards have been posted at each end with instructions to patrol the whole length of the bridge. A system of alternate reliefs will be maintained all winter.

Experience vs. Inexperience.

It is a matter of regret that in introducing Hood's Sarsaparilla, its proprietors are obliged to overcome a certain distrust by some people who have unfortunately bought worthless compounds mixed by persons ignorant of pharmacy. Messrs. C. I. Hood & Co. are reliable pharmacists of long experience and they make no claims for Hood's Sarsaparilla which cannot be substantiated by the strongest proof. And we say to those who lack confidence, read the unsolicited testimonials in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and then prove its merits by actual personal test. We are confident you will not be disappointed, but will find it a medicine of great value, which can be implicitly relied upon. 100 doses $1.

Poison has been found in the stomachs of John Sullivan and wife, found dead in Ansonia, Conn., and the theory of murder by the wife, and suicide, is supported by the medical opinion that the husband died twenty-four hours before the wife. The woman's jealousy was unfounded, but she imagined that he was unfaithful; that he would desert her, or that in dying he would leave her but the widow's third of the small estate which was in his name.

I Wished I was Dead!

After suffering several years with the Leucorrhœa, and no doubt I would have been, only a lady induced me to try Sulphur Bitters. Now I am well. Three bottles cured me.—Mrs. Copps, Newport, R. I.

Glenmore Todd of Burlington, N. J., who was arrested Feb. 5th at Philadelphia on a charge of embezzlement of $100,000 from the Provident Life & Trust company of Philadelphia, was a leading society man in Burlington. When arrested he had just drawn $1250 from the Burlington bank, preparatory to a trip to Florida. The trip has been given up.

Every day adds to the great amount of evidence as to the curative powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Letters are continually being received from all sections of the country, telling of benefits derived from this great medicine. It is unequalled for general debility, and as a blood purifier, expelling every trace of scrofula or other impurity. Now is the time to take it. Made by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by druggists.

Catlin's Indian Pictures.

George Catlin, a Philadelphia artist, was inspired by a visit from a dozen Sioux chiefs to Washington, in 1832, with a determination to visit every tribe of Indians on the continent of North America, and to bring home faithful portraits of their principal personages, male and female, views of their villages, games, etc., and full notes of their character and history; to procure specimens of their costumes, and a complete collection of their weapons, implements, and manufactures, in order to form a gallery. He carried his hazardous undertaking into effect, and roamed about for seven or eight years, in the course of which he visited and associated with, on familiar terms, forty-eight different tribes, the widest and most remote, and brought away five hundred paintings in oil, of which three hundred were portraits, besides an extensive collection of their costumes, etc. He made several unsuccessful endeavors to have congress purchase his collection, and then took it to Europe, where he exhibited it at several capitals, but could not dispose of it. At last he became involved pecuniarily, and an English sheriff seized his collection. After his death, however, it fell into the hands of one who appreciated it, and who generously gave it to the Smithsonian institute.—Ben: Perley Poore.

"My dear," said Mr. Sniginbottom to his wife one day at the table, as he valiantly struggled to carve a piece of meat. "Why do the butchers put these miserable wooden pins into the roasts? Every time I try to carve off a slice I strike on one of them."

"I do not know, dear, unless the meat is more skewer that way," responded Mrs. Snigginbottom.

"Maria, I think you had better see a physician at once. I am afraid overwork is affecting your mind."—Texas Siftings.

ON THE ENGINE.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River branch between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For the past year I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was due partly to irregular habits of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes my head would snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fists. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as though it were a great raw and sore surface, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the constant jar brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next spring when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this crisis of time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pain I left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good and it drove every ache, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night, a while ago, John Clayton, an engineer who runs the main Boston train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a big fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," said "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, filled his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Jim," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, Rondout, N. Y." said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office—everywhere

Wintry Winds.

It's all right for poets to sing the praises of the beautiful snow, and the merry sleigh bells, and the ringing skates on the glassy ice, but they can't fill the bill with that sort of stuff when one is sitting with his feet in a tub of hot water, his head done up in flannels, and with mustard plasters on both sides of his chest. What a person needs then is a thorough dose of Kidney-Wort to act as a cathartic, for nothing will so quickly relieve that congestive, torpid condition which comes of a hard cold. Often these colds cause bilious attacks, lame backs, disordered kidneys, rheumatism, catarrh, etc. Kidney-Wort can be relied on to bring back a healthy condition.

A WOMAN SCORNED.

Margaret Moxley lay half way out of bed, as though dragged there in some awful struggle, her eyes already fixed and staring, her throat cleft with a gash, through which the life-blood flowed in a purple tide.

The poor old woman had been murdered by somebody who could not wait for her death even the little time he would have had to.

The nurse's screams, added to Ginevra's, brought every one in the house about them.

Somebody went tearing away for the doctor, as though he could be of some use, and the rest stood about in horrified groups, or, the more stout-hearted of them, ransacked the house in search of some traces of the murderer.

There was an inquest the next morning, and when Ginevra was brought into the room to give her testimony, quivering in every limb and white with horror, the first face upon which her eyes fell in the apartment was that of Dane Eckhart.

He had been found hiding in the shrubbery, watching for a chance to see Ginevra, and those who knew of the enmity between him and the dead woman, had fallen upon him as her murderer. He had resisted at first, and then, seeing that it was of no use, had come with them. His face was a little pale, but confident, as he stepped to Ginevra's side.

"It was this lady I was watching in the shrubbery to see," he said, trying to take her hand; "she is my wife."

"A singular place to be looking for her," said the coroner mildly; and Ginevra shrank from his extended hand with a strange, threatening look in her dark, horrified eyes.

In that brief moment her mind had gone back in a flash to the day before, and this man's brutal words to her then. She remembered how pitiless he had been, and she was saying to herself now as she said then:

"Heaven help you, Dane Eckhart, if my turn ever comes."

It had come now, and she took it.

In a calm, self-possessed voice; from which every trace of agitation had vanished, she told how she had entered her aunt's room first, and of the ghastly sight that had met her eyes.

"Was anyone else in the room? Did you hear or see anyone?" demanded the coroner.

Gi evra paused, with her eyes bent upon the floor, and an ashy tremor creeping around her lips.

"I cannot testify," she said in low, clear tones; "the man who is charged with her death is my husband. The law does not require the wife to speak in such cases."

Dane Eckhart shrank as though she had struck him. He understood now, if he had not before, what a fool he had been to dare such a woman as this.

"She shall give her testimony," he declared wildly; "she can say nothing to criminate me; let her if she can. She is not my wife; I deceived her with a sham marriage."

Ginevra's lips trembled into a bitter, awful smile, as the man cried out so rashly, but her falling hair hid her face, and none saw anything but the grief of a wife who fears to criminate her husband.

Dane Eckhart caught on the faces the conclusions his rash words had given birth to. He struck himself with his clenched hands and was silent.

The inquest went on, and he was committed for trial at the coming session of the court, for the murder of Margaret Moxley.

He thought it would come to nothing. He said to himself that nothing could come of it, but he shuddered involuntarily as he met the dark, bright, menacing eyes of the woman he had wronged.

Margaret Moxley had made her will in favor of her niece, Ginevra, in those days before she had ever seen Dane Eckhart. When Ginevra had eloped with Dane she had made great pretense of disinheriting her, but she had never made a new will and she sent for her at the last in kindness.

So the property was all Ginevra's, and Dane in his prison-cell on that awful charge, had ample opportunity to meditate on his evil deeds and the evil fruit they had borne him.

Bad as he seemed, Dane Eckhart was not altogether evil. A wanderer ever, learning young "to live by his wits," and seeing life thus in many of its worst phases, he had never aspired to be what is called a good man. Perhaps the nearest approach to his better nature had been his love for beautiful Ginevra Moxley. He had loved her, and it had been no sham marriage between them, as he pretended.

He saw plainly that Ginevra would never consent to leave him, and that they were miserably poor, and with the prospect of worse before them.

He thought that once set free from him, her aunt would take her back, and knowing that she would never go, except in some hasty alternative as this, he had lied to her thus.

He lay in his prison-cell, and thought of all this, and of his too probable coming fate. But he knew better than to attempt to make Ginevra believe him—certainly then.

"When I stand face to face with death I will tell her," he said to himself. "She will believe me then."

The case went up for trial. It is not so difficult to string together evidence enough to hang a man, when there is so little to be said on the other side as in this case, and the very circumstances left little to be said. Besides, Dane Eckhart already bore a bad reputation, and a bad name is as much an injury to a man as a good one is an advantage.

We cannot follow the details of that trial here. Ginevra never went near it. Shut up in her chamber at Moxley, she waited with her beautiful face growing more like marble every hour.

When that verdict of guilty was brought her, she ordered her carriage, and for the first time went to Dane's prison.

Dane smiled as she came in. It was the old winning smile that had won her, and the face, pale though it was with confinement, was the old, handsome, fond face, unobscured by the sneering, half-brutal cloud that had been hovering between her and it of late.

"I am glad you have come. I was about to send and ask you to come," Dane said, and his voice was low, and sweet, and rich with tender feeling, as in the old days when they had been more than all the world to each other.

Something smote this proud woman suddenly, as a burst of sunshine dissolves snow.

Down at his feet, on the prison-floor, she sank, crying:

"Forgive me, Dane!"

Then Dane Eckhart lifted her up, and told his story.

"I will save you yet!" Ginevra cried. "Let me go!"

But Dane shook his head, smiling sadly.

"You may try, my darling, but it will be in vain."

"And it was. The strange, improbable story she told was received as the loving artifice of a fond, too faithful wife—that was all; and Ginevra went back to her husband to say, with her face in his bosom:

"I cannot save you, my beloved, but I shall die with you; I will not live without you."

The awful day approached. There was no remedy, unless, indeed, the real murderer came forward at the last moment and confessed the deed.

There seemed little enough prospect of that; but one evening as Ginevra was driving home from the prison, a strange, hungry-looking creature came out of a clump of bushes by the roadside and spoke to her. She might not have heeded him, he looked so desperate and forlorn, but she caught from his lips her husband's name, and, bidding the driver stop, she leaned eagerly from the carriage-door to listen.

The gaunt, miserable being came close beside her.

"I can't stand it any longer," he said, "and I'm going to give myself up. I was the heir-at-law, and I thought if she lived to see you, she'd make a will and turn me out. I didn't know she had made her will already, and I shouldn't have harmed her if you had been a day later in coming. She would not have lasted of herself till then. It was for my wife and babes, who were starving, and she wouldn't help them. They'll starve now in downright earnest, if the disgrace don't kill them first."

"I will care for them," Ginevra said solemnly, and took the wretch in her carriage, and drove back to town.

It was as the man said. There was plenty of corroborative evidence when it came to that, and Dane Eckhart was free—a thankful, it is hoped, a better, man.

The poor fellow who had really done the deed was, in the end, sent to a lunatic asylum instead of to death. He went mad in the prison, and, some thought, was mad all the time.

Ginevra kept her word. She and Dane took home the starving wife and babes, and shared Margaret Moxley's riches with them, partly from humble gratitude for their own happiness after all, partly because both felt that it was right and just.

American National Tunes Wanted.

A Washington correspondent of a Boston paper says:

Senator Bayard, Congressman Dorsheimer, President Welding of the Columbian university, Colonel Casey of the regular army, Dr. Toner and Mr. W. W. Corcoran constitute the committee to arrange for the music for the dedication ceremony of the Washington monument. The committee is pretty badly shattered over what pieces shall be played. They rejected "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," because it is the same melody as "God Save the Queen." Then Keller's "American Hymn" was proposed, but rejected because none of the members had ever heard it. The "Red, White and Blue" and 'Star Spangled Banner" have been decided upon so far.

If the committee reject "America" because it is a British national tune, they should reject the "Red, White and Blue" for the same reason, it being an old British man-of-war's-men's song. The first line of the song, as sung in this country, is an absurdity; "Columbia's the Gem of the Ocean," indeed! The word "gem," in whatever sense used, does not indicate vastness in size; and the United States—"Columbia"—are not in the ocean at all, but in the centre of a continent. As the song is sung by the old British sea-lion, "Britannia's the Gem of the Ocean," its appropriateness is evident. "Keller's American Hymn" is a really American tune.

The War in the Soudan.

London despatches of Feb. 8th say the next move of Lord Wolseley, according to the orders issued from the war office, will be to capture Berber at all hazards and make of it the permanent English stronghold in the Soudan. All attempts to recapture Khartoum for the present are abandoned. Wolseley believes that the entrenched garrisons at Abu Klea and Gubat are not endangered, although the continued absence of news concerning Lord Charles Beresford's attempt to relieve Sir Charles Wilson causes anxiety. The latter is entrenched on a sandy island in the Nile. It is rumored that an order has been telegraphed to Lord Wolseley to ascertain, if possible, before taking decisive action, whether Gen. Gordon is dead or alive. If he discovers that he is still alive, he is instructed to try to terminate the campaign without further fighting. This instruction is thought to imply a desire on the part of the government to secure the release of Gen. Gordon and his companions by means of a ransom.

The anxiety regarding the fate of Gen. Gordon almost overshadows in the minds of the English people all the thoughts as to the gravity of the great military disaster. The conflicting reports simply whet the appetite to ascertain the exact truth. Col. Wortley says that if Gen. Gordon was in Khartoum at the time of the capture, it is impossible to believe that he can be alive. Col. Wortley himself has abandoned hope of seeing Gen. Gordon again, but says he would like to meet his betrayer. Two of the five natives who witnessed the surrender declare that Gordon was killed, while the others are equally sure that he took refuge in the fort with the faithful. Other Arabs deny that Gen. Gordon has been made a prisoner, and state that he was killed in action, having refused to give or take quarter. The spy service organized by Lord Wolseley, and now directed by Col. Wilson, has misled the commander throughout the campaign. There is a strong opinion at the war office that Gen. Gordon was killed.

Other despatches of the same date say Gen. Wolseley has demanded reinforcements of 8000 men to be sent at once to Egypt. This force will be forwarded from England, and will form the first installment of an army for the Soudan whose numbers will depend upon necessities developed by unforeseen events. There is another report that a new army corps of 10,000 men will be sent to Khartoum by the way of Abyssinia, and that it will be accompanied by a siege train, manned by two or three batteries of artillery, the guns and equipments of which are now ready at Malta and Alexandria.

The Arabs are preparing to attack the British camp near Metemneh. Col. Boscawen, the commander at that place, is seriously ill. His force is barely able to hold the position even against the skirmishers. The Arabs have several heavy guns, which are being gradually moved up, so as to bear on the British camp, and other field pieces are being manœuvred for the same purpose. It is feared that ample time has already elapsed since the fall of Khartoum to allow the rebels to make a movement from Omdurman against the flank or rear of the isolated garrisons at Abu Klea and Gubat. If such a movement has been made it will be absolutely necessary to depend on the Nile steamers to furnish those garrisons with supplies. The success of the Mahdi has badly shaken the allegiance of tribes hitherto considered friendly, which renders the task of the British much more perilous, threatening, as it does, their lines of communication.

It has become evident that the Mahdi will attack Gakdul and the other posts established by Gen. Stewart during his march across the desert. His plan is said to be to attack the positions in detail, to slaughter all the troops which have been left as guards, and to hold the officers as hostages for ransoms. A strong force of Arabs, armed with heavy field guns, is said to be making its way toward Gubat, and the necessity for reinforcing that point is hourly becoming more apparent. Among the garrison at Gubat are many negro troops formerly under Gen. Gordon's command at Khartoum, and it is not believed that they can be trusted.

Gen. Wolseley's proclamation to the Soudanese is as follows: "England has sent me with an army to restore peace, not to collect taxes or injure any one. I will pay you for all supplies, and guarantee to execute Gen. Gordon's promises. Only those deserving punishment at our hands will receive it. I call upon you to submit, and not listen to evil advisers. Come into my camp and see my officers. No one shall harm you, either coming or returning." It is rumored that Wolseley will not assume the burden of action, but will throw the responsibility on the war office. He will not act except under their orders.

The Rowing Championship.

Advices of Saturday, Feb. 7th, from Sydney, New South Wales, indicate that Edward Hanlan of Canada, the celebrated oarsman, in some measure retrieved the laurels lost last fall to William Beach, by defeating Thomas Clifford of Hackney, though until Hanlan meets and defeats the victor of last year he can hardly rest content. The last race was rowed on the Paramatta river for stakes of $2500 a side, and Hanlan proved the victor by six lengths, amid great excitement. This race, however, did not carry with it championship honors by the conditions under which it was rowed, although Clifford held the nominal championship, which he still retains, through the recent default of Beach, who surrendered forfeit money and title for some unexplained reason. Beach and Clifford were to row on Feb. 28th. If the former won, he and Hanlan were to race a month later, while if Clifford won, Hanlan was to contest the championship with him on April 18th. The arrangement was thrown out by Beach's forfeiture, though the last race will probably go on. But it is extremely doubtful if Beach can again be induced to measure sculls with the Canadian.

HEREDITARY SCROFULA.

ARE you aware that in your blood the taint of scrofula has a prominent place? This is true of every one. It is liable at any time, on the slightest provocation, to develop itself in some insidious disease. Consumption and many other diseases are outgrowths of this impurity of the blood. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA has a wonderful power over all scrofulous troubles, as the remarkable testimonials we have received unmistakably prove.

"MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—* * * My youngest son has always been troubled with Scrofulous Humor; sores in his head discharging from his ears, and a running sore on the back of his ear for two years; his eyelids would fester and ulcerate, discharging so that I was obliged to wash them open every morning, his eyelashes nearly all coming out; he was exceedingly dainty, most of the time eating but two slight meals a day. We were unable to find anything that had the best effect upon him till last spring, 1883, we gave him two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla. His appetite improved at once. * * The back of his ear healed up without a scar, and not a sore in his head since. Sincerely yours,

Mrs. N. C. SANBORN,
No. 103 Merrimack St., Lowell, Mass

"We do not as a rule allow ourselves to use our editorial columns to speak of any remedy we advertise, but we feel warranted in saying a word for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sarsaparilla has been known as a remedial agent for centuries and is recognized by all schools of practice as a valuable blood purifier. It is put up in forms of almost infinite variety, but Messrs. Hood & Co., (Lowell, Mass.) who are thoroughly reliable pharmacists, have hit upon a remedy of unusual value. Certainly they have vouchers of cures which we know to be most extraordinary."—Editors Lowell Weekly Journal.

THE "BUNCH OF KEYS."

The "Bunch of Keys," as performed by Bride & Frear's company at Music hall on Monday evening, is a gentle laugh in the first act, and a storm of fun during the rest of the performance. It is the best of the modern light "comedies," so-called, that has been presented here for a long time, and an audience that could resist its mirth-provoking elements would be a phenomenon.

The leading lady, Miss Hattie Anderson, was superb, and her singing gained several encores; Arthur Dunn, as Grimes, was excellent, and amused the audience throughout; Fred Frear, as the hotel keeper, was good, and his high comedy points were well received by the audience; Miss Jennie Dunn's singing and dancing were admirable, and Miss Nellie Bowers and Miss Earle came in for their share of applause.

To witness so amusing a production given in so thoroughly satisfactory a manner, reserved seat tickets can be procured at Goodrich's bookstore.

COL. CHARLES G. PICKERING.

The funeral services of Col. Charles G. Pickering took place on Monday at noon, Capt. Thomas A. Harris and wife having arrived home on Saturday from Cleveland, Ohio, with the remains. The committal service was conducted by De Witt Clinton Commandry of Knights Templar, of which the deceased was a member. Col. Pickering was an active and valued member of the Masonic fraternity, both in this city, his native place, and in Cleveland, where he had resided the past ten years. He was the organizer, and until his departure from the city was master, of New Hampshire Chapter of Rose Croix, and as a presiding officer approached very near to perfection. He was a Mason of the 33d degree.

Col. Pickering was a man of commanding height and presence — one whose splendid physical proportions and manly bearing would attract attention among crowds of ordinary men; and his urbanity was never failing. The humblest laborer who once became known to him was never afterward passed without a courteous salute,—a salute in which there was no hint of anything patronizing, but the pleasant recognition of a true gentleman—just such a salute as he would give the governor or the wealthy capitalist; he was at home in the most polished society, and made the least polished feel at ease.

His death while yet in the full vigor of middle age was caused by an acute affection of the bowels.

The crew of the Setegawa jumped on board the Minnie C. Taylor, and were landed at Wood's Hole on Sunday afternoon. The Minnie C. Taylor lost her jibboom and head gear. The Setegawa was towed into Newport, R. I., Monday, by the steamer Lancaster, Capt. Mills.

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK CORNER, ME., Feb. 1885.

MONDAY, 2d. Sleighs minus horses were found this morning by the wayside between Brixham and York harbor. The young men who went a-courtin' in the snowstorm of yesterday afternoon were duly warned by the writer hereof that they would get snowed in—and they should have flea-d from the snow to come, but they "passed on and were punished." Moral: "Hearken to the voice of wisdom."

Mr. Chas. L. Grant, who has carried the mail between Cape Neddick and Portsmouth for eight years past, reports this day as the hardest he has ever experienced. He has demolished his runners, broken up harnesses, and badly cut two good horses. Mr. Henry Moulton and Mr. Wm. G. Moulton, who were drawn as jurors to the United States District court now being held at Portland, went on the stage with Mr. Grant, and before they had got one mile west of the "Corner" Mr. Henry Moulton's nasal appendage was frozen badly. Another bad result of going-a-court-in' in cold weather.

TUESDAY, 3d. Breaking roads has been the order of the day. Mr. Chas. H. Junkins, who is surveyor on the Post-road, reports more snow and deeper cuts than he ever knew.

Mr. Wm. H. Manson, the veteran fish peddler, who has sailed for Uncle Sam for many years, and seen some cold weather, yesterday for the first time in his life froze his "belaying cleats," on the sides of his head.

Mr. Ivory Simpson, a pensioner of the war of 1812 and a man highly respected, is now seriously ill and but little hopes are entertained of his recovery. His 90th birthday will occur on the 24th inst.

Samuel Sedgley, Esq., one of our most prominent citizens, died to-day at his residence, aged about seventy years.

WEDNESDAY, 4th. Mr. Dan. Haven McIntire was baptized a few days ago near York beach, Mr. S. G. Donnell officiating. They were getting out ice, and the ice was frozen with the slippery side up.

Edward E. Mitchell has finished his school, and will commence clerking for Mr. Chas. H. Junkins next Monday.

Miss M. Esther Mitchell, who has been teaching for eight months steady, has closed her school, and will shortly visit friends at Limerick.

Isaiah P. Moody, Esq., for many years a resident of York, but recently of Boston, died at that city yesterday. His remains will be brought here for interment.

A young child of Jos. C. Blaisdell died at Lynn, Mass., yesterday; the body will be brought here for burial.

THURSDAY, 5th. Miss Theodocia Bragdon died here to-day, aged about seventy-two years

FRIDAY, 6th. Mrs. Hannah Norton of Cape Neddick died this morning, aged about eighty years. P.

THE "LANCASTER FAMILIES."

The following, from the Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, will be read with considerable interest by many persons here, where the Lancaster was rebuilt and fitted for sea, and where Rear Admiral English is well known from having been stationed several years at this navy yard:

Quite a little stir has been raised in naval circles by the news that came from the Lancaster, the flagship of the Mediterranean fleet. Secretary Chandler two years ago issued an order forbidding officers on foreign stations to have their families with them, and, although it seemed arbitrary and unconstitutional at the time, the case of the Lancaster has illustrated the customs that the order was designed to break up. Commodore English took his wife and two daughters and several more female relatives over with him when he joined his ship. This "Pinafore" company was reinforced by the wives of other officers of the flagship, until, in naval parlance, there were fifteen "Lancaster families" living at Nice, where the flagship stayed at anchor, and the census of the Quinnebaug and other ships is not yet known. Mrs. English gave dancing receptions and afternoon teas on board the ship, and the social season was in full sway, when the secretary cabled over for the Lancaster to go down to the mouth of the Congo and join the fleet of friendly war ships there. The "Lancaster families" stormed loudly when the orders were known, berated the secretary of the navy and all bureau chiefs here, and saying that it was only done to spite the ladies, declared that the order would be evaded. Some civilians overheard the mutterings, wrote the whole story to Secretary Chandler, and, in consequence, the latest orders sent out to Commodore English commanded him to investigate the conduct of his officers and put under arrest those who have spoken disrespectfully of the secretary of the navy and of the department in general.

Some of the navy people, and a good many others, smile "sarkastikul" at the idea of Rear Adm. English finding out who among the officers of the Lancaster have been speaking disrespectfully of a mere civilian secretary for venturing to interfere with one of the unwritten laws of the navy, duly established by the officers of the navy and sanctioned by long usage. One of the officers of the Lancaster is the admiral's son-in-law, and he is quite as likely as any of them to have openly resented Secretary Chandler's meddling with their rights and privileges.

Mr. Asa Caswell, a native of Rye, but for many years a resident of Natick, Mass., where he carried on the business of a carpenter and builder, died on Sunday last, at the age of sixty-three years.

Mr. William R. Gerrish, for many years in the employ of Burdett, Young & Ingalls of Boston as a cutter, died on the 7th inst. in that city. He was born in Portsmouth, and was about sixty-one years old at the time of his death.

At a meeting of the South Congregational church in Concord, Saturday evening, the pastor, Rev. Wm. H. Hubbard, referring to a recent controversy in that society, stated that certain members of his congregation had made false accusations against him. He called upon the deacons to cite the accusers to appear before the proper committee, and asked that a hearing be held and the subject be thoroughly investigated and inspected.

Saved from the Grave.

"A severe cold, ending in a hard, dry cough, caused me to pass many sleepless nights, coughing until it seemed as though my head would burst. I told my friends that I must die. I was advised to try Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer. First dose was a great surprise; slept all night in peace. It cured me right up. Persuaded my friends to try it and it has cured every case."—Marshall H. Moody, South Hadley, Mass.

George W. Neal and wife, aged and respected residents of Loudon, were both buried in one grave there on Saturday.

Don't Look Like a Wreck.

"When a man is going down hill everybody is ready to give him a kick." Yes, that is so. It is sad, but natural. Why, many a man and woman, seeking employment, would have got it if their hair hadn't been so thin and gray. One bottle of Parker's Hair Balsam is then the best investment. It stops falling hair, promotes new growth and restores color. Clean, highly perfumed, not a dye. A great improvement over any similar preparation, and sold at the low price of 50c.

Mr. Wolseley, the great military leader who has gotten the gallant British soldiers in the Soudan into such perilous straits, is the gentleman who persistently refers to the great Union commander as "Mr." Grant, and doesn't think he is entitled to be considered much of a general. Wonder how much of a showing Mr. Wolseley would have made against such hard fighting and ably-led soldiers as supported the secession cause?

Mrs. Dudley's Antecedents.

A lady with whom Mrs. Dudley, Rosa's assailant, formerly lived at Barnet, England, says that Mrs. Dudley was devoted to her illegitimate child, whom she christened Lucille Marguerite. Although she behaved with propriety, she was remarkable for untruthfulness and contempt for human life; yet she devotedly nursed her landlady through a serious illness. The father of her child, an English clergymen, paid Mrs. Dudley an allowance which ceased on the death of the child, when the woman, though poor, spent £50 for an elaborate tombstone. Her grief was so great that it was feared she would commit suicide. This was the only child the woman had. After its death she endeavored to earn a living as a sculptor's model, but her efforts failed, and the disappointment that followed in her attempt to procure employment resulted in frequent attempts at self destruction. She then wore spectacles in order to conceal a defect in one of her eyes. At one time she was known at Hastings as notorious for furious riding and hunting, and almost succeeded in marrying an old surgeon having grown up daughters. Mrs. Dudley bitterly denounced those who prevented the match, and left the place heavily in debt. She promised to settle the account of her landlady from the proceeds of a life insurance policy which she had taken out for the benefit of her child, but the premiums on which she failed to pay. She suffered from lung and heart affections, and her friends assisted her to come to America in hope that she would be able to earn her living here.

Kosciusko Murphy is not a very well-informed young man, but he never misses an opportunity of having his say and he frequently puts his foot into it. A few days ago two Austin gentlemen were talking in a restaurant. "I hardly think Gen. Wolseley will get over the cataracts," said one of them. "As I understand it the cataracts are to be removed," responded the other gentleman. "Then he will get over it," interrupted Murphy, who was sitting at a table close by. "I had an uncle who had two cataracts removed and he got over it.—Texas Siftings.

A gentleman traveling through Ireland with a very stout companion had occasion to have a jaunting-car, and having agreed with the driver for half a crown, stepped back to the inn where he was staying and called his fat friend. The driver, as soon as he got a glimpse of the enormous dimensions of his "fare," walked up to the head of his horse, and hold ng up the tattered lappets of a worn-out jacket said; "Whist, sir, got up as lightly as ye can will ye?" "What, is your beast skittish?" asked the gentleman. "No, sir," said Pat, with an inimitably shrewd leer, "but if he saw the big gentleman, he'd most like y say: 'Whist, Pat, but it ought to be five shillings.—Every Other Saturday.

Farmer John—"Fox hunters? Wall, I should say we had fox hunters in these parts. Funniest crowd you ever seed in your life. Makes me shake all over everytime I think of 'em." Visitor—"City chaps, I suppose?" "Yas. They come down from the city, and stopped at the Old Time Inn, beyond the hill there—twenty-two of 'em, all in red jackets and yellow boots looking like organ-grinder monkeys off for a holiday." "Funny sight, I've no doubt." "Funny? Why, Jake and Josh and me, when we seed them kittin' over the meadow, just laid down on the barn floor and roared!" "Did they catch the fox?" "Yes, they got him." "Must have been pretty good riders, then, anyhow." "No, when the fox saw 'em comin' he got to laughin' so hard he couldn't run.—Philadelphia Call.

"As Good as New,"

Are the words used by a lady, who was one time given up by the most eminent physicians, and left to die. Reduced to a mere skeleton, pale and haggard, not able to leave her bed, from all those distress-ing diseases peculiar to suffering females, such as displacement, leucorrhœa, inflammation, etc., etc. She began taking Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," and also using the local treatment recommended by him, and is now, she says, "as good as new." Price reduced to one dollar. By duggists.

At Cleveland, Ohio, on Saturday, Mrs. J. A. Garfield filed an answer in the common pleas court to the petition of Thankful Tanner, who entered suit a few days ago against Mrs. Garfield for $25,000. Tanner was knocked down by Mrs. Garfield's carriage and very slightly injured. The answer denied that Tanner was seriously injured.

Catarrh

Is a very prevalent and exceedingly disagreeable disease, liable, if neglected, to develop into serious consumption. Being a constitutional disease, it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, effecting a radical and permanent cure of catarrh in even its most severe forms. Made only by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

John C. Eno is reported to be getting very uneasy concerning the legislation in the Dominion parliament regarding the extradition of American offenders from Canada. Mr. Achille Carrier of Montreal, a young Canadian lawyer, who has been for months past a constant visitor at the residence of Eno, has left for New York on legal business, and it is surmised to negotiate for Eno's return.

ON THE ENGINE.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River Train. It is a hard run between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such a blinding sick headache that I could scarcely see. I think this was one part of my regular habits of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine, etc. Sometimes my head would snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fist. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach did as though it were a great raw sore, and suffer, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1879 when we had the heavy excursion travel, the constant jar brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the engine. But I kept at work until the next attack when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been troubled by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this crucial time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pain left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good and it drove every ache, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night, a while ago, John Layton, an engineer who runs the main line boat train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," said, "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, filled his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Ivan," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, rondout, N. Y." said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office—everywhere

"Why, what are you putting that on my feet for," asked a man with a heavy cold. "Why, to draw the cold out of your head," answered the considerate nurse. "The deuce you say, I would rather have it stay where it is than be drawn the whole length of my body." At any rate there is a more pleasant method than that, go and get me a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

The Providence Journal remarks: "It would not be surprising, at this time, if a good many eyes in England were turned toward Gibralter, where the vigorous veteran Lord Napier, of Magdala, is in command, and recollection is revived of the swift and safe march of his flying column of ten thousand men to the capital of Abyssinia, and its capture in one charge. The present campaign of England's 'only General' does not stand the test of comparison very well."

The steamers Elm City and Narragansett collided on Saturday morning, Feb. 7th, near the head of Long Island sound. The Naragansett was stuck in the ice, and the Elm City was steaming slowly. The bow of the Narragansett smashed the port rail of the Elm City forward of the wheel, but did no serious damage.

The railroad accident at Creston, Iowa, on the 8th, was more disastrous than first reported. Three men and three women were killed outright, and three of the wounded have died and two others are not expected to recover.

It is stated that several thousand rifles and some tons of ammunition have been shipped from French ports for conveyance to El Mahdi. Great indignation is expressed in English official circles at this covert aid afforded by France to England's enemies.

The Heart Is Ever Young.

The heart is young, the heart is ever young,
Thrilling with rapturous emotions still,
When True his dirge of many years has sung,
As when the gladsome voice, from cave and hill,
Rang out in early youth, and many a thrill
Of wild delight rang through each stainless breast.
The heart is even young and takes its fill
Of joy, when in the robes of age 'tis drest,
Or on a mother's bosom finds its rest.

Time makes no wrinkles on it; it is fair
In the old man of three score years and ten
As in the stripling, buoyant, free from care,
Longing to reach the riper years of men.
The kingly eagle boasts a sharper ken
When he has soared aloft for many years,
Braving the sunshine, lightning, storm, as when
First from his eyrie, mid contending fears,
He rose, and scorned the depth where crag appears.

The locks may whiten 'neath the snows of age,
And nature fade upon the sightless ball;
Sounds sink to silence and no more engage
The listless ear, once open to the call
Of father, mother, sister, loved ones all;
The blood still circles round a youthful heart,
Which, although conscious of its bitter thrall,
Lives in its pleasant memories, to part,
From them, when life's last deep foundations start.

Treat kindly, then, the old; for know that thou,
If heaven permit thee, may be such as they;
And think, if 'neath long years thou'rt called to bow
And bear the locks of venerable gray,
Thou'lt hope to pass the evening of thy stay
Kind friends and tender relatives among;
And when disease on thee his hand shall lay,
And 'neath death's touch thy nerves shall be unstrung,
Then shalt thou mount and sing, the heart is young.

MY AUNT'S MISTAKE.

I am young, and some say I am pretty. The first is a self-evident fact, but everybody does not agree about the latter. Aunt Lena, for instance, can find nothing attractive in my small face and big blue eyes, which she says are out of all proportion.

She is papa's sister, and almost young enough to be his daughter. There can be no question as to her good looks; everybody agrees that she is a magnificently handsome woman.

Her eyes are large and dark, and her eyebrows and eyelashes simply perfect. Those eyes would make plain face charming, I am sure. Yes, my aunt has the advantage of me in personal appearance, and I am ready to acknowledge the fact cheerfully.

We are giving a dance this evening, and auntie, of course, will put me completely in the shade. But if I make a few conquests she will be as jealous as if I could rival her in beauty. She thinks I ought to be still in the schoolroom, but, fortunately for me, my father and mother are not of this opinion.

She is looking superbly handsome in her silken draperies, and I gaze at her with involuntary admiration.

As I glance at her I become vaguely conscious that my father is piloting a stranger through the crowded rooms.

It is a small affair, but our rooms are not large.

I have just dismissed my first partner, but aunt is still talking to hers, which is the reason, perhaps, that, after being introduced, the new comer asks me to give him the next dance.

Godfrey Thornton's very pleasant, and dances exquisitely. He is rather pale and thin, but I like his face so much.

He is ages older than I, I dare say; but, in my own mind, I admit that he is none the worse for that.

Aunt looks at us curiously. I believe she thinks Mr. Thornton is paying me too much attention. He cannot read the expression of her large, sleepy, eyes; but I can, and I know she is wondering what a man of intellect can find to say to that little chit!

"Your aunt is very handsome," he says abruptly.

"Indeed she is," I answer with a smile; but—shall I confess it?—for the first time in my life I feel a little bit envious of my aunt's beauty.

And yet, although he dances with her later in the evening, he shares his attentions so equally that my aunt cannot boast of having made a conquest. He has been very nice, but nothing in his manner has betrayed the fact that he prefers Aunt Lena to me, as he must, of course.

I can scarcely sleep that night; my mind is in such a tumult. He pressed my hand at parting, but he had been very cordial to my aunt, I remember, with a foolish thrill, that cannot surely be jealousy.

I am glad when morning comes, and after breakfast take up a shabby sunburnt hat and go into the garden. My aunt would not be seen in such a hat for the world, and gives me a glance of great disapproval as I go out of the room.

"You will be sorry some day for letting that girl fritter her time away as she does," I heard her say. "Her foolish head was quite turned by the attention she received last night."

I cannot distinguish what my mother says in return; but I fancy I hear her gentle deprecating voice making excuses for me, papa siding with his wife, as he always does, and turning Aunt Lena's remarks to ridicule.

He is fond of his sister, but equally fond of his little girl. If it were not so, and my aunt Lena had the upper hand, my life would be anything but a bed of roses.

There is an old apple-tree in the garden, and I sit down under it and lose my eyes in delightful solitude. A few moments later I open them and spring up in confusion, for some instinct tells me I am no longer alone.

Mr. Godfrey Thornton is looking at me with an expression of amusement in his face.

"Good morning, Lena," he says, taking off his hat and revealing his sunny shaped head, which I cannot help admiring, in spite of my annoyance.

"Good morning," I answer rather shortly; "aunt is indoors."

"Thank you for the information," he returns with a smile. "Why is she not in the garden on such a hot morning?"

"Because she prefers to remain in the house," I say.

"I am sorry to hear it," he tells me. "Does she not love this pretty, old-fashioned garden—or is it that she has something else to occupy her time?" he adds with a laugh, and sly glances at my idle hands.

"She might bring her work out here if she liked," I say; "but aunt does not care much for this old-fashioned garden."

"You do, though," he says, throwing him off down on the grass.

"Yes, I do, indeed," I answer readily; "for it is a way full of simple flowers all the year round, and I like flowers better than anything else in the world. It does not matter what they are—crocuses, primroses, wallflowers, roses, daffodils, geranium—I love them all. Look at the roses now," pointing to the masses of green leaves and sweet fragrant blossoms. "Could anything be more beautiful?"

"I don't know," returned my visitor, looking at me with a smile; "that is a matter of opinion. Your aunt, for instance, is better worth looking at than those roses, even."

"Why don't you go indoors and tell her so?" I cry rather pettishly. "I am sure she will be pleased to hear you say so, though she knows it so well."

"Well, I think I'll take your advice," he says, rising from his recumbent position; "but won't you give me a rose before I go?"

"You can pick as many as you like," I return. "Our gardener is not a despot, as you can see, by the way the flowers are allowed to run wild."

"But I only want one," he says, and does not offer to pick it for himself.

"Here, then," I say, breaking off a small and rather sickly-looking bud. "You can have this if you like."

He takes it with a smile, and walks away with it rosebud in his hand. My face flushes as I look after him, conscious that I have acted in a very silly and childish manner. Why did I not give him one of the roses that are blooming around me in such profusion?

I do not go indoors until it is time for luncheon, and when, after washing my hands and putting on a clean collar and face cuffs, I go downstairs, I find that Mr. Thornton is in the dining-room, sitting at the table with the others.

ON THE ENGINE.

Running a Locomotive While Deathly Sick, Suffering the Passengers Did Not Know—A Physician Saves an Engineer.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River in the train between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. I had had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was due partly to irregular habits of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes I would wind snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fist. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as though it were a great raw sore sore all over, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1879 when we had the heavy rainfall travel, the cold and air brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I would have to leave the road. But I kept at work on it the next spring when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this crisis at time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. I gave it a trial, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pain left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good and it drove every ache, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night, a while ago, John Upton, an engineer who runs the main line boat train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Now-see, John," said, "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, filled his head and gave him a good dose. He went home. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Dan," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, Rondout, N. Y.," said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office—everywhere

The War in the Soudan.

Despatches from London on the 9th said: "The force of Col. Buller will reach Gubat to-morrow. He was instructed not to attack the Arabs at Metemneh. Later orders, however, leave him at liberty to act as he thinks fit. The force at Gubat now consists of 2600 men and several guns. All newspaper correspondents have left Gubat and are returning to Korti. Gen. Wolseley declines to permit noncombatants to remain at the front. It is believed that the correspondents will also be stopped from communicating to their papers."

The government has decided to call out the reserves, and also a portion of the militia for garrison duty in place of the troops now being forwarded to Egypt. Gen. Roberts, it is believed, has been requested to assume command of the Indian contingent ordered to Wolseley's relief. The government is chartering several steamers to carry troops to Suakim. Great activity prevails at Chatham. Woolwich and Aldershot, and the preparations for sending reinforcements to Egypt are being rapidly pushed.

Gen. Wolseley telegraphed the war office on the 9th from Korti, saying that a messenger just in from Berti brought news of Gen. Earle. The general, with his command, was making rapid progress toward Berber, the objective point of his expedition. His advance guard, composed of a detachment of cavalry, at the time of the runner's departure from Berti had reached Shakoob wells, where they surprised and put to flight a large body of rebels who had encamped at the wells on their way to join Osman Digna; thirty of the rebels were killed, and six taken prisoners. The cattle and camels belonging to the band, and a large number of Remington rifles, were secured. The rebels were said to be under the leadership of the chief who inveigled Col. Stewart to his death.

It was reported that the government had received word that Sir Charles Wilson, who led Gen. Stewart's army to Gubat after the Zariba fight on Jan. 19th, and who, after failing to reach Khartoum, was stranded with his entire party on an island in the Nile, and then surrounded by hostile Arabs, is safe. The opinion prevails at the war office that Gen. Gordon is still alive and engaged in defending himself in some inaccessible part of the city of Khartoum, where he had prepared a refuge for use in the emergency of the fall of the city.

The Grenadier guards have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness for foreign service. Three thousand reinforcements, at the urgent demand of Lord Wolseley, have been ordered to proceed as rapidly as possible to Egypt, to open a route between Suakim and Berber. The total number of reinforcements already ordered to Egypt is 8000.

Fears of Asiatic Cholera.

The officers of the National Board of Health have prepared for the consideration of Congress a statement gloomy in its character which is intended to sharply call the attention of Congress to its duty in the matter of threatened epidemic from Asiatic cholera, which is already at our doors. The records show that in every instance where Asiatic cholera has prevailed in Europe it has reached this country in the same year or in the year after. This is true of the epidemics of 1832, 1849, 1854, 1866 and 1873. The national health authorities do not know why there should be any exception in the case of the epidemic which last year prevailed in Europe. They therefore urge upon Congress the necessity of such action as will enable the government to do what it can both to prevent the entrance of the epidemic at our doors and to restrict if it should enter. The conclusions of the board are set forth in this statement:

The following statement will serve to confirm the facts gathered from the history of Asiatic cholera, as to the movements of the epidemics which have reached this country: Epidemic of 1832—Prevailed in India in 1826 and 1827; in Russia, 1829; in northern Europe and England in 1831, and in the United States in 1832. Epidemic of 1849—Prevailed in Persia in 1846, in Russia in 1847, in northern Europe, England and Ireland in 1848, and in the United States in 1849. Epidemic of 1854—Prevailed in Russia, northern Europe and England in 1853, and in the United States in 1854. Epidemic of 1866—Prevailed in Bombay in 1864; in Europe in 1865 and the United States in 1866. Epidemic of 1873—Prevailed in Persia in 1868-70; in Russia 1869-72; in Austria, Hungary, North Germany and England from 1871 to 1873, and in the United States in 1873. It is upon these facts that the conviction is based that Asiatic cholera is likely to make its appearance in this country again at an early day, and it is with a knowledge of these facts that this board has arrived upon the civil and military authorities of the several states the importance of inaugurating the most thorough system of local sanitation.

The St. Albans (Vt.) Messenger says that an uncommon case of mineral poisoning resulting in death, has occurred in Putney, Vt. Patrick Murphy, a man of about thirty-five years and of good habits, having to travel about one mile to his work, has made a practice of taking to the mill as a beverage cider in a tin pail, the cider corroding the tin coating of the pail, thus acting on the system like lead poison, according to the opinion of physicians in attendance.

Mrs. Agnes Booth, whose marriage to Mr. John B. Shoeffel, manager of the New York Park theatre, occurred recently at Boston, was the third wife of the late Junius Brutus Booth, and Mr. Schoeffel is her third husband.

Hon. Noah Woods of Bangor, Me., has resigned the office of president and treasurer of the European & North American railway, and has removed to Princeton, N. J.

The telephone is in operation between New York and Chicago. On Sunday, the 8th. inst., Mayor Harrison of Chicago sent the following to Mayor Grace of New York; "Mayor Harrison, at Chicago, asks Mayor Grace to protect Gov. Cleveland from the office seekers, and wants him to live four years, and not be killed by New Yorkers this week."

Philomela Goddard died in Simesbury, Conn., in the autumn of 1883, and left the whole of her estate, consisting entirely of personal property, invested in solid securities, and valued at $20,000, to the Methodist church in that place. She was ninety years of age at the time of her death. The will is to be contested.

Waltham, Me., has neither doctor, minister nor blacksmith, according to the Mt. Desert Herald.

Schooner G. P. Whitman, arrived at Gloucester, Mass., Feb. 9th, from a bank halibuting trip, reports very severe weather on Grand Bank; was hove down, had her decks swept, lost five dories, broke her foreboom, tore her foresail and jib, and lost her davits; brought in only 4000 lbs. of halibut. Spoke the new schooner Neskletia of Lockeport, N. S., off the Isle of Sable, with loss of anchor and cable, and rudder gone, trying to get in; had 12,000 lbs of halibut, Schooner Lizzie J. Greenleaf, from a bank halibuting trip, reports the loss of anchor and 300 fathoms of cable. Schooner Marie Doane arrived on the 9th from Grand Manan with a full cargo of frozen herring, and sailed for Boston.

James G. Cunningham and Harry Burton, charged under the explosive act with conspiracy in causing the explosion at the Tower of London on Jan. 24th, were arraigned at the Bow street police court Feb. 9th, when the government withdrew the charge, and entered one of treason-felony against the two prisoners jointly, the punishment for the latter crime being death. Some evidence was adduced against Cunningham, and both prisoners were remanded. The crown counsel said it was a curious fact that the dock laborer Cunningham and the carpenter Burton had been able to afford frequent trips between America and England, their visits to England coinciding with the times of the explosions at the Carlton Club and elsewhere. The complicity of the prisoners was becoming daily clearer. Dr. Dupre, government chemist, had declared that the detonator found by the detectives among Cunningham's effects could not be bought at retail, and would not cause an explosion without dynamite.

In New York, Feb. 9th, Richard Short, the dynamiter who stabbed Capt. Phelan, was released on $3000 bail. Dennis Corbet, a West Thirty-ninth street liquor dealer, became his bondsman. John Roche, George Smith, Rocky Mountain O'Brien and a dozen other members of the Fenian brotherhood, accompanied Short across the street from the Tombs to Counsellor Oliver's office, and tendered him a congratulatory reception.

Margaret Mather commenced a two weeks engagement at the Boston Theatre on Monday, appearing the first evening as Lady Macbeth.

Living People

people, who are prominent and influential, send us their testimonials, certifying what a vast amount of good Sulphur Bitters has done them.

The Baggage Master, Boston and Maine Railroad, Lawrence, Mass., A. WILLIAMS, says: For several years I was subject to frequent and very severe attacks of sick headache, caused no doubt by imperfect digestion, as my stomach troubled me a great deal, and although I have spent many dollars, I failed to find permanent relief until I used Sulphur Bitters. Since using this medicine I have had no return of the headache, and my stomach has regained its original tone and vigor, and I believe

Sulphur Bitters

Bitters is a reliable family medicine.

EDWARD KNOTT, Postmaster, Waverly, Ia., says: I have been in poor health for years, and suffered greatly from biliousness and torpid liver. I have consulted the best physicians and spent a great deal of money, with no permanent benefit, and had about lost faith in everything. I purchased three bottles of Sulphur Bitters and commenced to take them; and, to my great joy, I began to feel better after the first dose. My head is free from pain, my appetite good, and since using Sulphur Bitters I enjoy life with a zest long deemed impossible; and they will purify the blood as no other can do.

who are now living send us their testimonials. We publish nothing from dead persons, or give false names.

A running sore for 14 years cured. HENRY H. GARCELON, of Lewiston, Me., says: I have suffered with a running sore on my leg for the past 14 years, caused by exposure in the army, and have suffered everything a man could, the sore discharging constantly. I have tried every remedy that I heard of, but without benefit. Sulphur Bitters is the only thing that ever did me any good. When I commenced taking them I could not put my foot on the floor. I can now put my whole foot on the floor and walk on it. I think Sulphur have saved my life. There is nothing like them. I earnestly entreat all afflicted with impure blood to try them and be cured.

The Cashier of the Boston Loan Co., WM. E. DURGIN, says: I recommend your Sulphur Bitters as the best spring medicine I have ever used; there is nothing like them to give an appetite, tone up the system, and do away with that languid feeling which is so frequent among those confined indoors. If you are sick and unable to obtain relief from other medicines, try Sulphur Bitters, for it will cure you. Cleanse the vitiated blood when you see its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, blotches and sores.

They Will Cure You.

The well known Manager of the Raymond Excursions to California, I. A. WHITCOMB, says: No other medicine can equal Sulphur Bitters for biliousness and dyspepsia. They have cured me when all other remedies failed.

THE WEATHER.

For New England To-day:

Fair weather, much colder.

The thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 5 degrees above zero.

Sky clear.

TOO MUCH WATER.

A warm rain commenced falling gently about 11:30 o'clock Monday night, and an hour after midnight the water was coming down in torrents, turning the snow in the streets to slosh, and rapidly melting the ice and snow on the roofs of buildings. At daylight Tuesday morning the good sleighing of the day previous had been transformed into the worst travelling seen for years, the snow being saturated and softened so that a sleigh-runner or wheel, or a pedestrian's foot, would slump through to the ground.

There was no walking out for pleasure, Tuesday forenoon; and many of those who had to go out, wouldn't go. The street commissioner's men were early at work, cutting channels to release the miniature lakes which made the streets almost impassible in many places; but the bakers' carts did not make their rounds, and some of the grocers delivered goods with hand-sleds. The milkmen had a hard job to get into the city, some arriving about noon and some not at all; one had a considerable part of his milk spilled, and another found his pung full of water on arrival at his first customer's house.

The damage done by the flooding of cellars, and by the backing-in of water under the eaves of dwellings and stores, was more general than any previous record tells of, though no individual losses are reported so heavy as some of those caused by the same means three winters ago. The goods in one of the show windows of Montgomery's music and art store were ruined; and the clothing stores of Henry Peyser & Son and Ed. S. Fay, the dry goods store of George B. French, George Hill's drug store, and other places of business, suffered considerably, most of the damage being in the vicinity of the windows.

ALL HANDS 'BOUT SHIP.

The fickleness of politicians is at present very observable, and reminds one of the old saying that "Politics makes strange bed-fellows."

Exultingly proclaimed a Kittery man who has been the recipient of many favors from the republican party for the last quarter of a century, as he was engaged in conversation with a prominent democrat of that town a week or two ago, "We've got 'em now, and they can't count us out this time!" a remark which considerably amused the prospective dispenser of democratic patronage across the river, as he knew this hilarious democrat voted the Blaine ticket in November.

"Were there many men taken on at the navy yard this morning?" was asked by a democrat of the 4th ward of a man who has voted the republican ticket right along, and has had many a good job "on the yard," on the Monday after the naval appropriation bill was passed. "Well, yes," was the answer; "there were a good many republicans taken on, but none of our fellows went over."

The coal steamer Berks, Odlorne master, from Philadelphia for Newburyport, arrived off Newburyport bar Monday night, sounded her whistle for a while, and then ran across the bay to this port and anchored in the lower harbor, where she remained on Tuesday.

The tugs Clara Clarita, of Bath, Me., and Ice King, of Boston, left Boston on Monday, the former having in tow the schooner L. Bullard, bound for Horse Island, Me., and the schooner Albert W. Smith, bound for Damariscotta, and the Ice King having in tow the barkentine George W. Sweeney, and the schooner Ada A. Kennedy, bound for Rockport, Me. On account of the weather the tows put into the lower harbor, and on Tuesday the tugs came up to the city to take water.

The schooner Frank Nelson, Cole master, of and from Rockland, Me., for New York, lime laden, went ashore on Tuesday forenoon in the lower harbor near Fort McClary, and bilged; and the cargo taking fire, the vessel was stripped of sails and rigging, and whatever other movables could be saved, which were put on board the schooner Edward Lameyer, from New York bound for Rockland, which was then lying in the lower harbor. The Frank Nelson is a total loss.

The big three-masted schooner B. C. French, Kelly master, arrived on the 10th inst. from Newport News, Va., with 1264 tons of coal to J. Albert Walker.

The statement of the Portsmouth Savings Bank will be published in the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE to-day.

The ice in the north millpond was breaking up on Tuesday, under the influence of the warm rain, and the accumulated ice on the outside of the bridge, between it and Noble's island, entirely disappeared.

The tickets for the Military Colonial Ball to be given on the 17th inst. by Henry L. Richards Camp, No. 12, S. O. V., of this city, are selling rapidly, and the outlook is that it will be a grand affair. There are twenty-five camps in this state, all of which will probably be represented. As this is the first ball of the kind given in this city, and a large attendance of spectators is expected, those wishing good seats had better procure them early. Mr. Hill of the Essex Costume Parlors, of Boston, will be at the skating rink on Monday, Feb. 16th, with an elegant display of costumes.

Mr. Charles W. Norton has taken the contract to remodel the building on the southeast corner of Daniel street and Market square, owned by Mr. Woodman of Dover, and is to commence work on the 1st of April, the occupants having received notice to vacate the premises by that date. There are to be two stores fronting on Market square and running back about fifty feet; modern iron and glass fronts will be put in, the iron columns for which are now being made at the Portsmouth Machine Works.

The schools were very thinly attended on Tuesday, owing to the heavy rain and utterly abominable walking; there were but three young ladies at the high school.

A ball will be given by the colored people of the city in Franklin upper hall on Thursday evening, Feb. 12th, under the management of Mr. Peter Williams.

The commission of Elbridge G. Peirce, Esq., as postmaster of Portsmouth, expires on the 18th of March next, instead of the 8th as has been stated.

Street Commissioner Marshall had a big gang of men at work Tuesday, cutting drains in the snow to let off the surplus water, and did good work. His office was no sinecure that day.

Mr. Samuel Lamprey, who has been teaching a dancing school in the town hall at Hampton during the winter, will close the course with a series of five social assemblies, to be held at the same place on consecutive Friday evenings, the first one coming off on the 13th inst.

The petition of Augustus Stevenson and others for a charter for a steam ferry between this city and Kittery has been favorably reported on by a committee of the Maine senate, and it is thought by many that the charter will be granted. A charter for the proposed ferry was granted by the New Hampshire legislature in 1883.

Hon. A. W. Sulloway, New Hampshire member of the national democratic committee, who has lately returned from New York, where he had an interview with President-elect Cleveland, stated to a prominent democrat of this city that it was undoubtedly a fact that Hon. Frank Jones of Portsmouth could have the appointment as secretary of the navy if he would accept.—Concord Monitor.

A meeting of the trustees of the Rice Free Public Library was held at the office of Moses A. Safford, Esq., on Saturday last. The full board was present, consisting of Moses A. Safford, Esq., Ephraim C. Spinney, Esq., Rev. Joel Wilson, Edward F. Safford, Esq., and Mr. John Wentworth. The question of choosing a suitable location for the site of the library building was considered. The trustees voted unanimously not to purchase the old "Tabernacle lot," so-called, and the choice now is between the Rice lot and the Neal lot. Moses A. Safford was authorized to ascertain what the Neal lot can be purchased for, and report at the annual meeting in April next. The Tabernacle lot is of so irregular a shape that a symmetrical building could not be erected on it; the Rice lot is situated near the old ferry-way, and the Neal lot is a part of the former shipyard, the latter being the more central of the three lots specified. ABOUT LOBSTERS.

In the Maine legislature, on the 9th inst., Senator Kimball reported a bill relating to fish and fisheries which provides that there shall be close time for lobsters between August 15th and October 1st, and the penalty for violating shall be $50 for the first offence and $1 for every lobster taken. The canners cannot preserve lobsters between July 15th and the first day of the following April, under a penalty of $5 for every lobster so canned, and a penalty of $300 for each day on which such unlawful canning or preserving is done. It is unlawful to fish or catch, buy, sell or expose for sale between October 1st and the 15th day of the following August, any female lobster in spawn or with eggs attached, or any young lobster less than ten and one-half inches in length, under a penalty of $1 for each lobster so caught, etc.; provided, however, that from April 1st to July 15th it shall be lawful to fish for, catch and sell or possess for canning and all other purposes any lobsters not less than nine inches in length, but not including female lobsters in spawn or with eggs attached. Provision is made for the appointment of one or two commissioners by the governor who shall have a general supervision of the fisheries, regulated by certain sections of the game laws.

It is stated that the lobster canners and dealers oppose the law, while the fishermen generally favor it. The Portland Advertiser says:

Mr. Trefethen, a lobster dealer of Portland, entertained the legislative committee with a description of the lobster and some of his ways. In his opinion six years is about the average length of a lobster's life. After living this number of years the lobster dies, according to his experience. Hence Mr. Trefethen argues that the animal should be caught rather than allowed to die of old age and become a loss. In his opinion close time makes no difference in the numbers of the lobsters, and to this opinion he sturdily adhered in spite of Mr. Yeaton's tactics. Mr. Trefethen estimates the catch of the fishermen, not counting what go to the factories, at 6,000,000 along the coast of Maine. There are 100,000 lobster nets, and the fishermen engaged in the business are three or four thousand.

HEREDITARY SCROFULA.

ARE you aware that in your blood the taint of scrofula has a prominent place? This is true of every one. It is liable at any time, on the slightest provocation, to develop itself in some insidious disease. Consumption and many other diseases are outgrowths of this impurity of the blood. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA has a wonderful power over all scrofulous troubles, as the remarkable testimonials we have received unmistakably prove.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—* * * My youngest son has always been troubled with Scrofulous Humor; sores in his head discharging from his ears, and a running sore on the back of his ear for two years; his eyelids would fester and incrustate, discharging so that I was obliged to wash them open every morning, his eyelashes nearly all coming out; he was exceedingly dainty, most of the time eating but two slight meals a day. We were unable to find anything that had the least effect upon him till last spring, 1876, we gave him two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla. His appetite improved at once. * * The back of his ear healed up without a scar, and not a sore in his head since. Sincerely yours,

MRS. N. C. SANBORN,
No. 103 Merrimack St., Lowell, Mass

"We do not as a rule allow ourselves to use our editorial columns to speak of any remedy we advertise, but we feel warranted in saying a word for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sarsaparilla has been known as a remedial agent for centuries and is recognized by all schools of practice as a valuable blood purifier. It is put up in forms of almost infinite variety, but Messrs. Hood & Co. (Lowell, Mass.) who are thoroughly reliable pharmacists, have hit upon a remedy of unusual value. Certainly they have vouchers of cures which we know to be most extraordinary."—Editors Lowell Weekly Journal.

There was a large attendance at the district court at Hinsdale, Mass., Feb. 9th, to hear the trial of Deputy Sheriff C. W. Goodrich, charged with illegal relations with Mrs. Bowen, a young widow of that town. Acts of familiarity and imprudence between the couple were testified to by witnesses, but the defence was that Goodrich and Mrs. Bowen were old friends, were engaged to be married, and that while their familiarities were imprudent they were innocent. Judge Tucker took the same view, and Goodrich was acquitted. He and Mrs. Bowen immediately brought suit for $10,000 each against F. M. Raymond, who made the complaint, and who has been active in their prosecution. They claim false and malicious prosecution.

Persuaded my friends to try it and it has cured every case."—Marshall H. Moody, South Hadley, Mass.

A Milwaukee (Wis.) despatch says: The propeller Oneida, which has been fast in a large field of floating ice for twenty days, was yesterday sighted by a Flint & Pere Marquette line propeller in mid-lake, still unable to clear herself. The propellers could get only within a mile of each other, but the mate of the Oneida managed to cross on the ice, visiting the other boat. He reports the Oneida nearly out of fuel, and using bran and middlings from her cargo in place of coal. A large quantity of flour and pork is included in her cargo, so that the crew will not want for food.

"Smith, how is it that you always get such good bargains?" queried Jones. "Because I was taught from my infancy habits of thrift, patience and economy," replied Smith. "My father was always drumming into me to 'wait a little while and you'll purchase cheaper.' Why, even my mother used to sing: 'Bye-low, baby, before I could walk.'" Jones was perfectly satisfied with the explanation.—Boston Courier.

A lady called on a friend who had only been married a few years and was surprised to find her in tears. "I am the most unhappy woman in town, and it is all on account of my husband." "Why your husband lives for you alone. He stays at home all the time; he never goes away from home; he never brings any friends of his to the house." "Yes," replied the unfortunate woman, putting her handkerchief to her face, and sobbing convulsively, "that's—what makes—me—so—miserable."

Milliken came home looking very disconsolate. "It's all up," he said to his wife, "I wasn't elected. Everything went all right until yesterday, and then they raked up a charge against me for horse stealing." "But, my dear, why didn't you make them back up the charge?" "Back it up? That's just where the trouble was. Some of our ward committee, like blame fools, kept crying for 'proof and documents,' and they got them."—Boston Jyngo.

"It Knocks the Spots,"

And everything in the nature of eruptions, blotches, pimples, ulcers, scrofulous humors, and incipient consumption, which is nothing more nor less than scrofula of the lungs, completely out of the system. It stimulates and invigorates the liver, tones up the stomach, regulates the bowels, purifies the blood and builds up the weak places of the body. It is a purely vegetable compound, and will do more than is claimed for it. We refer to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery."

The Nashua Telegraph pertinently suggests: "Wolseley, an Englishman who has commanded a few thousand men in campaigns against savages, who know no more of the division of battle than a spinster, and who keeps well in the rear when a battle is going on, speaks of Gen. Grant, who has commanded a million men in a campaign against a foe of equal intelligence in the art of war, and who never shirked a danger or hardship, as Mr. U. S. Grant. Wolseley is evidently a snob of snobs."

"Gentle Spring."

Among spring preparations, do not neglect that which is most important of all—your own body. During the winter the blood absorbs many impurities, which, if not expelled, are liable to break out in scrofula or other disease. The best spring medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It expels every impurity from the blood, and gives strength to every function of the body. Sold by all druggists.

Annie Raymond, aged eighteen, was arrested in Lowell, Mass., Feb. 9th, for larceny of $100 worth of jewelry in Manchester, N. H., and larceny in Lowell.

"Rough On Itch."

"Rough on Itch" cures humors, eruptions, ringworm, tetter, salt rheum, frosted feet, chilblains.

In the superior court at Worcester, Mass., Feb. 9th, Maurice W. Hannigan was sentenced to fourteen months in the house of correction for perjury. He registered for the last state election in Massachusetts under the name of Crowley, and being arraigned for that in the central district court, denied it under oath. The facts being proved and he convicted, exceptions were taken to the supreme court and overruled, and the case came back for sentence.

Wintry Winds.

It's all right for poets to sing the praises of the beautiful snow, and the merry sleigh bells, and the ringing skates on the glassy ice, but they can't fill the bill with that sort of stuff when one is sitting with his feet in a tub of hot water, his head done up in flannels, and with mustard plasters on both sides of his chest. What a person needs then is a thorough dose of Kidney-Wort to act as a cathartic, for nothing will so quickly relieve that congestive, feverish condition which comes of a hard cold. Often these colds cause bilious attacks, lame backs, disordered kidneys, rheumatism, catarrh, etc. Kidney-Wort can be relied on to bring back a healthy condition.

Lizzie Ash, the two-year-old child of George M. Ash of Concord, was terribly burned about the head, body and limbs Monday afternoon, 9th inst. She was with her brother and sister, both very young, at the time, and it is supposed her clothing was ignited by a spark from the stove. It is feared that her injuries will result fatally.

THE GREAT SKIN CURES

Mrs. Smith's Case, and what the Rev. Mr. McKinstry has to say about it.

TO THE PUBLIC: I have been a fearful sufferer for fifteen years, most of the time with what has been called Keema or salt Rheum. Part is and Lepra, and the flesh and have always been told that there was no cure for me, and have been so discouraged that I had of some days or more I have been so badly afflicted sometimes that there was not the smallest spot from the crown of my head to the sole of my foot that was not diseased and as red as crimson. It would commence in small white spots, will hardly appearance, but soon after their first appearance, they would burn and run together until there was a complete dry, red scale, which would become so inflamed as to crack and look fiery and angry, and the burning sensation would be almost intolerable.

I was at times so lame that I could scarcely get about, and I could not dress myself without assistance. I tried many remedies, and have paid $ in in a single instance to a physician, but have never obtained only temporary relief. Although helped for a time, I was on relapsed again to be as badly troubled as ever, and on during the winter of 1881 and 82 I suffered so much as to be entirely discouraged. Last June, however, I was advised by Elder and Mrs. L. C. McKinstry, who are well known in these regions, to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES; and I felt somehow a little courage, from their favorable opinion of them, but have lost virtue. About the second week of July last I commenced taking the remedies, and within six weeks I began to see a perceptible improvement, until now (Oct 1) I am about as good as new, and my flesh is as the flesh of a child.

MRS. BENJ. SMITH.

I certify that the above statement of my wife is correct, and I join with her in expressing my gratitude for the great benefit she has received.
B. SMITH.

I certify that the above statement is correct. Mr. Smith is a prominent man in this community, where he lives. He is a well-known dealer in stock, and his stat ment, with that of his wife, is fully entitled to credit.
L. C. MCKINSTRY,
Minister of the Gospel.

LATER—I have seen Mrs. Smith recently and believe her to be thoroughly and permanently cured. L. C. MCKINSTRY.

Husband and Wife.

Husband Speaking:

"It's the strangest thing that ever I know,
And the most provoking, twixt me and you
And a woman who's got a man like me,
A good provider, and steady and free
With all her folks, with funds salted down,
And as fine a house as any in town,
To be lamenting 'cause one child in ten
Ain't quite as good as he might have been.

"It's a pretty good showing, it seems to me,
That only a tenth of the lot should be
A little off color, and that's what I say
To their mother twenty times a day;
But I can't make her see it in that light,
And she listens and waits night after night
For the sound of his step, till I grow so wild
That I almost curse both mother and child.

"She ought to live for the others, you know,
And let the tormenting vagabond go
And follow his ways and take the pain—
But I turn him out and she calls him again.
This makes a hardness between her and me,
And the worst of it is, the children agree
That I'm in the right. You'd pity her then—
Such times I think I'm the meanest of men.

"I've argued and scolded and coaxed without end;
Her answer is always: 'My boy has one friend
As long as I live, and your charge is untrue
That my heart holds no equal love for you
And all the rest. But the one gone astray
Needs me the most, and you'll find 'tis the way
Of all mothers to hold close to the one
Who hurts her the most. So love's work is done.'

"Now what can I say to such words as those?
I'm not convinced, as the history shows,
But I often wonder which one is right.
As I hear her light step night after night,
Here and there, to the window and door,
As she waits with a heart that is heavy and sore.
I wish the boy dead, while she gives her life
To save him from sin. There's husband and wife.

MY AUNT'S MISTAKE.

"Lena is always late, my aunt informs him with an indulgent smile.

"Now, Sis, I won't have you telling tales out of school," my father says.

He always calls her "Sis," to distinguish her from me. She smiles serenely and says, in that provoking way of hers:

"But it is true, though, Mr. Thornton. She is always late for everything."

"Even for her dinner," he returns; and she laughs at his silly joke.

I think Mr. Thornton is a hateful person, and I can't imagine how I could have thought him nice last night. It was because he knew how to dance, I suppose.

At our luncheon, he asks aunt to walk in the garden, and as they are leaving the room together, invites me to accompany them. I am going to say "No," when, meeting my aunt's eyes, I say "Yes" instead, out of aggravation.

It is no pleasure for me to walk beside Mr. Thornton, while he addresses all his conversation to my aunt; but as she does not desire my company, I feel a certain kind of satisfaction in inflicting it upon her.

"You look like sisters," Mr. Thornton says, suddenly turning to me. "How odd to have such a youthful aunt!"

"I sometimes think Lena would like me better if I had the dignity of years upon me," observes my aunt with a smile. "What a wilderness this garden is!" she adds, glancing round with her gentle disapproval.

"You like the geometrical style," observed Mr. Thornton; "candidly, I don't. I like a garden that is a garden all the year round."

"So do I;" and I unbend a little, for I have been looking stiff and as unlike myself as it is possible to be for the last ten minutes.

"What in the world makes you look so ill-tempered to-day?" Aunt Lena says. "My dear, you are cross enough to drive Mr. Thornton away."

As if this were a hint, Godfrey soon after turns and leaves us, and she evidently believes she has spoken the truth.

Perhaps she has. I hate him, as I said before; but still, the idea that he should fly from my presence gives me more pain that I care to acknowledge.

I resolve to avoid him for the future, and contrive to do so for the next few days.

But he catches me one day just as I am crossing the lawn, and, as he stands right in the path, I can't possibly avoid him.

"Where are you off to, my pretty maid?" he says.

"What a hackneyed question!" I say, lowering my red parasol so that he can't see my face.

"Well, then, to speak in the plain language of everyday life, why do you run away from me? What have I done to offend you?"

"Nothing. I am sure you could not do less, could you?" and with a little bow I walk round him and continue on my way.

A few days later my aunt comes to my room with a radiant face. I am standing before my mirror brushing out my rebellious locks, and she comes and stands just behind me, looking over my shoulder.

"Well?" I say, knowing what is coming, and I hide my tell-tale face behind a merciful cloud of hair—merciful because it shields me from my aunt's keen eyes.

"Mr. Thornton has proposed."

"I congratulate you with all my heart."

How glibly the falsehood falls from my lips.

"Well, I think I am rather lucky," observes my aunt. "He is very well off, your father tells me; and his connections!—he is connected with several titled families, and he is very nice himself," she adds, as if that were an afterthought.

"Yes," I say mechanically, brushing my hair with the regular ty of a machine, until my aunt leaves, when I quickly lock the door and fling myself on the bed, not in tears, but with an aching heart and dry, wide-open eyes.

Presently I get up and go on with my toilet. One must attend to the ordinary duties of life if one is broken-hearted.

I am glad of it, for just as I have made myself presentable, somebody knocks at the door.

I open it, and in walks mother, looking so pale that I give a cry of surprise.

"What is it?" I ask. "What has happened? Father is all right?" in a paroxysm of tears, for I saw him ride off at six in the morning on a spirited horse that no one else would dare to mount.

"Your father is all right, child," she returns; "he is downstairs. He came back half an hour ago."

"Then, what is it?"

"My dear," says mamma, who is all of a tremble, "it is your aunt who is so hurt, so angry.

"But why?" I cry in unmitigated surprise and bewilderment; "she seemed so happy a short time ago. What has happened to anger her?"

"She made a mistake," returns my mother. "The letter that came this morning was not for her. She ought to have known it, too; for he would have addressed her as 'Miss Lena Vernon' not 'Miss Vernon.' You are the eldest daughter of the house."

"Whom was it for, then?" I ask breathlessly. "Was it for me?"

Yes, it was for me. He had loved me all the time. I am a happy woman, indeed, when he clasps me in his arms and tells me so with his dear voice.

My aunt has never forgiven me. I am sorry to say, but I do not parade my happiness before her. I am more merciful to her than she was to me in her brief moments of triumph.

ON THE ENGINE.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River train from Boston to Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could not rouse up. I think this was due partly to my irregular habits of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes my head would snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fist. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as though it were a great raw and sore surface, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the constant jar brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I would have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next spring when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this critical time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

That taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pains left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good and it drove every ache, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night, a while ago, John Leyton, an engineer who runs the main line boat train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," said, "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, fitted his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Dan," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, Rondout, N. Y." said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in or on the river here.

The War in the Soudan.

The German papers of Berlin all attribute the disaster at Khartoum to Mr. Gladstone's hesitation. They advise England to take vigorous action to re-capture Khartoum, and to suppress the Mahdi. The German press unanimously agree that the conduct of Gen. Gordon throughout the entire period of his warfare in Khartoum deserves nothing but encomium.

A despatch of the 10th from Korti says "Cols. Wilson and Wortley learned that one of the treacherous pashas among Gen. Gordon's forces marched the garrison to the side of the town nearest Omdurman, saying that the rebel attack was expected at that point. In the meantime another traitorous pasha opened the gates at the other end and allowed the Mahdi's troops to enter, and they easily captured the town. Gen. Gordon was stabbed just as he was leaving the government house."

A despatch from Gubat to the London Telegraph states that it is reported there that Gen. Gordon was killed on the morning of Jan. 27th.

The London News of the 11th appeared in mourning for Gen. Gordon, and published the following from its correspondent at Gakdul: "The natives who escaped from Khartoum say Gen. Gordon was killed while in the act of leaving his house to rally the faithful troops. The latter were cut down to a man, and for hours the best part of the town was the scene of merciless slaughter, not even women and children being spared. All the notables were killed, except the treacherous pashas and their followers."

News and Notes.

The two houses of Congress met in convention on the 11th inst., and canvassed the electoral vote.

The Canada Shipping company (limited,) owners of the steamship Lake Winnipeg have filed a libel in the United States district court against the steamship Alaska. The document sets forth that the Lake Winnipeg answered the signals of distress of the Alaska during her last rough voyage, and steered her into New York. The value of the Alaska and her cargo is placed at $1,250,000. The libellants ask the court to fix the salvage.

The labor crisis in France is the cause of the utmost alarm. All efforts of relief by the government appear to be futile. At present there are 300,000 workmen idle in Paris and at least 1,000,000 in the provinces. The discontent consequent upon this state of affairs is daily spreading, and apprehensions are expressed that, unless some relief can be devised, labor riots will break out in all sections.

The proposed reciprocity treaty between the United States and the British West Indies has been rejected by the English cabinet.

Railroad travel in many parts of Iowa, Michigan and Illinois was wholly stopped by a snow blockade on the 10th inst.

In Louisville, Ky., in the forenoon on the 9th inst., there was a heavy gust of wind lasting a few moments, and then the city was enveloped in intense darkness for the space of five minutes, after which came a drenching rain. Small minnows were scattered thickly over the ground in many places after the cloud burst was over.

An effort is being made to get the government to appropriate $500,000 more for the New Orleans Exposition. It is said that Mexico has already appropriated $300,000 for her exhibit, and contemplates an additional appropriation of $200,000.

In Pickens county, S. C., Dick Mulligan, white drunk, buried a chair at his wife. The chair missed her, but hit his little daughter, who happened to come in at the time, and killed her. Mulligan, who was sobered by the tragedy, went to his bed room and cut his throat.

The Beverly (Mass.) Times says that Mrs. Calvin Haskell, at the Farms, has a parrot named "Polly" which has been fifty years in the family, and is supposed to be seventy-five years old.

Mrs. H. Day, one of the victims of the railroad disaster at Creston, Ia., has died, making the seventh death in all. The remaining twenty-four persons injured will probably recover.

While on his way home Monday night, Feb. 9th, Mr. J. Casey, an employe of the Boston & Albany railroad at South Framingham, Mass., was accosted by two men, who, after walking a short distance with him, seized him and rifled his pockets of $72 and some valuable papers.

The five largest iron works in San Francisco announced a reduction in wages on Tuesday, Feb. 10th. The workmen refused to accept the reduction, and 1500 men were thrown out of employment.

The Edgar Thompson steel works at Braddock, Pa., resumed operations in all departments Feb. 10th, giving employment to nearly 4000 men, who have been idle for eight weeks. The men return to work at a slight reduction.

A couple of American capitalists in Montreal are negotiating for the formation of an air-motor company with a capital of $100,000. The intention of the promoters of the scheme is to slaughter American hogs in Canada, and thus get around the present prohibitory legislation of Germany in connection with imports of American pork into Germany. The promoters of the scheme are wealthy American cattle men, and speak of establishing extensive cattle yards in Montreal.

—First College Man—"Have you heard the awful news about Princeton?" Second College Man—"Princeton! Great Cæsar! Hasn't burned down, has it?" "No, not exactly; but it has withdrawn from the Rowing Association." "Oh! Well, that's not so bad. Such a step was absolutely necessary in order to give the students a fair chance?" "A fair chance?" "Yes; it is simply impossible for an educational institution to do full justice to rowing without actually neglecting baseball."

ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT, G. A. R.

There was a very large gathering of delegates of the Grand Army of the Republic at Manchester on the 11th inst., at the annual encampment. There was a business session at 2:30 P. M., and at an early hour in the evening the comrades partook of a banquet tendered them by the Woman's Relief Corps of the city at the armory of Louis Bell Post, G. A. R.; the banquet being followed by another session to conclude the business of the encampment.

The retiring commander, John C. Linehan, was in the forenoon presented by the department officers of the Woman's Relief Corps of the state, of which he is an honorary member, with a very handsome gold and bronze badge, the presentation being made by Mrs. Adaline P. Kent of this city, president of the department, at the Hotel Windsor, which was the encampment headquarters. The presentation was a complete surprise to Commander Linehan, but all who have heard him speak will readily credit the statement that he responded gracefully and appropriately.

PORTSMOUTH GAS-LIGHT CO.

The annual meeting of the Portsmouth Gaslight Co. was held Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 10th, and C. C. Jackson, John Sise, John J. Pickering, Joseph W. Peirce and Ezra H. Winchester were elected directors. C. C. Jackson was elected president, and Frank J. Philbrick treasurer.

MARITIME NOTES.

About twenty fishing vessels left the wharves on Wednesday morning, the 11th inst., but most of them brought up in the lower harbor on account of the heavy sea running outside. The tug steamers Clara Clarin, Ice King and Leader, all having eastward-bound tows anchored in the lower harbor, got up steam in the morning and went down to take a look at things, but not liking the prospect, all three came up river again about noon.

The schooner Grace K. Green, of this port, Seaward master, arrived at Wilmington, N. C., on the 9th inst., from Baltimore with 600 tons of guano.

The schooner Mystery arrived at Gloucester, Mass., Feb. 9th, from Fortune Bay, Newfoundland, with 1000 barrels of frozen herring, the third fare for this season, and the largest fare ever received at Gloucester.

The north pond, on which the ice was rapidly going to pieces on Tuesday, the 10th, under the influence of the belated January thaw, was closed up solid again by the intense cold on the night of that day. There was much trouble with the gas in some parts of the city, Tuesday night, on account of the great quantity of water and the severe cold; many of the street lights were frozen up, and in some buildings no gas at all could be procured.

Mr. Henry L. Harlow has engaged Eastman's orchestra, of Manchester, to form a portion of the band at the Hotel Wentworth, Newcastle, the coming season. This excellent orchestra was a part of the Wentworth house band last year.

"Rambles About Portsmouth" is a book so well known that it has become a household word with Portsmouth people, both at home and abroad. The recent demand has been such that a fresh supply has been required, which our neighbor of the Journal has just received from the binder; and he has done a very sensible thing in advertising it in the Chronicle. Everybody should have a copy of the book.

The street sewer traps of Watkins' patent that were put in by the city during last year, carried off the water freely during the heavy rain and thaw on Tuesday.

The barometer during the storm of Tuesday, the 10th inst., went down to 28.83 inches—the lowest point to which the mercury has fallen in this vicinity for a long while. On Wednesday forenoon at ten o'clock the mercury was up to 29.-83 inches, a rise of an inch in less than twenty-four hours.

The two town clocks both stopped on Tuesday evening, the 10th, and at exactly the same time, twenty-three minutes past six o'clock.

Who calls the present city government a temperance society? They have used thus far this winter about two barrels of alcohol—for clearing out the gas pipes.

"Reed of Maine," says the Washington correspondent of the New York World, "is one of the dangerous men who study and think. The result is that he is always well equipped with accurate knowledge, which, with a nimble, sarcastic tongue, makes him a formidable adversary."

According to Sec. Chandler the cost of the Greely relief expedition was as follows: Cost and fitting out of vessels, $452,634; supplies for the expedition, $2 1,254; miscellaneous expenses, $25,-377; total, $751.265.

"I tell yo' de truf, deed I did, boss," replied the darkey, "but yo' tuk de wrong direkshun, sah."

—A student undergoing examination in the principles of mechanics was asked: "Why will not a pin stand on its point?" He returned the following answer: "In the first place, a point is defined by Euclid as that which hath no parts and no magnitude, and how can a pin stand on that which hath no parts and no magnitude? In the second place, a pin will not stand on its head, much less therefore will it stand on its point. Thirdly and lastly, it will if you stick it in hard enough."

—"Is this woman your wife?" asked the judge of an old negro. "Not 'zactly, sah. She's my step-wife." "How do make that out?" "I wuz married befo', sah; but my wife died." "That makes no difference; this—" "No, sah, didn't make any difference with me." "I mean that it makes no difference if you were married before. This woman is your wife." "My full wife?" "Yes, if you will have it that way." "Thank yer, judge. Now we'll get down ter business. Jes' write me out er voree from dis lady, please."

A Growing Vice.

At yesterday's session of the New York State Medical Society, at Albany, several important papers were presented, the one of most general interest being that read by Dr. F. N. Hammond of Auburn on "The Opium Habit." Dr. Hammond is peculiarly well qualified to discuss this subject intelligently, not only from observation, but from experience also. Some time ago he was induced to take opium as a means of relief from sick headache. The use of it became habitual, but has now been discontinued entirely. He presented, at the close of his paper, his method of cure. The opium-eater must reduce the quantity of his daily dose, using at the same time other stimulants, and gradually eliminate opium from his bill of fare.

The statistics as to the use of opium presented by Dr. Hammond are almost startling. In 1840 about 26,000 pounds of opium were consumed in the United States; in 1880, 533,450 pounds. In 1868 there were about 90,000 habitual opium-eaters in the country; now they number over 500,000. If the number of opium-eaters is to be doubled every six or seven years, the opium habit will soon become almost as universal as the whiskey habit, and far more baneful in its effects.

More women than men are addicted to the use of opium. Dr. Hammond places the proportion at three to one. The vice is one so easily contracted, so easily practiced in private, and so difficult of detection, that it presents peculiar temptation.

The hypodermic syringe affords an easy means of introducing the drug into the system with scarce a possibility of detection by one's most intimate associates; the relief from pain that it gives, and the peculiar exaltation of spirits, easily lead the victim to believe that the use of it is beneficial.

Opium and chloral are to-day the most deadly foes of woman. There is little danger of an educated, refined lady's becoming a drunkard; but there is, perhaps, all the more danger of her becoming an habitual user of opium or chloral from her very refinement of nerve and brain. If Dr. Hammond's paper shall induce the medical faculty to look more closely for traces of these drugs in their patients, and to be extremely careful in prescribing either of them, it will not have been read in vain.—N. Y. Mail.

HEREDITARY SCROFULA.

ARE you aware that in your blood the taint of scrofula has a prominent place? This is true of every one. It is liable at any time, on the slightest provocation, to develop itself in some insidious disease. Consumption and many other diseases are outgrowths of this impurity of the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla has a wonderful power over all scrofulous troubles, as the remarkable testimonials we have received unmistakably prove.

"MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—* * * My youngest son has always been troubled with Scrofulous Humor; sores in his head discharging from his ears, and a running sore on the back of his ear for two years; his eyelids would fester and ulcerate, discharging so that I was obliged to wash them open every morning, his eyelashes nearly all coming out; he was exceedingly debilitated, most of the time eating but two slight meals a day. We were unable to find anything that had the least effect upon him till last spring, 1878, we gave him two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla. His appetite improved in saying Sarsaparilla, he has a wonderful Sarsaparilla has been known as a remedial agent for centuries and is recognized by all schools of practice as a valuable blood purifier. It is put up in forms of almost infinite variety, but Messrs. Hood & Co., (Lowell, Mass.) who are thoroughly reliable pharmacists, have hit upon a remedy of unusual value. Certainly they have vouchers of cures which we know to be most extraordinary."—Editors Lowell Weekly Journal.

Wintry Winds.

It's all right for poets to sing the praises of the beautiful snow, and the merry sleigh bells, and the ringing skates on the glassy ice, but they can't fill the bill with that sort of stuff when one is sitting with his feet in a tub of hot water, his head done up in flannels, and with mustard plasters on both sides of his chest. What a person needs then is a thorough dose of Kidney-Wort to act as a cathartic, for nothing will so quickly relieve that congestive, feverish condition which comes of a hard cold. Often these colds cause bilious attacks, lame backs, disordered kidneys, rheumatism, catarrh, etc. Kidney-Wort can be relied on to bring back a healthy condition.

The Root of the Evil.

To thoroughly cure scrofula it is necessary to strike directly at the root of the evil. This is exactly what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, by acting upon the blood, thoroughly cleansing it of all impurities, and leaving not even a taint of scrofula in the vital fluid. Thousands who have been cured of scrofula by Hood's Sarsaparilla, testify to its wonderful blood-purifying qualities. Sold by all druggists.

Contoocook Lodge of Penacook has issued a circular to all sister organizations in the state saying that the buildings of Penacook Academy, which cost $20,000 a few years ago, can be had for $5,000 for the proposed Odd Fellows' Home for Widows and Orphans. Contoocook lodges offer to contribute $2,000 out of the $5,000.

All in the Line of Nature.

There is nothing in the line of magic or mystery about that wonderful and popular medicine, Parker's Tonic. It is simply the best and most scientific combination possible of the essential principals of those vegetable curatives which act powerfully and directly on the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood. But there neither is, nor will be, any successful imitation of it. It is all the time curing those who had despaired of ever getting well. For yourself, your wife and children.

THE GREAT SKIN CURES

Mrs. Smith's Case, and what the Rev. Mr. McKinstry has to say about it.

TO THE PUBLIC: I have been a tearful sufferer for the past twenty years. My entire body has been called Eczema or Salt Rheum, Psoriasis and Lepra, and the like, and have always been told it there was no cure for me, and have been so discouraged that I had as soon die as live. I have been so badly afflicted sometimes that there was scarcely a single spot for me the crown of my head to the soles I my feet that was not diseased and as red as crimson. It would commence in small white specs, will hold a silvery appearance, but were not deep, but if I attempted to heal them, or soon after their first appearance, they would burn and run logs her until there was a complete dry, red scale, which would become so inflamed so to crack and look fiery and angry, and the burning sensation would be almost intolerable.

I was at time so lame that I could scarcely get about, as I could not dress myself without assistance. I has tried many remedies, and have paid $ in a single instance to a physician, but have ever obtained only temporary relief. Although helped for a time, I is as relapsed again to be as badly troubled as ever, and during the winter of 1881 and 82 I suffered so much as to be utterly discouraged. Last June, however, I was advised by Elder and Mrs. L. C. McKinstry, who are well known in these parts, to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES; and I felt somehow a little courage, from their favorable opinion of them, to try their virtue. About the second week of July, I had commenced taking the remedies, and within six weeks I began to see a permanent improvement, until now (oct 1) I am about as good as new, and my flesh is as the flesh of a child.

MRS. BENJ. SMITH.

I certify that the above statement of my wife is correct, and I join with her in expressing my gratitude for the great benefit she has received.

B. SMITH.

I certify that the above statement is correct. Mr. Smith is a prominent man in this community, where he lives. He is a well-known dealer in stock, and this testimonial, with that of his wife, is fully entitled to credit.

Done at Stanstead, Province of Quebec, this twenty-seventh day of October, 1882.

LATER.—I have seen Mrs. Smith recently and believe her to be thoroughly and permanently cured. L. C. McKINSTRY.

The latest news from Africa is that the Zulu King has the croup; this news is doubted by many, but notwithstanding, the friends of the king have sent him a case of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup and consequently know his cure is certain.

A secret agent of the Mexican revenue stamp department attempted to act as a spy at Jalisco, Mexico, and bought a package of cigarettes without a stamp from a poor tradesman. Upon attempting to confiscate the man's goods, the agent was seized by the citizens, doused in the public fountain, and afterward tarred and feathered and paraded through the streets, accompanied by a brass band.

"100 Doses One Dollar" is true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy.

Edward O. Achorn, a law student of Boston, is under arrest on a charge of attempted blackmail. It is alleged that he called upon Miss Annie Brady, of No. 28 Edinboro' street in that city, represented himself to be a constable, and threatened to cause her arrest on a charge of keeping a house of ill-fame and selling liquor without a license; that subsequently, after having gone through some pretended legal forms, he offered to settle the case for $50. He was arrested when about to collect the money.

Wetherell's Sarsapa lla

Is chemically combined with Iodide Potassium, and is a preparation of superior worth for invigorating the system, giving tone and vigor to the whole body. Dyspepsia and bilious headache yield readily to the wonderful action of this remedy. If it were possible to place before you the written testimonials of its wonderful cures, the most skeptical would be convinced. One dollar a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

Great excitement was caused at Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 11th, by an alleged attempt to take the life of Lieut. Gov. Robinson. An aide discovered a suspicious looking box bedded in snow and ice in the road leading to the entrance of the grounds where the lieutenant governor's carriage had to pass. The box was found to contain a black substance, and a wire attached to it was extended to a distant part of the grounds. One account says the black substance was only lampblack, but this is not credited.

Experience Taught Me!

And my money paid for it. After having liver complaint four years, and spending money on nostrums and doctors who didn't help me, I tried Sulphur Bitters. Six bottles cured me. I shall always use them.—G. N. Butler, Cohoes, N. Y.

On Wednesday morning, the 11th inst., the track hands on the Eastern railroad found an unknown man in a culvert near Castle hill, Salem, Mass., nearly frozen. The man was taken to the depot, but died before he reached there. He had evidently fallen into the culvert, striking on his head and receiving fatal injuries. He was about thirty years old, and dressed as a laborer.

It cured me of scrofula in its worst form, after I had suffered with it fifteen long years, and had tried all the remedies, only to break down my health and make me almost helpless. MRS. INOCULATED POISON!

Some eight years ago I became the victim of a fearful blood poison, communicated by a nurse to my infant, and thence through the breast, and suffered for six long years. The Mercury and Potash treatment seemed to drive the poison further into my system only to break out in worse form on other portions of my body. Three months ago I began taking Swift's Specific, and it has cured me sound and well. It is the greatest blessing which has come to mankind in years. MRS. T. W. LEE, Greenville, Ala., Sept. 4, 1884.

MADGE'S MISTAKE.

"We start for Egypt on Thursday, old fellow. I have not broken the news to Madge, poor girl! But it will have to be done without loss of time, although I shrink from the ordeal."

The speaker was a tall, handsome man, of, perhaps, five-and-twenty, with bright eyes, and a dark, resolute face. He looked every inch a soldier as he stood beside his friend on the platform of the crowded London terminus, where they had met each other, after a separation of some eighteen months.

"Madge!" said the young officer's friend; "surely you are not engaged? You, who were always so proud to proclaim yourself a woman hater."

"Not engaged," returned George Enfield, with a slight flush on his bronzed cheek. "Not engaged, Le Roy; but married. Where have you been all these months not to have heard the news?"

"I had forgotten how time passes," said Le Roy, hastily. "Of course, the world has not been standing still since I left England, with the grim determination not to open a book, or newspaper, until I regained the health and strength I had exhausted in long hours of study."

"And you have gained your object," said George, with friendly solicitude. "You are quite yourself again."

Le Roy made no immediate answer; but turned his eyes away, that George might not see the look of anguish that darkened them for a moment.

"I am better," he said, at last, with no trace of emotion on his fine face. "I am better, or I should not have returned to take up the old life."

"You have come home for good," said George, eagerly. "You really mean to remain in England?"

"Yes," said Le Roy, absently. "A man cannot fly from himself. I have come to the conclusion that the man who seeks health in travel, had far better remain at home."

George felt that Le Roy was hiding something from him; but he would not utter a word to bridge the barrier of reserve which his friend had allowed to come between them.

"He shall tell me of his own free will, or not at all," thought George Enfield. "I will not try to wring his secret from him."

So there was silence between them for a space, as they strode up and down each occupied with his own thoughts.

George was the first to speak, and his voice startled Le Roy, arousing him from a painful reverie. He looked up eagerly, meeting the eager gaze of his friend.

"What is it, George?" he asked, apologetically. "Forgive me; but I scarcely heard what you were saying."

"I was only telling you, Le Roy, that my people do not approve of my marriage. They have been cruel and unjust, and I could not think of letting Madge go to them."

"I am sorry to hear this," said Le Roy. "It must be hard for her and for you; she will not be quite alone, I hope. Of course, your wife has her own friends."

"She has one sister," returned George; "but the two poor children will be very lonely, when I am gone, Le Roy, and I want you to extend your friendship to them." It was a strange request to make; but George could see nothing strange in it. He loved this friend, and had every faith in him; he knew that Wilfred Le Roy was the soul of honor."

"How fortunate that I should have met you here," he continued, without giving Le Roy time to speak. "You must come to our little villa, and let me introduce you to my wife. I know you have an eye for beauty, and will appreciate my good taste. Don't accuse me of egotism, old fellow, until you have seen my Madge."

They jumped into a cab, and as they drove quickly in the direction of George's home, the two friends fell to talking of old times, and Le Roy was laughing quite merrily when the handsome drew up before a pretty cottage not far from Hampstead Heath.

A pretty little maid with bright eyes and rosy cheeks opened the door in answer to George's ring, and Le Roy followed her into a quietly furnished parlor, where a young lady was bending over some needlework.

"Madge!" said George, putting his hand on her shoulder, "let me introduce you to the best friend I have in the world—Wilfred Le Roy: Wilfred, this is my wife."

They looked at each other, and a sudden ghastly pallor came over Le Roy's face, while the girl seemed as if about to faint. Then with a warning glance, as quick as a flash of lightning, Le Roy held out his hand to his friend's wife, and expressed his pleasure at making her acquaintance.

"Where is Bertie?" asked the unconscious George. "In the garden, as usual, I suppose. I'll go and look for her."

And he hurried out of the room, leaving his wife and Wilfred alone together. Madge leant back in her chair, white as the lacework that had fallen from her slender fingers.

"You won't tell him!" she said piteously, lifting her beautiful eyes to Wilfred's face.

Wilfred was silent for a moment; he could scarcely trust himself to speak. But he controlled his anger by a mighty effort, and said calmly:

"Let the past rest—it is gone forever. I wish to remember only that I am your husband's friend."

It cost him a great deal to speak these words, for Madge had treated him very badly in days gone by. They had been engaged, and she had jilted him, on finding that his prospects were less bright than people had led her to imagine. It had been a secret engagement, and she had never told the wrong she had done. But it was rather hard on him, to find that she was the wife of his friend, and that he was expected to look after her during George's absence.

The worst of it was that he loved her still, although he felt that she was unworthy of his love. Weak and fickle as she had been, he could not help the memory of the sweet pa t coming back to him, when he looked at her beautiful face.

"Then you will keep my secret?" said Ma ge, anxiously; "George has such strict ideas. He would be angry if he knew I had been engaged to you. I don't think he will ever forgi e me."

"You can trust my word, I hope," returned Wilfred, coldly—all the more coldly because of the love he could not subdue.

ON THE ENGINE.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River train between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. I then had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was in part brought by habits of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes my head would snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fists. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my at ach f lt as though it were a great raw and sore surf ce, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the constant ar brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next spring when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this crisis of time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pain left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good and it drove every ache, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night, a while ago, John Layton, an engineer who runs the main line train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," said, "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, dosed his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Dan," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, Rondout, N. Y.," said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office everywhere.

The War in the Soudan.

The questions are often asked, "How came the British to be so much interested in the affairs of Egypt as to have to fight Egypt's battles?" and "What was Gen. Gordon's mission to Khartoum, where he appears to have been maintaining a war without any army whatever at his back?" These questions are briefly but plainly answered in the following, which we take from the Portland Advertiser:

The origin of the present situation dates back half a dozen years, and had its root in the mismanagement of the Khedive Ismail, father of the present khedive. Ismail had created an enormous public debt, and the Sultan of Turkey, to whom Egypt is nominally a tributary principality, deposed him and placed Tewfik on the throne. The chief creditor nations were England and France. These were admitted to a share in the government, in the shape of a joint controller-generalship. The controllers were given the right to investigate all departments of the administration and to have an advisory voice in the state councils. This was in 1879. The next year an international commission was appointed to regulate Egypt's financial affairs.

In 1881 Arabi's rebellion broke out. It was a movement to wrest from the foreign controllers their extraordinary powers, and restore the government to native hands. The rebellion endangered the Suez canal, which was mainly owned in England. France declined to join in any intervention, but England sent troops and war vessels, bombarded Alexandria, subdued the rebellion and exiled the leader.

Just prior to Arabi's outbreak the world heard of another movement, of a religious character, in the southern provinces of Egypt, [which claimed and exercised sovereignty over the vast region known as the Soudan,] where a person calling himself the Mahdi proclaimed that he was the deliverer of Islam, whose coming about that time was foretold by the Prophet Mohammed, and whose mission was to complete the prophet's work and to make the world Mohammedan. He exhibited the personal marks which were to characterize the Mahdi; his fame as a preacher and a holy man ran abroad; and he raised the banner of revolt. Hated of the Egyptian government, which had levied heavy taxes and prohibited the slave trade, also influenced the Soudanese to join the Mahdi.

In the meantime the Egyptian army had been reorganized by Baker Pasha and Sir Evelyn Wood, whom the khedive had appointed for the purpose. Various expeditions under Egyptian officers had been sent against the Mahdi, but he had generally beaten them and was pressing toward Khartoum, the capital of Soudan. Finally, in the fall of 1883, about 7000 troops commanded by the English General Hicks marched from Khartoum, and encountering the Mahdi's hordes near the city of El Obeid, were massacred to a man. This left only a few thousand Egyptian troops scattered in garrisons in various parts of the Soudan.

General Baker was at once ordered to Suakim, on the Red sea. His operations in that quarter against Osman Digna, the Mahdi's lieutenant, were successful. But the Soudan had been lost, except Khartoum and a few garrisons which held out. Egypt was helpless in the face of a great danger, and looked for help to the English, who had been instrumental in bringing on the trouble. The English government was averse to attempting the reconquest of the Soudan. Nor would the London cabinet consent to have Turkey try it. Yet it would not do to abandon Egypt to the Mahdi. England had the bull by the tail, and it was equally hazardous to keep hold or let go. Finally it was determined to retire wholly from upper Egypt and draw a line of defence on the low er river.

At this point it was concluded to send Gen. Gordon to Khartoum to treat with the Mahdi and open the way for bringing out the garrisons. He had previously been governor of the province and was very popular there. It was thought that his influence would avail more than anything else. He went, was enthusiastically received, proclaimed a remission of taxes and non-interference with the slave trade, and recognized the Mahdi as Sultan of Kordofan. But the movement was under too great a headway. Gordon's concessions availed nothing. Last May he was beleaguered in Khartoum, but the place was impregnable to Arab assaults, and for eight months he has been able not only to hold the town but to conduct offensive operations. Had his troops remained faithful he could have held out indefinitely.

Wolseley's expedition to rescue Gordon, with its mistakes, delays, battles and final arrival just too late, is a matter of current history. Khartoum having been lost, but one town is known to remain in Egyptian hands, and that is Kassala, on a branch of the Nile midway between Khartoum and the Red sea.

The Egyptian muddle, then, is due solely to the attempt of England to secure the payment from Egypt of an enormous debt due the British money-lenders. To protect the interests of these bondholders, it was obligatory on England to crush the patriotic movement of Arabi Pasha; the subsequent and more serious trouble, the war in the Soudan, seems to have been drifted into rather than deliberately resolved upon by the British authorities, who appear to have been of half a mind to let Egyptian rule in the Soudan be overthrown, and of half a mind to maintain that rule.

But the fall of Khartoum and the massacre of Gordon and his men have added tremendously to the gravity of the situation; it is now not merely a question of the holders of Egyptian bonds getting their money back, but probably of the maintenance of British authority in India. More than half the people of British India worship Mahomet, and the successes of the Mahdi will be regarded by them as triumphs of the true faith; and the prompt and complete overthrow of the Mahdi in the Soudan is an absolute necessity, if a struggle in India compared to which the Sepoy rebellion was trivial is to be averted.

The troops under Gen. Earle had a fight on the 10th inst. with Arab forces at a fortified spot near the Nile, a few miles above Dulka island. The Arabs were driven from their position, but Gen. Earle, three other officers and eight soldiers were killed, and thirty-five of the British wounded. The Arab loss is not stated.

News and Notes.

George A. Vincent, alias Charles Perrin, alias Williamson, an exceedingly expert forger, convicted of attempting to swindle a bank out of $6500 by means of a forged letter of credit, has been sentenced at St. Louis, Mo., to ten years in the penitentiary. Perrin is the man who some years ago forged Hudson River railroad bonds and Baltimore & Ohio railroad bonds, by which bankers and brokers were swindled out of $800,000. He is the most dangerous forger alive.

The house of Hiram Atkins, a wealthy farmer living three miles from Norwich, Ohio, was burned some time during the night of Feb. 9th, and his remains and those of his three children were found in the ruins. No trace was found of Mrs. Atkins, a young woman not long married, nor of Emanuel Porter, the hired man, until a team that was missing from the barn was found near the Baltimore & Ohio railroad station, and the station men reported that a young man and woman took a westbound train there between two and three o'clock in the morning on the 10th. It is known that there had been frequent quarrels between Atkins and his wife on account of her familiarity with Porter, and it is supposed the woman and her paramour murdered her husband and stepchildren.

It Looked Bad.

A few days ago a democratic member of Congress from the west desired to be absent from his seat in the house for a short time, so he paired. He paired, of course, with a republican member. A copy of the "Congressional Record" containing the day's proceedings reached one of that member's constituents. He read that his member was paired on that day, and paired with a well-known republican. It annoyed that constituent, and he sat down and wrote:

"When you have to be absent from your seat in the house and are compelled to pair, as a friend I would advise you to pair with a democrat. You know we have nothing to do with republicans, and it looks bad to see you pairing with them in Congress. People here will think you are associating with them."

who are now living send us their testimonials. We publish nothing from dead persons, or give false names.

A running sore for 14 years cured. HENRY H. GARCELON, of Lewiston, Me., says: I have suffered with a running sore on my leg for the past 14 years, caused by exposure in the army, and have suffered everything a man could, the sore discharging constantly. I have tried every remedy that I heard of, but without benefit. Sulphur Bitters is the only thing that ever did me any good. When I commenced taking them I could not put my foot on the floor. I can now put my whole foot on the floor and walk on it. I think Sulphur people, who are prominent and influential, send us their testimonials, certifying what a vast amount of good Sulphur Bitters has done them.

The Baggage Master, Boston and Maine Railroad, Lawrence, Mass., A. WILLIAMS, says: For several years I was subject to frequent and very severe attacks of sick headache, caused no doubt by imperfect digestion, as my stomach troubled me a great deal, and although I have spent many dollars, I failed to find permanent relief until I used Sulphur Bitters. Since using this medicine I have had no return of the headache, and my stomach has regained its original tone and vigor, and I believe

Sulphur Bitters

Bitters is a reliable family medicine.

EDWARD KNOTT, Postmaster, Waverly, Ia., says: I have been in poor health for years, and suffered greatly from biliousness and torpid liver. I have consulted the best physicians and spent a great deal of money, with no permanent benefit, and had about lost faith in everything. I purchased three bottles of Sulphur Bitters and commenced to take them; and, to my great joy, I began to feel better after the first dose. My head is free from pain, my appetite good, and since using Sulphur Bitters I enjoy life with a zest long deemed impossible; and they will purify the blood as no other can do.

have saved my life. There is nothing like them. I earnestly entreat all afflicted with impure blood to try them and be cured.

The Cashier of the Boston Loan Co., WM. E. DURGIN, says: I recommend your Sulphur Bitters as the best spring medicine I have ever used; there is nothing like them to give an appetite, tone up the system, and do away with that languid feeling which is so frequent among those confined indoors. If you are sick and unable to obtain relief from other medicines, try Sulphur Bitters, for it will cure you. Cleanse the vitiated blood when you see its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, blotches and sores.

They Will Cure You.

The well known Manager of the Raymond Excursions to California, I. A. WHITCOMB, says: No other medicine can equal Sulphur Bitters for biliousness and dyspepsia. They have cured me when all other remedies failed.

THE WRESTLING EXHIBITION.

Persons who think a "wrestling man" must necessarily be a rough would be disabused of that idea by a personal interview with H. M Dufur and George W. Flagg, the professionals who give an exhibition at Music hall this (Friday) evening, and who show nothing of the "rough" in dress, manner or language, but are intelligent, pleasant appearing gentlemen. They are both engaged in prosperous business enterprises, Mr. Dufur being a merchant tailor of Marlboro, Mass., and Mr. Flagg a well known raiser of Cotswold sheep at Brattleboro, Vt. Neither of them uses alcohol or tobacco.

Mr. Flagg offers to give $5 to any man in the hall this evening that he cannot throw in five minutes, and $10 to any one he cannot throw in ten minutes.

The following received by the manager of Music hall from Augusta, Me., explains itself:

Dear Sir: I hear that at the coming wrestling match in your hall, H. M. Dufur offers $100 to any man that will gain two falls. I have decided to go to your place and compete for the prize, and will be there on the 13th, without fail. I have a friend that will buy young Dufur for the $25 offered; he also will be on hand; his name is Peter Rock. PETER DONNALLY.

ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT, G. A. R.

The officers elected for the ensuing two years were as follows: Commander, Marcus M. Collis of Storer Post, No. 1, of this city; senior vice-commander, George Farr of Littleton; junior vice-commander, Otis C. Wyatt of Tilton; medical director, Josiah C. Eastman of Hampstead; chaplain, Rev. Elijah R. Wilkins of Penacook; assistant adjutant-general, George E. Hodgdon of this city; council of administration, A. J. Farrar of Laconia, O. M. Knight of this city, H. J. Brown of Penacook, A. G. Grimes of Hillsborough, H. F. Clifton of Manchester.

"LET UP," BRETHREN.

A prominent New York democrat remarked recently that the frequent writing-up of Frank Jones by republican correspondents, with the the statement that he had been urged to accept the secretaryship of the navy, had materially diminished the prospects of the invitation to accept this portfolio.

Mr. Jones is probably able to care for his own political fortunes unaided by republican speculative notices, and when he really desires a cabinet position or similar honor, it will be time enough for the correspondents of the Boston paper to pile on the complimentary, and for some of the papers to fire off their criticisms. From what is seen in some of our republican cotemporaries as to cabinet speculations, one might imagine that the cabinet officers were to be selected by the newspapers instead of by the president-elect. We believe that the democrats and independents should be permitted to run the machine at the start in their own fashion, and though, of course, the mentioning of this or that man for any high office is an exhibition of well-intended compliment, it at times provokes the jealousy of competing candidates and in the end works injustice.

MARITIME NOTES.

Ice made faster in the docks and the coves of the river on the 12th inst. than on any previous day this winter, owing, the river men say, to the large amount of fresh water coming down. The river at the navy yard bridge was frozen clear across, and the steamer Mystic was unable to make her usual landing; her trips were made to and from the navy yard.

Several of the fishing fleet arrived in on the evening of Thursday, the 12th inst., with moderate fares, which they sold for four dollars per hundred pounds. The fishermen report Thursday as the coldest day on the water experienced this winter.

The Red Stocking base ball club will give their second social assembly at Congress hall this evening.

Thirty floor tickets for the Sons of Veterans (Colonial Military) ball have been sold in Dover.

At a social assembly in Congress hall on Wednesday evening of this week, aid was rendered in keeping rude Boreas from the hall by showy blankets loaned by Berry the hatter, which lent for a zero night a very comfortable aspect to the hall.

The city carts did not go their ashes-gathering rounds on Wednesday of this week, the entire force of the street commissioner being engaged with picks and shovels in clearing the ice from the sewer traps, so that in case of another thaw the water would have some chance to get into the sewers. The carts made their rounds on Thursday.

We are told that since the establishment of the new station on the Portsmouth & Dover railroad at the foot of Patterson road in Newington, near Mrs. Prescott's estate, the number of passengers from Newington over the road has very largely increased. The station is called Riverside, and was established through the instrumentality of Mr. Prescott, who owns a portion of the Rollins place, one of the most beautiful situations in that town noted for its views of river and bay.

The little bay between Noble's island and the north millbridge was frozen entirely over on Thursday, hard enough to bear a man anywhere,—the first time for several years; it was entirely free of ice on the previous Tuesday evening, at the end of the rain and thaw.

Gov. Hill has re-appointed Col. William H. Hackett a commissioner of deeds for the state of New York.

There came near being a jam of ice below Portsmouth bridge at flood tide early Thursday morning last, such as happened there twenty years and more ago; there was but a narrow way of clear water—and not very clear, at that—in the main channel, out with the ebb the ice was all carried off to sea again.

The channel between Peirce's island and the main land west of the island was frozen over on Thursday for the first time since 1872, hard enough for the boys to skate on, and persons crossed on the ice to Three Tree island from the old foundry wharf. The ice extended in an unbroken sheet from Union wharf to the first Newcastle bridge, and below the bridge as far as the eye could reach.

Frank Brown, a young man who boards Boston & Maine trains at North Berwick to sell popped corn, has saved enough money earned in that way to pay off a mortgage on his mother's house, and partially support her, besides.

Two parties in the city of Saco have created somewhat of a sensation, in which the male participant is Mr. James R. King, formerly of Saco, now principal of the Old Orchard high school, and Miss Lizzie Perry, a quite pretty blonde of eighteen years. Mr. King was formerly principal of the Spring street grammar school, and held that position for nearly eight years, when he severed his connection with the school about two years ago. At the time he was teaching in Saco, Miss Lizzie Perry was a pupil, and it was at that time that he became infatuated with her. After his removal from that capacity, his love for her continued unabated, however, until affairs came to a climax on Saturday last. He came up from Old Orchard and probably made suitable arrangements with his beloved one, for Miss Perry left her home on North street Saturday morning, presumably for school, but she did not go, and her sister came home with a note shortly after from Lizzie, stating that she was going to get married. This was the first intimation that her mother had received of her intended marriage, and was taken by complete surprise. Miss Perry was in the graduating class of the Saco high school, and not even her schoolmates had heard the slightest thing about her marriage, with the exception of her statemate. The couple proceeded to Dover of the 9:30 train Saturday morning, and were made one by Rev. Dr. McAllister of that place. They returned on the evening train, and went to Old Orchard, where they will shortly engage in housekeeping. Mr. John P. Perry, the father of the young lady, is a runner by occupation, and was entirely ignorant of their intended marriage.—Biddeford Times.

—A St. Louis furniture firm advertises that they have in their new building "42,500 square feet of floor room, equal to 425 rooms 100 feet square." It is to be hoped their furniture is better than their arithmetic.

—"That chicken doesn't seem to set well," said Crimsonbeak an hour after dinner, at which he partook very freely of hen which once occupied a place in the Crimsonbeak henroop. "I'm not surprised at that," said Mrs. Crimsonbeak, looking up from her book for a moment; "she never did set well even when she was alive!"

—Herr Kreutzhuber is a member of the secret police of Berlin. Being on his way home after midnight he observes on the street lamp a placard. "Ha! the scoundrels of Socialists have posted a placard denouncing his majesty," said Kreutzhuber to himself. Being determined to destroy the placard he painfully climbs up the lamp-post, and having secured the treasonable document, he reads: "Fresh paint."

HEREDITARY SCROFULA.

ARE you aware that in your blood the taint of scrofula has a prominent place? This is true of every one. It is liable at any time, on the slightest provocation, to develop itself in some insidious disease. Consumption and many other diseases are outcrowths of this impurity of the blood. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA has a wonderful power over all scrofulous troubles, as the remarkable testimonials we have received unmistakably prove.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—* * * My youngest son has always been troubled with Scrofulous Humor; sores in his head discharging from his ears, and running sore on the back of his ear for two years; his eyelids would fester and ulcerate, discharging so that I was obliged to wash them open every morning. His eyelashes nearly all coming out; he was exceedingly dainty, most of the time eating but two slight meals a day. We were unable to find anything that had the least effect upon him till last spring, 1876, we gave him two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla. His appetite improved at once. * * The back of his ear healed up without a scar, and not a sore in his head since. Sincere yours, etc.,

Mrs. N. G. SANFORD,
No. 169 Merrimack St., Lowell, Mass.

"We do not as a rule allow ourselves to use our editorial columns to speak of any remedy we advertise, but we feel warranted in saying a word for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sarsaparilla has been known as a remedial agent for centuries and is recognized by all schools of practice as a valuable blood purifier. It is put up in forms of almost infinite variety. But Messrs. Hood & Co., (Lowell, Mass.) who are thoroughly reliable pharmacists, have hit upon a remedy of unusual value. Certainly they have vouchers of cures which we know to be most extraordinary."—Editors Lowell Weekly Journal.

An exchange remarks that, "the best teachers are those who learn something new themselves every day," so we announce this day that several thousand important cures have been made by the use of Dr Bull's Cough Syrup.

Saved from the Grave.

"A severe cold, ending in a hard, dry cough, caused me to pass many sleepless nights, coughing until it seemed as though my head would burst. I told my friends that I must die. I was advised to try Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer. First dose was a great surprise; slept all night in peace. It cured me right up. Persuaded my friends to try it and it has cured every case."—Marshall H. Moody, South Hadley, Mass.

The United States senate has passed a bill to authorize a retired list for privates and non-commissioned officers of the army who have served thirty years and upwards, with seventy-five per cent of their pay.

Wintry Winds.

It's all right for poets to sing the praises of the beautiful snow, and the merry sleigh bells, and the ringing skates on the glassy ice, but they can't fill the bill with that sort of stuff when one is sitting with his feet in a tub of hot water, his head done up in flannels, and with mustard plasters on both sides of his chest. What a person needs then is a thorough dose of Kidney-Wort to act as a cathartic, for nothing will so quickly relieve that congestive, feverish condition which comes of a hard cold. Often these colds cause bilious attacks, lame backs, disordered kidneys, rheumatism, catarrh, etc. Kidney-Wort can be relied on to bring back a healthy condition.

The pleasure seeker who are flocking to New Orleans to be great Exposition, make it a point to investigate the world renowned Louisiana State Lottery, and examine the integrity and correctness of the distribution under Generals G. T. Beauregard, of La., and Jubal A. Early, of Va. The next (the 17th) Grand Monthly Drawing will occur at noon, Feb. 10th, of which M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La., will give any information.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. eodjan29,85

"As Good as New."

Are the words used by a lady, who was one time given up by the most eminent physicians, and left to die. Reduced to a mere skeleton, pale and haggard, not able to leave her bed, from all those distress-ing diseases peculiar to suffering females, such as displacement, leucorrhœa, inflammation, etc., etc. She began taking Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," and also using the local treatment recommended by him, and is now, she says, "as good as new." Price reduced to one dollar. By druggists.

News has been received at Quebec from Lake Simon, a temporary terminus on the Quebec & Lake St. John railway, that on the 8th inst. a camp situated about six miles from there, and occupied by four men, was burned, together with the men. No particulars of the disaster were given.

Biliousness

Is very prevalent at this season, the symptoms being bitter taste, breath offensive, tongue coated, sick headache, drowsiness, dizziness, loss of appetite. If this condition is allowed to continue, serious consequences may follow. By promptly taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, a fever may be avoided or premature death prevented. It is a positive cure for biliousness. Sold by all druggists.

All in the Line of Nature.

There is nothing in the line of magic or mystery about that wonderful and popular medicine, Parker's Tonic. It is simply the best and most scientific combination possible of the active principals of those vegetable curatives which act powerfully and directly on the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood. But there neither is, nor will be, any successful imitation of it. It is all the time curing those who had despaired of ever getting well. For yourself, your wife and children.

MADGE'S MISTAKE.

And then he held up his hand warningly, for he could hear voices in the hall, and in another moment George entered the room in company with a young lady whom Le Roy had never seen before, for she had been at school in Germany when he had first known Madge.

George introduced her informally to Le Roy as his sister-in-law, and then left her to entertain his friend, while he took his wife out of the room to break the sad news to her of his speedy departure for Egypt.

She cried a little, for although she did not love her husband very much, he had been kind to her when her father's failure and death reduced her and her sister to poverty, and had given them both a home by making her his wife.

But for that, she reflected with a shudder, they would have had to go out in the world and work for their living. Bessie would not have minded it so much, but Madge had recoiled from the prospect of working for her daily bread, with horror.

They went back to the drawing-room after a time, and Madge sat down at the piano at her husband's request, and played for them; but she could not sing—she could not, while Wilfred was in the room.

She had liked him better than she had liked George, although her husband was better-looking than his friend, and the old fascination was creeping over her.

If she had been a wise woman she would have objected to be left under Wilfred's guardianship; but, unfortunately, she was a very foolish one, and it seemed to her a very pleasant arrangement indeed.

Now that he had promised not to speak of the past to George, she was quite cordial and friendly with Wilfred.

"It will be so nice for us to have a friend to look after us while George is away," she said; "will it not, Bertie?"

"Very," returned Bertie, rather drily. Girl as she was, she thought Le Roy altogether too young and too hand one for the responsibility he had undertaken.

Bertie was very sweet and girlish, with soft blue eyes and a closely cropped head that gave her quite a child-like appearance. Not so brilliantly handsome as her sister, perhaps; but, nevertheless a very pretty girl.

When George was on his way to Egypt, Le Roy called daily at the cottage, often staying to partake of afternoon tea with the two sisters, who always gave him a warm welcome.

"He is very handsome" said Bertie, as she watched him riding down the street on his brown mare, after spending the afternoon with them.

Something in the tone of her voice and the way she looked after Wilfred annoyed Madge, who had never noticed how pretty her sister was getting until that moment.

"Yes," she said, "he is handsome, poor fellow!" And as she uttered these last words Madge sighed.

"Why 'poor fellow?'" asked Bertie, quickly turning to look at her sister.

"Because he will never marry?"

"How do you know that?" cried Bertie, coloring vividly. "Has he told you so?"

"No, but I happen to know: he loved someone long ago, and will never forget her."

"What can you know about Wilfred Le Roy?" incredulously. "We have only known him a few weeks."

"I knew him before poor father died," said Madge, playing with her rings to avoid meeting her sister's steady gaze.

"And you let George think you had never met before," said Bertie slowly. "You never loved him," opening her blue eyes. "If you had loved him you would have been true in spite of his poverty."

Months passed on, and taking up the Times one morning, Wilfred came upon his friend's name in the list of the slain.

It was a terrible blow for him, as he had loved George with quite a brotherly affection.

Madge went into hysterics when she heard the news, but soon calmed down, showing admirable resignation to her loss. Bertie, indeed, seemed to feel it the most.

George came as usual to the cottage, and one day when he and Madge were alone rather abruptly alluded to the past.

"He can't be going to propose already," thought the pretty widow, and deciding in her own mind to put him off for at least a twelve-month.

"Madge," said Wilfred, earnestly, "when I first came here and found you the wife of my friend, I thought I should go mad."

Madge murmured something about it being too soon to talk of such things, but he did not appear to hear her.

"Yes," he went on, "I loved you still. Forgive me. It was wrong, and I couldn't help it. And now—"

He paused for a moment, and Madge colored hotly, forgetting her recent bereavement, and know ng only that the man she loved was metaphorically at her feet.

"And now?" he returned in an agitated voice, "now I love—I love your sister."

Mrs. Enfield's complexion had never looked more lovely,—her cheeks were like roses; but her eyes!—well, they had rather an angry sparkle, and her lips were slightly compressed.

"I am glad, very glad indeed," she said, with em hasis. "If I were Bertie, I shoul not care for a man's second lo e; but, of course, everybody to their taste."

And with this parting taunt she walked out of the room just as Bertie entered it. The girl could not understand the meaning of the angry look her sister gave her.

She did understand it, though, a moment later, when Wilfred caught her in his arms and told her of his love.

After all, it was fortunate for all parties concerned that affairs had taken this turn, for a short time later on it was found that George Enfield's name was among the "Missing," not the killed.

Madge, to do her justice, was genuinely glad when she heard that her husband had "turned up" safe and sound, and welcomed him as warmly as if she had never thought of being his friend's wife.

So all ends happily, and—for George at least—where ignorance is bliss it is folly to be wise.

Cuticura REMEDIES THE GREAT SKIN CURES

Mrs. Smith's Case, and what the Rev. Mr. McKinstry has to say about it.

TO THE PUBLIC: I have been a fearful sufferer for fifteen years, most of the time with what has been called Eczema or Tetter, and Psoriasis and Lepra, and the like, and have always been told that there was no cure for me, and have been so discouraged that I had wished death for me. I have been so badly affected sometimes that there was not the small est spot from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet that was not diseased and as red as crimson. It would commence in small white specks, which had a silvery appearance, but were not deep, but if I attempted to heal them, or soon after their first appearance, they would burn and run together, and then there was a complete dry, red scale, which would become so full and so tight on the neck and look fiery and angry, and the burning sensation would be almost intolerable.

I was at times so lame that I could scarcely get about, and I could not dress myself without assistance. I tried many remedies, and have paid $ for in a single instance to a physician, but have never obtained only temporary relief. Although helped for a time, I soon relapsed again to be as badly troubled as ever, and during the winter of 1883 and 884 I suffered so much as to be entirely discouraged. Last June, however, I was advised by Elder and Mrs. L. C. McKinstry, whom I had known in these regions, to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES; and I felt somehow a little courage, from their favorable opinion of them, to try their virtues. About the second week of July last I commenced taking the remedies, and within six weeks I began to see a perceptible improvement, until now (Oct 1) I am about as good as new, and my flesh is as the flesh of a little child.

MRS. B. NJ. SMITH.

I certify that the above statement of my wife is correct. I join with her in expressing my gratitude for the great benefit he has received.

B. SMITH.

I certify that the above statement is correct. Mr. Smith is a prominent man in this community, where he lives. He is a well-known dealer in stock, and this statement, with that of his wife, is full and little to credit.

More Dynamite.

Mr. August Feigel, the German consul in New York, on the 12th inst. sent word to Inspector Byrnes that he had a box in his possession which he feared to open lest his office would be blown up, and requested the inspector to take it away. Detective Hickley and a doctor from the health board went to the consul's office, and Mr. Feigel pointed out an oblong box for their inspection. The cover was raised somewhat, and by peering beneath it one could see a brass cylinder, and when the cover was pushed up a little further a clicking sound was heard. The doctor took the box to the police headquarters and put it in a pail of water, so that should there be any explosive within it might become dampened, and the clock work rusty.

Half a dozen hours afterward the detective can fully pried off the top, and a unique infernal machine was revealed. The cylinder was to connect with a spring which was intended to cause a bar of iron to act upon an explosive compound six times more powerful than powder. The water had spoiled the machine for destructive work, but had the cover been lifted when it was in perfect order, at the time the consul received it, an explosion as terrible as the recent one in Grand street would have occurred.

On the afternoon of the 2d inst. a deck hand on one of the Catherine street ferry boats was stopped by a lady wearing a fur dolman and black bonnet, who asked him if some one had not left his property behind him, and pointed to an oblong box under the seats in the forward cabin, the deck hand pulled out the box, and the lady left the boat. When the deck hand laid the box upon the seat he saw there was a letter addressed to the German consul lying on top, and believing the article to be very valuable, took it to the ferrymaster. The letter was sent to Mr. Feigel, and likewise another letter informing him that the box was at the ferryhouse.

The War in the Soudan.

Lord Wolseley's official account of the battle of Berti, telegraphed from Korti to the war office in London, is as follows: "Gen. Brackenbury, who took command of the forces advancing up the Nile when Gen. Earle fell, has sent from Dulka island, about seventy miles above Merawi, the following report of the recent engagement: 'The attack was well planned and gallantly executed. Our expectation is that the effect of the battle will be to open the way to Berber without further fighting. The rebels held a high ridge of razor-backed hills, with some advanced koppies in front close to the river. Six companies of the Black Watch regiment and six companies of the South Staffordshire regiment marched around the high ridge of hills, entirely turning the enemy's position, which was attacked from the rear. The number of the enemy was not great, but their position was extremely strong and difficult of access, and they fought with the most determined bravery. The Black Watch advanced over rocks and broken ground upon the koppies. They answered the fire of the enemy in the coolest manner possible, and after they had thereby driven off the enemy's charge they stormed the position under heavy fire. General Earle was among the foremost in this attack, and, to the deep sorrow of every officer and man in the force, he was killed just at the summit of the first koppie was reached. At the same time the six companies of the Staffordshire regiment went to the attack of a high ridge, the way to which lay over the most difficult ground possible. In this attack their gallant commanding officer, Lieut. Col. Eyre, was killed. Meanwhile, the Nineteenth Hussars had captured the enemy's camp, and our success was complete. Ten of the enemy's standards fell into our hands. The enemy's losses were great, and their dead lie thick among the rocks and in the open space where they tried to rush through our advancing force when they found themselves surrounded. Scarcely any of the enemy can have escaped. Besides General Earle, who was killed by a bullet fired from a small hut, and Lieut. Col. Eyre, we sustained the loss of Lieut. Col. Coveney and nine men of the rank and file. Four officers and forty-two men were wounded. These have been brought to Dulka island'"

Lord Wolseley telegraphed on the 12th from Korti to the government that no reliable particulars about the fate of General Gordon had yet been received. He assured the ministry that the press reports which had been published were based on rumors, and that the Mudir of Dongola and all natives there about persisted in their belief that Khartoum had not yet fallen. Col. Sir Charles Wilson, however, was positive that there could be little or no doubt on this point. Lord Wolseley himself strongly hoped to receive in a few days specific and reliable information from trusty spies whom he despatched up the Nile for the purpose of ascertaining the exact facts. These messengers were expected soon to reach Korti on their return.

A despatch from the seat of war says 600 Arabs were killed in the fight of the 10th. An Arabic proclamation issued by the governor of Berber to his followers was found in the Arab camp after the battle; it informed the faithful that El Mahdi had captured Khartoum, "killed the traitor Gordon and captured his steamers and boats."

Sir Samuel Baker writes that he believes Khartoum had already fallen when the battles of Abu Klea and Gakdul were fought. He says that the treachery which caused the fall of the city originated among traders who, being absolutely ruined by England's policy of abandonment, wisely sought the Mahdi's protection. Sir Samuel urges that the new expedition consist of 12,000 men and that all converge at Berber, which would make a base that could be supplied from Suakim. Continuing he says: "If the present imbecile government delays any longer, the splendid army in Soudan will be paralyzed by hot weather. England should let the Italians occupy Kassala, relieving the present gallant garrison at that place and retaining the country from Massowah to the Athara river." He asks how long England will stand the present terrible misgovernment.

It is announced from Paris that the French government has sent orders to Admiral Courbet to watch for the arrival in the China seas of the British steamers Atlanta, from Hamburg Feb. 6th, and Metapedia, from Liverpool Feb 10th, both for Shanghai, with guns and munitions of war on board. The steamers will be warned when passing through the Suez canal against proceeding to any Chinese port.

Miss Eva Mackay was married Thursday at Paris to Don Ferdinand Julien Colonna, prince of Galatro. After the celebrations of the religious rite, Mrs. Mackay, mother of the bride, gave a grand bridal reception which it is said "in every respect must rank with the most magnificent festivals of French history. The reception especially was distinguished by the quality of the guests, among whom was included about every person of distinction and worth in French society."

Sec. Chandler on the 11th inst. received a cable message from Captain Cooke, commanding the U. S. S. Lackawanna, dated at Acapulco, saying that two enlisted men named Owen Griffith and William Wild have died from yellow fever, and recommending a change of climate for the benefit of the officers and crew of the vessel. The secretary telegraphed in reply ordering the vessel to proceed to San Francisco.

The indications are now that the capital punishment law in Maine will not be disturbed at present by the legislature, although several petitions have been presented for its repeal. The committee will rule against repeal, two to one. It is held that the law has not yet been given a fair trial, as it has had no victims.

The Baggage Master, Boston and Maine Railroad, Lawrence, Mass., A. Since using this medicine I have had no return of the headache, and my stomach has regained its original tone and vigor, and I believe

GARCELON, of Lewiston, Me., says: I have suffered with a running sore on my leg for the past 14 years, caused by exposure in the army, and have suffered everything a man could, the sore discharging constantly. I have tried every remedy that I heard of, but without benefit. Sulphur Bitters is the only thing that ever did me any good. When I commenced taking them I could not put my foot on the floor. I can now put my whole foot on the floor and walk on it. I think Sulphur

EDWARD KNOTT, Postmaster, Waverly, Ia., says: I have been in poor health for years, and suffered greatly from biliousness and torpid liver. I have consulted the best physicians and spent a great deal of money, with no permanent benefit, and had about lost faith in everything. I purchased three bottles of Sulphur Bitters and commenced to take them; and, to my great joy, I began to feel better after the first dose. My head is free from pain, my appetite good, and since using Sulphur Bitters I enjoy life with a zest long deemed impossible; and they will purify the blood as no other can do,

The Cashier of the Boston Loan Co., WM. E. DURGIN, says: I recommend your Sulphur Bitters as the best spring medicine I have ever used; there is nothing like them to give an appetite, tone up the system, and do away with that languid feeling which is so frequent among those confined indoors. If you are sick and unable to obtain relief from other medicines, try Sulphur Bitters, for it will cure you. THE ROCKINGHAM.

The work on the repairs and rebuilding of the Rockingham house is being done by seventy-five workmen. The Philadelphia pressed brick and brown stone trimmings in the front wall are being rapidly laid by men from Boston, who beneath the shelter of the temporary covering in front of the house are warmed by four stoves kept in operation day and night, and numerous charcoal braziers, while gas jets afford needed light. The dining hall is ready for lathing. The corners of the building are to be handsomely decorated with brown stone. The annex on State street is to be taken down; this removal will add much to the beauty of the remodelled house. The architect seems to have omitted that desirable appendage to a summer house, the front piazza, which does not appear on the plans. The work is being done with the utmost care, and with every attention to security and stability in the new structure. Should the owner be designated as the coming secretary of the navy, he certainly will possess a knowledge of "Construction and repair" above any one mentioned for the position.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Loella was on Friday reported to be in Boston harbor, loaded with a general cargo for this port.

The fishing schooner H. M. Perkins, of Gloucester, McDonald master, arrived at Boston from the banks on Friday, and reported that on the 11th inst., when twenty-five miles east of Thatcher's island, she lost overboard one of her crew, a single man named Joseph McDonald, aged twenty-three years and belong in Prince Edward i land.

This is St. Valentine's day.

On Wednesday night, the 11th inst., a grand dinner was given at Young's hotel, Boston, under the auspices of the Boston Fish Bureau, the net and twine dealers, salt importers and merchants, fish canners, fresh fish dealers, and others whose business is related to the great fishing industry of New England, being all represented at the tables. Among those present were two former Portsmouth men,—Mr. T. Morris Tredick, of the firm of L. Pickert & Co., wholesale fish dealers and packers, and Mr. Joseph E. Stringer, of Wendell & Phillips, wholesale commission receivers of fish.

Capt. R. F. Bradford, U. S. N., of this city, has been ordered to duty as a member of the board of inspection and survey. Capt. D. L. Braine has been detached from duty on the board of inspection, and placed on waiting orders.

The ice on Thursday reached from the beach under Fort McClary to Fishing islands, in the lower harbor, and from Fishing islands across the flats to Gerrish's island; Pepperell's cove was entirely frozen over, which it is alleged had not occurred before for twenty years.

Mr. William Ulmer, formerly freight agent at the Eastern railroad station in this city, and well-known as the capable manager of the Granite State base ball club, was in town on Friday, the 13th inst. The friends of Mr. Ulmer will be pleased to learn that he is doing well as travelling auditor of the Fitchburg railroad.

The first bridge over the Saco river was built with funds raised by a lottery, the charter for the lottery having been granted by the Massachusetts legislature in 1757, for that purpose. Sir William Pepperell was one of the persons named in the act to establish the lottery, and the tickets were sold at $2 each, the highest prize being $1000. The bridge crossed the river near the site of the present Main street bridge between Saco and Biddeford; it was built in 1758 or '59, and was carried away by a great freshet in 1785.

It is alleged that if the legislature of Maine at the present session refuses to repeal the law in regard to capital punishment, which it appears likely they will do, the executive council will refuse to grant a pardon to Oscar E. Blaney, the Kittery murderer, and other persons under sentence of death.

George Frederick Emery, of Boston, who was stricken with apoplexy while attending the annual meeting of the Webster Historical society on Jan. 19th, and who expired on that day, was born in Biddeford on the 20th of May, 1820, his father being the late Hon. Isaac Emery. The maiden name of his mother was Faith Savage Bigelow, and she was a granddaughter of that Samuel Phillips Savage who presided over the memorable meeting in the Old South meeting house, whose deliberations, if they could be so called, resulted in the destruction of the tea in Boston harbor on the evening of Dec. 16th, 1773. She was also a direct lineal descendant of Ann Hutchinson, whose religious teachings so seriously disturbed the early days of the Puritan colony.

In the Maine legislature, on the 12th inst., the lobster bill was tabled on its passage to be engrossed.

In a quarrel, Mrs. Johnson of Candia struck her husband over the head with a club, cutting open one cheek and making him see stars. Their honeymoon was not over at the time of the assault. While waiting for the coming trial Mr. Johnson is preparing for a divorce suit.

After a smart thunder shower some time ago, Dr. Batchelder of Pelham collected some dust from the walk in front of his house, which he sent to the "Popular Science Monthly" laboratory for examination. That paper says that it proved to be meteoric dust, largely composed of iron, nickel and silica.

Hon. Irving A. Watson, M. D., secretary of the state board of health, has sent a sample of the alleged oleomargarine in the possession of a Concord trader to Dr. Angell, a chemist of Derry, for official examination. It is stated that two tons of this refined tallow have been received in Concord. The officials say that New Hampshire is flooded with adulterated articles of food of almost every description, and it is expected that a systematic investigation of the matter will be begun soon.

The Cocheco Manufacturing company's mills at Dover are running on full time, and paying full wages. In the print works, a separate branch of the same corporation, the work is booming, and some parts of it are running overtime. The Sawyer woollen mills are also having all they can do, and paying full prices for labor.

Mary Persis Bell, daughter of Ex-Gov. Bell, of Exeter, was married Thursday, the 12th inst., to Hollis Russell Bailey of Boston. The ceremony was performed at the residence of Gov. Bell by Rev. George B. Morgan of Christ church.

The Manchester Union says the only child of Mr. C. A. Smith, of Bristol, has eight grandmothers living, and makes the fifth generation now living in Bristol. The maternal great-great-grandmother is eighty-seven years of age, and now reads without glasses and can hear distinctly, though at fifty years of age she was quite deaf and obliged to use glasses.

Eva Peck, aged seventeen, an adopted daughter of Mr. Charles Buckingham of Huntington, Conn., and Martin Wagner, aged nineteen, a farm hand, were arrested in Bridgeport on Wednesday morning, Feb. 11th. The couple eloped from Huntington on Tuesday night, walked to Bridgeport, a distance of nine miles, and were about to take the train for Turner's Falls to be married. Before leaving, Wagner stole about $50 in cash from Mr. Buckingham. Miss Peck is a bright, attractive girl, and Wagner rather a boyish-looking German.

A "wild" freight train on the Texas Pacific railroad was thrown from a bridge near Marthaville, Texas, on the night of the 11th inst., a rail having been maliciously removed; the engine and eleven cars went down, but the train hands miraculously escaped. The authors of the outrage intended to wreck a passenger train, which was due at the bridge half an hour after the wild train reached it. Two boys have been arrested for the crime.

A cremation society was organized at Davenport, Ia., Feb. 12th, with a capital stock of $25,000. The company, which is composed of some of the prominent German citizens, propose to erect a building with arrangements suitable to the purposes of cremation, to be ready for cremation as early in the spring as possible. It will be the only establishment of the kind west of Washington, Penn.

A despatch from Tonquin states that the French column which is advancing toward Lang Son, under command of General de L'Isle, has had three days hard fighting in the defiles of the mountains. The French losses are heavy, but the troops are making steady progress despite the obstinate resistance of the Chinese.

HEREDITARY SCROFULA.

ARE you aware that in your blood the taint of scrofula has a prominent place? This is true of every one. It is liable at any time, on the slightest provocation, to develop itself in some insidious disease. Consumption and many other diseases are outgrowths of this impurity of the blood. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA has a wonderful power over all scrofulous troubles, as the remarkable testimonials we have received unmistakably prove.

"MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—* * * My youngest son has always been troubled with Scrofulous Humor; seems in his head discharging from his ears, and a running sore on the back of his ear for two years; his eyelids would fester and ulcerate, discharging so that I was obliged to wash them open every morning, his eyelashes nearly all coming out; he was exceedingly dainty, most of the time eating but two slight meals a day. We were unable to find anything that had the least effect upon him till last spring, 1876, we gave him two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla. His appetite improved at once. * * The back of his ear healed up without a scar, and not a sore in his head since. Sincerely yours,

MRS. N. C. SANBORN,
No. 103 Merrimack St., Lowell, Mass

"We do not as a rule allow ourselves to use our editorial columns to speak of any remedy we advertise, but we feel warranted in saying a word for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sarsaparilla has been known as a remedial agent for centuries and is recognized by all schools of practice as a valuable blood purifier. We put up in forms of almost infinite variety, but Messrs. Hood & Co., (Lowell, Mass.) who are thoroughly reliable pharmacists, have hit upon a remedy of unusual value. Certainly they have vouchers of cures which we know to be most extraordinary."—Editors Lowell Weekly Journal.

Expressions of gratitude on the part of the public are always impressive and solemn. It is pleasant to know that the people are justly praising the merits of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, a safe remedy for colds, coughs, bronchitis, croup and sore throat.

Don't Look Like a Wreck.

"When a man is going down hill everybody is ready to give him a kick." Yes, that is so. It is sad, but natural. Why, many a man and woman, seeking employment, would have got it if their hair hadn't been so thin and gray. One bottle of Parker's Hair Balsam is then the best investment. It stops falling hair, promotes new growth and restores color. Clean, highly perfumed, not a dye. A great improvement over any similar preparation, and sold at the low price of 50c.

William Ray, an escaped lunatic from Seneca Falls, N. Y., was arrested at St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 10th, for threatening to "remove" President-elect Cleveland.

Saved from the Grave.

"A severe cold, ending in a hard, dry cough, caused me to pass many sleepless nights, coughing until it seemed as though my head would burst. I told my friends that I must die. I was advised to try Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer. First dose was a great surprise; slept all night in peace. It cured me right up. Persuaded my friends to try it and it has cured every case."—Marshall H. Moody, South Hadley, Mass.

Father John Slattery of the Josephite order is meeting with much success in his efforts to found a mission for the colored Catholics of Richmond, Va. There are 30,000 colored people in that city, of whom about fifty belong to the Catholic church. Father Slattery and his confreres have consecrated their lives to the conversion of the colored people in the United States.

Wintry Winds.

It's all right for poets to sing the praises of the beautiful snow, and the merry sleigh bells, and the ringing skates on the glassy ice, but they can't fill the bill with that sort of stuff when one is sitting with his feet in a tub of hot water, his head done up in flannels, and with mustard plasters on both sides of his chest. What a person needs then is a thorough dose of Kidney-Wort to act as a cathartic, for nothing will so quickly relieve that congestive, feverish condition which comes of a hard cold. Often these colds cause bilious attacks, lame backs, disordered kidneys, rheumatism, catarrh, etc. Kidney-Wort can be relied on to bring back a healthy condition.

In the summer of 1843 a travelling showman exhibited at Deerfield, Mass., "The battle of Bunker Hill and Burning of Charlestown." The exhibition was in the hall of the old tavern, which was taken down in 1853. A young man sang comic songs between scenes. That young man was John B. Gough.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. eodjan9,95

"It Knocks the Spots."

And everything in the nature of eruptions, blotches, pimples, ulcers, scrofulous humors, and incipient consumption, which is nothing more nor less than scrofula of the lungs, completely out of the system. It stimulates and invigorates the liver, tones up the stomach, regulates the bowels, purifies the blood and builds up the weak places of the body. It is a purely vegetable compound, and will do more than is claimed for it. We refer to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery."

While on Nantucket shoals Feb. 6th, in the schooner Jennie Freeman, Miss Jennie Freeman, the captain's sister, was knocked overboard by the foreboom jibing. W. J. McNaught, the mate, jumped overboard and managed to keep her up till a boat from the vessel picked them both up. She is the third person whom McNaught has saved from drowning inside of a year.

Three Reasons

Why every one needs, and should take, Hood's Sarsaparilla in the spring:

1st: Because the system is now in its greatest need. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives strength.

2d: Because the blood is sluggish and impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies.

ON THE ENGINE.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run from Fall River to Boston, between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could not rely sense. I think this was in part brought on by habits of eating, and partly to the fact of the engine. Some times my head would snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fist. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach did not thought it were a great raw sore surface, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the constant air brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should be taken from the road. But I kept at work until then as a last resort when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this crisis DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pain left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good and it serves every purpose, and discomforts completely out of my way. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure a typhoid. One night a month ago, John Sutton, an engineer who runs the main line train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a big fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down my job. "Nonsense, John," said "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, filled his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Dan," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, conduct, N. Y." said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and ousting every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office—everywhere.

A minister, in Lowell, Mass., has been obliged to give up preaching on account of trouble in his throat. If this reverend gentleman had taken Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup he would still have been a member of his profession.

Bark Thomas Fletcher left Brunswick, Gar, Oct. 25th, for Buenos Ayres, and has not since been heard from. Wreckage believed to be from her has been found on the beach near Cape Henlopen.

Breaking Up.

On every hand we see evidence that winter is breaking up, and will soon have to yield to the advancing spring. It is a most important question amongst scientific men what causes the general feeling of debility and lassitude so prevalent in this region. While some regard it as the result of confinement and inaction, others suppose it to be caused by the decay of vegetable and animal debris during the winter. What is especially needed at this time, however, is something to overcome these influences. It is too late to talk about the causes; what is the cure? Thousands of persons all over the country who have given Kidney-Wort a faithful trial are ready to testify that no other remedy is equal to it for cleansing the system, purifying the blood, regulating the bowels, and curing all kidney and lever diseases. It is in fact the king of all spring medicines.

A bar of silver valued at $1200 was recently stolen from the Philadelphia mint. It has been recovered, and the alleged thief arrested.

Delicate Ladies!

Who have that tired and all-gone feeling, and don't like to be disturbed, will continue to be troubled with this condition until they renew their impure blood. Sulphur Bitters will cause new and rich blood to course through every artery and vein in the human system. See another column.

The inhabitants of Ogunquit village, in the town of Wells, having petitioned the Maine legislature to authorize and direct the commissioners of York county to lay out a bridge over the Ogunquit river, the legislative committee on roads and bridges last week gave a hearing on the petition, Judge Hobbs of North Berwick appearing for the petitioners, and Judge Nathan Cleaves and Gen. Henry B. Cleaves of Portland for the town of Wells, which opposes it on the ground that the expense of building the bridge would be altogether out of proportion to the benefits to be derived from it. The matter after long discussion was referred to the next legislature, on the ground that the notice of the hearing given the town and the petitioners was insufficient.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMTISM

I was attacked last winter with inflammatory rheumatism of severe type—my first serious illness since 1876. I had various kinds of treatment with only temporary partial relief. After seven weeks I was reduced in weight 35 pounds, had no strength or appetite, and was growing weaker every day. In this condition I began Swift's Specific, and in three days began to improve, and in three weeks I was free from disease and up attending to my regular business. My appetite returned and I rapidly gained my flesh. I have waited this long to be sure in that my cure was permanent.

Injurious Talking.

A Frenchman, speaking of a person known to his comrades, said: "His mouth costs him nothing, for he always opens it at the expense of others." There are multitudes of persons to whom that remark will apply. Exaggeration and defamation [illegible] sources of social misery with persons who [illegible] from the deliberate [illegible] who will habitually [illegible] their statements to such an extent that a false impression is conveyed to the mind of the listener. They thus lower the tone of their own mind, destroy the power of accurate perception, diminish the confidence of their friends, and sow the seeds of much error in the world. They soon discover that they are not credited even when they speak soberly. Their moral drafts upon social confidence are dishonored.

But perhaps the most injurious talk is that which detracts from the character of another—that which openly or in disguise strikes at the reputation of a brother pilgrim—that which "cuts men's throats with whisperings"—that which is adopted by the envious rival who seeks to build "his name on the ruins of other's fame." Little does the slanderer think what a bitter harvest he will himself reap from the calumnious words he has uttered. A lady visited Philip Neri on one occasion, accusing herself of being a slanderer. "Do you frequently fall into this fault?" he inquired. "Yes, very often," replied the penitent. "My dear child," said Philip, "your fault is great, but the mercy of God is greater. I now bid thee do as follows: go to the nearest market and purchase a chicken just killed and still covered with feathers; then walk to a certain distance, plucking the bird as you go. Your walk finished, return to me." The woman did as directed, and returned, anxious to know the meaning of so singular an injunction. "You have been very faithful to the first part of my orders," said Philip; "now to the second part and you will be cured. Retrace your steps, pass through all the places you have traversed, and gather up one by one all the feathers you have scattered." "But," said the woman, "I cast the feathers carelessly away, and the wind carried them in all directions." "Well, my child," replied Philip, "so it is with your words of slander; like the feathers which the wind has scattered, they have been wafted in many directions. Call them back now if you can. Go, sin no more."—Ouvver for January.

A Lost Opportunity.

The best guaranty that the republican party has, of regaining its ascendency after its own mistakes have sufficiently been atoned, is found in the unceasing blunders of the democracy. As one after another of the bright and brainy (we do not like this innovation on good English, but it expresses much,) men have left the democracy there has remained the effete element recruited from time to time from the liquor, oil, railway and kindred interests, which have sent into its councils their representative men with an unmistakable purpose in their politics.

During these many years the party has suffered constantly from the want of competent leaders. Great questions of finance and political economy have arisen, which some of its leaders in Congress have been no more able to comprehend, than can the infant in its nurse's arms grasp the problem of its existence. This incompetency has resulted in constantly (to use the phrase of an esteemed co-temporary) "turning the rascals out," and after a brief season the disgusted people have sent a sufficient number of republicans to Congress as a proper caution to the democrats to achieve better results. Perhaps in no former instance has the utter want of political tact been plainer seen than in the action of the democratic majority in the house of representatives last week, upon the subsidy section of the post-office appropriation.

Every well informed reader of this paper (and it necessarily follows that a reader of our journal must become well informed,) knows that there has been much said and done in regard to the decline of our commerce and the loss of our foreign trade. Everyone but a few democratic congressmen knows that England is constantly looking out for the interest of her ocean commerce and her trade; that to-day she is carrying war into Africa in the interest of English bondholders, or upon a financial, not a moral or political basis; while the time seems to have arrived when this country might be expected to do something for the mercantile marine.

The democracy, for want of a better general, are under the command of Sam'l J. Randall, a representative from Pennsylvania. It goes without saying that by reason of the blunders of this representative "statesman," who occupies the anomalous position of a tariff democrat, the democracy are often placed at a disadvantage. Still, Randall is the king bee of the democratic hive, and in legislative results is all powerful.

The appropriation of $600,000 subsidy had passed the investigation of the committee on appropriations, and was in fair way to be adopted by the committee of the whole house, when Mr. Holman, whom the democrats have named the "watch dog of the treasury," began to bark at the clause allowing additional compensation to American steamships for carrying ocean mails, and threatened the democrats that any vote in favor of this appropriation would be a political sin.

Now, if there is anything which can wake up Hewitt of New York, while in Washington, we are informed historically, it is the barking of a dog. Mr. Hewitt differs from Judge Holman and the Pennsylvania representative in this,—he is a capitalist and a business man, and has practical ideas, among which is the notion that the people, in the present state of business in this country, desire something above and beyond democracy. But Mr. Hewitt's sound suggestions had no more weight upon the Bourbon mind than did the eloquent remarks of the Jersey lily, who said a few words of strong purport. In fine, Mr. Randall was not quite prepared to have his party make an advance while a republican administration was in existence, and an opportunity to aid our shipping was lost.

We have heard all along the lamenting exclamations of our distinguished townsman Ex-Congressman Marcy, that the American shipping had gone to that region the precise latitude and longitude of which is not laid down on any chart, and we had supposed that in an effort to encourage our carrying trade and increase the volume of our exports the democracy might be relied upon to aid, or at least would permit legislative enactment to be achieved in this direction. But we see Randall running around the house drumming up recruits to defeat a measure looking toward the revival of our merchant shipping and the reappearance of our flag in foreign ports. Yea, even when he might have voted against the subsidy proposition and protected his virtue, and attributed the anti-democratic result to Hewitt and others, we find the Pennylvania leader active in efforts to defeat the measure. We hear, during the voting,

"The master of the sheepfold, with a democratic grin,
Enquiring of the chairman 'Have my sheep dey all come in?'"

We see him threatening other members of his party that their share of patronage shall be withheld, and making a fight against the shipping and business interests of the country worthy of the most ignorant and bigoted democratic politician of the most ultra-southern school. Holman is a conceded crank upon all such subjects, but from Randall, the acknowledged commander-in-chief, better results might have been expected; but it remains true what was once said of the silk purse. We give it up. And are we to have four years of this mismanagement?

It is stated that the city has settled with Mrs. Michael Leary,—who broke a leg on Sunday night, the 8th inst., by stepping into a hole on the corner of Bridge and Hanover streets where the snow and ice had been cleared away over a sewer trap,—by paying her $200 and medical expenses. We do not understand that the city or any of its officials were really at fault in the matter, yet the settlement was undoubtedly judicious; a country jury would probably have given Mrs. Leary $10,000.

Mr. Alexander L. Rand, who runs the grist mill at the north pond whenever it is run, and has been connected with the mill between twenty and thirty years, says he never knew the solid ice, strong enough to bear a man and reaching from shore to shore, to extend from the mill-bridge so far down toward the Noble's island bridge as it has this winter.

The Biddeford papers announce the filing with the county commissioners of York county of the papers relative to the contemplated York Harbor & Beach railroad, the route of which has been located. As surveyed, the line will start from the Eastern railroad at Butler's crossing in Kittery, and passing over what is called the "Middle route" (there having been three routes surveyed) will cross the York river at Emerson's pond, and terminate at Union Bluff, York beach.

—A Burlington art dealer offered a copy of a picture by a famous artist, and said it was painted by Rosa Bonner, a daughter of Robert Bonner. The Vermont air is just too rare for anything.

ANOTHER DISCOVERY.

Our neighbor, the Times, is bound that if the present city government does not get a good name it shall not be for lack of a trumpeter to sound its praises. In its report of the late meeting of the board of aldermen is the following:

The committee laid before the board two bills which they said were in their opinion somewhat exorbitant, and although they had approved them for payment, they recommended that in the future steps be taken to cut down such expenses. The bills in question were those of Joshua B. Marston, for shovelling snow from reservoirs and in front of engine houses, together with his salary as steward of a company. The bill was made up for shovelling snow, at the rate of thirty and forty cents per hour.

In another column of the same issue, under the heading "Another abuse brought to light," it says:

It will be seen in our report of the meeting of the board of mayor and aldermen that another of the republican abuses whereby men were allowed to rob the city has been brought to light, and steps taken to break up the abuse. Men have been charging thirty and forty cents per hour for shovelling snow from reservoirs, etc., the theory being that the work had to be done at unseasonable hours on account of the liability of fires. The practice has been, however, as a general thing, to shovel when most convenient for the men who have done the work. Our reform city government is doing its duty well.

The bills referred to by the Times amounted to about $42, and included two bills of Joshua B. Marston, republican, whose name the Times prints,—one of $8, for services as steward of a fire company, and one of $10.50 for shovelling snow from reservoirs between Nov. 20th and Feb. 2d, at thirty cents per hour when actually at work. [Under the republican administration we believe Mr. Marston received twenty-five cents an hour for this service.] The other bill, of $28 or thereabouts, was that of Samuel Webber, democrat, whose name the Times does not print, and was for shovelling snow at forty cents per hour.

We do not understand that any fault was found by the aldermen with these bills; it was simply questioned whether men equally as responsible and trustworthy as Messrs. Webber and Marston could not be procured to do the work at a less rate. It was explained that the work had often to be done at unseasonable hours, on account of the necessity of being ready for fires; and we believe the Times is in error when it says "The practice has been, as a general thing, to shovel when most convenient for the men who have done the work." We know that the shovelling was done at whatever hour of the day or night it was required, without regard to the convenience of the shovellers, formerly, for we have seen them clearing away reservoirs at one or two o'clock in the morning; and we have not heard that Chief Engineer Marden is any less zealous in the execution of his duty than were his republican predecessors.

PRESENTATION.

Chief Engineer Benjamin F. Garvin, U. S. N., for several years past at the head of the department of steam engineering at this navy yard, was on Saturday, the 14th inst., detached from duty at the yard, and placed on the retired list of the navy by limitation of age.

Mr. Garvin has not only been a thoroughly efficient head of department, but has always been highly esteemed by the men under his charge; and at noon on Saturday he was presented with a handsome and costly ebony cane, gold mounted and bearing the following inscription: "B. F. Garvin, U. S. N., by his foremen; Portsmo' Navy Yard, Feb. 14, 1885." The presentation address was made by Mr. Oliver G. Fernald, and accompanying the gift was a memorial containing the names of the donors, as follows: John H. Flagg, foreman machinist; Oliver G. Fernald, foreman coppersmith; Samuel H. Pillsbury, foreman patternmaker; James M. Knapp, foreman boiler-maker; Richard H. Waldron, foreman moulder; J. Mahlon Bickford, foreman laborer.

MARGARET MATHER.

Miss Margaret Mather, the young actress who has achieved such phenomenal success on the American stage within the past few years, is booked to appear at Music hall on Saturday evening, Feb. 28th, when "The Honeymoon" will probably be presented. The many hundreds who saw and admired her as Juliet, when she last appeared in Music hall, will be interested by the following account of her success in the widely-different character of Juliana, which we take from the Boston Globe of last week:

From tragedy to comedy—from Shakespeare's "Macbeth" to Tobin's "Honeymoon"—is in truth a change which few of the star actresses of the day, however confident in their power, would feel themselves able to make. But Miss Margaret Mather, having essayed on one evening the role of Lady Macbeth, presents the evening following a portrayal of the wilful wife of Duke Aranza that is as brightly effective and successful as though triumph in comedy had been the chief ambition of her histrionic career. The artiste was welcomed by an audience of good size at the Boston theatre, and the performance was followed with many evidences of pleasure and satisfaction. Miss Mather set forth the hauntiness of Juliana in the scene before the wedding "excellent well," the business of the role being admirably done. In the presentation of the angry wife, who seeks separation from her husband, and gains by simulated submission the liberty which gives her opportunity to proclaim her wrongs to the meek duke, the actress was also very happy. It was in the acts which mark the growth of love for Aranza, however, that Miss Mather was most charming. The scene where, after listening to her husband's words of praise, she parts from him with a kiss, was given delightfully. Very interesting, also, was her impersonation in the merry-making scene; and she led the dance with the utmost grace. Miss Mather was recalled at the fall of the curtain, and much applauded. Her Juliana may be accounted, therefore, a decided success; and those who have seen the star's triumphs in tragedy should not pass unimproved the opportunities offered in this engagement to witness one of her best comedy impersonations.

THE "OLDEST NEWSPAPER."

The oldest newspaper in the United States is the weekly Massachusetts Spy, established in Boston, March 3, 1771, by Isaiah Thomas, the historian of American printing, and issued continuously at Worcester since 1775.—Biddeford Times.

Edwin Alden & Brothers, in their "American Newspaper Catalogue," give the date of the establishment of the weekly Massachusetts Spy as 1870, the daily Spy dating from 1845. But even were the weekly established in 1771 it would still be far from "the oldest newspaper in the United States," as there are a number that were established before that date and which still exist; the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE was established Oct. 3d, 1756, by Daniel Fowle, has been continuously published ever since, and is undoubtedly the oldest paper of continuous publication in the United States. But it was not the first established, for Fowle himself published a paper in Boston before coming to Portsmouth, and other papers were published in Boston before Fowle's. The Maryland Gazette, published at Annapolis, claims priority over the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE, and gives the date of its establishment as 1745; there is good proof that it was established in that year, but its publication has been several times interrupted, in one case for several consecutive years.

"NOBODY'S CLAIM."

"Nobody's Claim" will be performed at Music hall on Saturday evening, Feb. 21st. It is a heroic drama of the frontier variety, the action being laid in the howling wilderness, and there are wily scouts, daring trappers, persecuted maidens and reckless outlaw chiefs in the cast, the characters all being taken by competent performers; the company has been "playing to large business," and will no doubt have a big audience here. Tickets will be 25, 35 and 50 cents.

MARITIME NOTES.

The barkentine George W. Sweeney and schooner Ada A. Kennedy, which arrived in Portsmouth lower harbor from Boston on the 9th inst., in tow of tug Ice King and bound for Rockport, Me., passed by at Bath on the 12th.

The schooner John J. Hanson, Stevens master, sailed from Horse island, near Bath, Me., on the 12th inst., with a cargo of ice for New York. The John J. Hanson is the latest addition to the Dover Navigation Co.'s fleet, and this is her first voyage.

The fish receipts at Gloucester, Mass., last week, aggregated 245,000 pounds of codfish, 75,800 pounds of halibut, 110,000 pounds of haddock and 2,160,000 frozen herring. The market continued active.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The U. S. S. Marion, at the navy yard, will be inspected by the board of inspection and survey to-day.

The hours of labor on the navy yard were altered on Saturday, the men now going to work at eight o'clock in the morning instead of 7:30, and knocking off at five in the afternoon instead of 4:30.

Chief Engineer William B. Brooks is ordered to this navy yard Feb. 20th, as chief of the department of steam engineering.

Private C. E. Moran, U. S. M. C., on Friday delivered himself up at the barracks of the Charlestown navy yard, as a deserter from the barracks at the Portsmouth yard.

The employes at the Charlestown navy yard who worked through the month of January "on spec," trusting that the government would pay their wages, though no appropriation had been made, were paid on Saturday last.

A Washington despatch of the 14th inst. to the Boston Sunday Herald says: "Postmaster T. H. Jenness of Rye Beach, N. H., who is sick here with congestion of the brain, is pronounced out of danger by Surgeon-General Hamilton, if no relapse occurs. Mr. Jenness is not yet able to sit up." This undoubtedly refers to G. Harrison Jenness, Esq., who is postmaster at Rye Beach, and who froze both sides of his face while driving from Rye to Hampton railroad station on one of the intensely cold days early this month; he went to Washington about ten days ago. We are to be counted among the many who earnestly hope for "Harry's" speedy and complete restoration to health. He is a valuable citizen of Rye, energetic in good works, progressive,—in short, he is such a man as no place can afford to lose.

Some of the Colonial Military suits from the Essex Costume Parlors, Boston, are on exhibition in one of the stores in Franklin block. Mr. Hill, the costumer, will be in the city to-day to supply costumes to all desiring them.

The ladies of the Universalist Social Circle have arranged a fine musical and social entertainment, a good supper, and a fine art loan exhibition for Wednesday evening next at the Universalist vestry, to which they invite their friends within and from without the parish. A sale of fancy articles, and the disposal of an elaborately-embroidered silk quilt of the "crazy" pattern to the best guesser, are also on the programme. Miss Alice Hanscom, pianist, and Miss Fannie Hoyt, violinist, are engaged to assist in the musicale, which warrants the assertion that the selections will be artistically performed.

Five dollars a hundred pounds was the price paid for fish on Saturday by the local buyers. The quantity brought in was not large.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Is designed to meet the wants of a large portion of our people who are either too poor to employ a physician, or are too far removed to easily call one, and a still larger class who are not sick enough to require medical advice, and yet are out of sorts and need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood, and oil up the machinery of their bodies so it will do its duty willingly. No other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy.

My friend, you need not take our word. Ask your neighbor, who has just taken one bottle. He will tell you that "It's the best dollar I ever invested."

LEBANON N. H., Feb. 19, 1879.
MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO., Dear Sirs—Although greatly prejudiced against patent medicines in general, I was induced, from the excellent reports I had heard of your Sarsaparilla, to try a bottle, last December, for dyspepsia and general prostration, and I have received very gratifying results from its use. I am now using the second bottle, and consider it a very valuable remedy for indigestion and its attendant troubles.
Yours truly,
F. C. CHURCHILL,
(Firm of Carter & Churchill.)

The use of Iodoform or mercurials in the treatment of catarrh—whether in the form of suppositories or ointments—should be avoided, as they are both injurious and dangerous. It has cured thousands of acute and chronic cases, where all other remedies have failed. A particle is applied into each nostril; no pain; agreeable to use. Price fifty cents of druggists.

"Hello!" we heard one man say to another, the other day. "I didn't know you at first; why! you look ten years younger than you did when I saw you last." "I feel ten years younger," was the reply. "You know I used to be under the weather all the time and gave up expecting to be any better. The doctor said I had consumption. I was terribly weak, had night-sweats, cough, no appetite, and lost flesh. My Dr. Pierce's 'Golden Medical Discovery' advertised, and thought it would do no harm if it did no good. It has cured me. I am a new man because I am a well one."

The British steamship Benwell Tower, a new vessel of 2036 tons register, was abandoned in a sinking condition Jan. 29th, on the voyage from Baltimore for Liverpool. The second mate and one seaman were drowned; the rest of the crew, thirty in number, were landed in New York last week.

ON THE ENGINE.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River b at train between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was due partly to irregular habits of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes my head would snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fists. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as though it were a great raw and sore surf ce, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the constant jar brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next spring, when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this critical time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pains left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good, and it drove every acute pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night, a while ago, John Layton, an engineer who runs the main line boat train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," said, "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, filled his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Dan," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, Rondout, N. Y.," said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office—everywhere

An indiscreet man is like an unsealed letter, everybody can read him, but the wise man secureth in time what in time he will surely need—a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

—The man who is better to everybody else than he is to himself always has to look to the man he has most neglected when he needs a little help.

Pure blood is absolutely necessary in order to enjoy perfect health. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood and strengthens the system.

—In a New York billiard room they have pails of milk standing about for players to dip their cues into when they require chalking.

Mothers, teething and fretful children need Dr. Arnold's Soothing & Quieting Cordial. Druggists. 20c.

—A man named Roscoe Conkling Hendricks has just been put in the Virginia penitentiary.

Not a Syrup.

Wetherell's Sarsaparilla is no weak syrup with a "Quaker" name attached; nor a "Rum Tonic," but a concentrated extract of the pure vegetable plants of which it is composed. Each bottle contains more medicine for $1.00 than that of any other preparation. Sold by druggists.

—Two Bridgewater boys found a canvas bag with $10 in it while digging for bait. It isn't unusual for a fisherman to have luck while digging for bait. It is when the fishing begins that fortune and the fishes turn their backs on him.

Breaking Up.

On every hand we see evidence that winter is breaking up, and will soon have to yield to the advancing spring. It is a most important question amongst scientific men what causes the general feeling of debility and lassitude so prevalent in this region. While some regard it as the result of confinement and inaction, others suppose it to be caused by the decay of vegetable and animal debris during the winter. What is especially needed at this time, however, is something to overcome these influences. It is too late to talk about the causes; what is the cure? Thousands of persons all over the country who have given Kidney-Wort a faithful trial are ready to testify that no other remedy is equal to it for cleansing the system, purifying the blood, regulating the bowels, and curing all kidney and lever diseases. It is in fact the king of all spring medicines.

—There is a glacier in Alaska moving along at the rate of a quarter of a mile a year, and there is some talk in sporting circles of getting up a race between the glacier and a messenger boy.

All in the Line of Nature.

There is nothing in the line of magic or mystery about that wonderful and popular medicine, Parker's Tonic. It is simply the best and most scientific combination possible of the essential principals of those vegetable curatives which act powerfully and directly on the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood. But there neither is, nor will be, any successful imitation of it. It is all the time curing those who had despaired of ever getting well. For yourself, your wife and children.

—A Chicago collector of rare books has paid $1,500 for a bible. Thought it was something new, probably.

Physic is necessary at times for biliousness, costiveness, etc. Use Dr. Arnold's Bilious Pills. 25c.

Times are very hard in New Haven. Several hundred citizens are spearing eels on the harbor ice for a living, and in a poker game at Yale college broken up the other night the pot contained only twenty-two cents.

—By the time a few more monumentally high-priced New York hotels fail they will probably learn that all travellers are not millionaire spendthrifts willing to pay sixteen prices for style.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teeting. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. eod1jan9,85

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM

I was attacked last winter with inflammatory rheumatism of severe type—my first serious illness since 1876. I had various kinds of treatment with only temporary partial relief. After seven weeks I was reduced in weight 35 pounds, had no strength or appetite, and was growing weaker every day. In this condition I began Swift's Specific, and in three days began to improve, and in three weeks I was free from disease and up attending to my regular business. My appetite returned and I rapidly gained my flesh. I have waited this long to be certain that my cure was permanent.

WHAT A CENT WILL BUY.

The Meager Expenditure Possible With a Solitary Copper.

The man who has only a cent is very little better off than the man who is without a cent. Hardly anything of value to life can be purchased for a cent, and indeed the familiar copper coin was not inaptly described by a Washington square tramp as "a coin of exceptional aggravatingness." The wandering gentleman had seen better days, and, although there are doubtless times when his mouth can equal his nose in disreputable demeanor, the polite overtures and the cigar of the newspaper man were received with sentences of appreciation betraying a past which included education.

"As I take it," said he, "a cent is just the amount of money the street-car people swindle out of every passenger—and cents in piles are not to be despised,—or else you can buy an evening paper with a murder in it, that's about all. Now, as I don't ride in cars, and I don't care much about the new police regulations which I read in the paper, I always wait until I get another cent, because with two cents I can get a dip of rum. It's bad liquor, but don't it tickle your throat?" and the wandering gentleman chewed for a while on his tongue.

"A cent is the meanest coin on earth," he continued with vehemence "Old ladies would always give you a nickel, and so would benevolent old gentlemen, only the cents come handiest—of course you say 'thank you, sir,' and 'God bless you, mum,' but you feel inclined to chuck it back, anyhow. What can you get for it? Nothing; not even enough bread to kill hunger for a while—thank you, sir," and the tramp slouched away with an elecemosynary dime, down Seventh street, slumwards, and disappeared through the portals of the "Blazing Rag."

Close to that unsavory hostelrie there are several little stores scalled "general shops," where the very poor buy nearly all their necessities. The newspaper man entered one of the stores, and, finding an old acquaintance of former stories behind the counter, was soon in discussion on the cent and what can be obtained for that coin.

"I guess a good many of my customers are cent ones," said the store-keeper, a brawny Irishman, "but it's precious little that they get. You can buy this roll," showing a very diminutive loaf, "but there ain't more than four bites in it; or you can take your choice of crackers, two of them, or four of those, or one of them, but they'd be no use to a hungry man. You can buy a head of cabbage for a cent, but cabbage ain't no use without a fire to cook it, unless you're a goat or a rabbit. Then you can get a bit of soap, brown, coarse stuff, which makes everything smell what it washes, or a cent's worth of snuff, or tobacco, or a skein of thread, or two needles, or one pickle, or one onion, or apple, or five sticks of wood, enough to start a fire, or a short tallow candle, or a paper of pins, or two ounces of flour, or a little vinegar, or some coal oil. The oil is about the best thing you can get, as it is enough to keep a lamp burning at night. Then you can buy two envelopes or two sheets of writing paper, a box of matches, six gum drops, a monkey on a stick, a shoe-lace, a small package of pepper, starch, or a good lump of salt, or a large handful of soda, and that's about the list.

"It's the five-cent piece that's the coin of the poor of this country, not the cent. In England a penny can buy a good meal. There are soup kitchens all over London where you can get a bowl of thick pea broth or stewed eels for one copper, or you can buy a large piece of fried fish, or a bag of fried potatoes, or half a pint of beer or porter, or half a pound or more of bread, or a rasher of bacon, or a sheep's tongue, or a big plate of Irish stew, made of potatoes and Australian mutton, or a thick slice of plum pudding, or a plateful of peas pudding. You can quite satisfy your hunger for a penny in London, just as you can for a five-cent piece here, but you can't do it for a cent, and I hope you will never have to try."

A young woman entered the store, dirty and unkempt, but good-looking, and purchased a cent's worth of snuff. "That's the former wife of the old blind beggar," said the storekeeper "The Press wrote all about the marriage three years ago. She's left him now, got divorced, she says, and now she's taken to snuff and a young man as mends umbrellas. It was all on account of the yellow dog."

"How do you mean?"

"Why, when the baby of the blind man was christened last winter, as you remember, 'cause you was present, Mrs. Flannigan, the mother-in-law, threw a flat-iron at the yellow dog and broke its skull, just because the poor animal felt deserted that evening and took to howling. The blind beggar valued that dog an awful lot, loved it, so to speak, and wouldn't believe but what his wife had egged her mother on to a killing of it and they never were friends again. The baby died and he didn't go to the funeral, but the fuss he made over the body of that yellow dog was trying. You see he and that dog had tramped lots of miles together and quite understood each other. He took the dog's carcass with him to a vacant lot, somewhere near Manyunk, and there he got a friend to dig a hole and drop the dead animal in it. He tramps up, they say, to the place, now and then, where the dog lies, and I heard as how more than once last summer he gathered big bunches of pansies in the park just to place on the spot. They are building over the lot now, and I should not be surprised if the old blind beggar has the remains dug up and put somewhere else. I guess he regrets he hasn't no family vault. Still, human nature goes out to a dog sometimes—even a yellow dog. No" (to a would-be customer), "we don't make no cent's worth of ham."—Philadelphia Press.

Near the mouth of the Sutro Tunnel in Nevada, there is a small lake, the water in which is kept continuously warm by the hot water which flows into it from the mines. Recently the mine superintendent sent to Florida for two alligators. When they arrived the temperature of the place was 12 degrees below zero and the alligators were barely alive. Upon being put into the warm lake, however, they revived and are now growing rapidly.

Perpendicular Real Estate.

Apropos of earth, they tell a good story of Judge Jackson. He went out to one of the new towns of the Far West, which is built on a side-hill. Real estate was booming and real estate speculators flocked around him. One of them conducted him to a lot about as desirable for a residence as a perpendicular wall, and said: "There's the place for you! Only $6,000! Ain't it fine?"

"Ah, but it's so steep in topography and price."

"That's just it," said the real estate man. "You see that lot below it? Well, the man who owns it will have to have dirt to fill it up, and he'll give you $5,000 for the earth graded from your lot."

The next day another real estate man said: "I'll show you a piece of property. There's a fortune in it. Look there!" and he pointed toward the lot below the side-hill that the other speculator had offered him.

"Yes, but look at that lot above it," urged Judge Jackson.

"That's just it," replied the speculator. "The man who owns it will give you $5,000 for a place to dump the dirt when he grades down his lot."

The Judge did not buy any perpendicular real estate.—Cleveland Leader.

An honest farmer was invited to attend a party at the village doctor's one evening, where there was music both vocal and instrumental. On the following morning he met one of the guests who said: "Well, farmer, how did you enjoy yourself last night? Were not the quartets excellent?" "Why, really, sir, I cannot say," said he, "for I didn't taste them; but the pork chops were the finest I ever ate. —Good Cheer.

Our New York Letter.

At no time in the past two years has there been less confidence among business men than now. The slight improvement in the iron trade and the talk of a coming boom in real estate, are offset by shrinkage of retail trade and the failure of the effort here to force railroad shares steadily upward without dangerous reaction. The manager of several newspaper enterprises in the larger cities recently ordered that no dividends be declared for the ensuing year, on the ground that a sinking fund would be necessary with which to weather coming financial gales that he is confident will afflict the country. Fully convinced of the correctness of his views, this prosperous manager has even withdrawn his own funds from bank and has them safely locked up in deposit vaults, where, of course, they can draw no interest.

It is an open secret that the slightest rumors that arise on Wall street endanger the credit and existence of the strongest houses. To such a degree has the alarm extended, it has become a sort of code of honor among the reportorial fraternity to interview the principals of firms whose credit is thus attacked, before newspaper publication of them is decided upon. No keener spirits than these financial writers are to be found in any kind of business, and their judgment and scent of coming danger is seldom at fault.

The banks are doing less business than usual, but on a safer basis. For what has been heretofore deemed first class paper they now demand ten per cent, unless the cleanest collateral accompanies the request. Three-name notes are of no more use than those of an individual. This decision must strengthen the banks, avert disaster and ultimately tend toward a resumed confidence—but it is an embargo on all new enterprise for the time being, for schemes that will warrant the hiring of money at ten per cent interest are few and far between.

The New York city banks held at the close of the week ending Feb. 7th, about fifty-seven millions of dollars reserve above the amount required by act of Congress to protect their issue, being an increase of four millions for that week. Up to last May, this reserve had not reached the amount of twenty-four millions, but this amount was largely instrumental in precipitating the brief panic that then ensued. This reserve has now doubled, and the pressure continues. If the money market is not relieved there must be heavier failures to come than those of 1884, shares and bonds will inundate the exchanges, and further shrinkage of values ensue that must paralyze business.

The low price of grain is another factor of disturbance. The grain raisers are powerless; the grain carriers take all the profit. With wheat selling at eighty-three cents and corn at forty cents in Chicago, the great farms at the west cannot be run at a profit, and the owners who have borrowed large sums at the current rate of ten per cent, in the hope of selling their wheat at a dollar and corn above sixty cents, see nothing ahead but foreclosure to pay the mortgages that the thrifty east has secured for loans. With corn sufficiently cheap to be used as fuel, a largely diminished acreage will necessarily result. The farmer with the longest purse will survive, but the "short-waisted" tiller of the soil must change his crops or his occupation, and perhaps give up the house he has ambitiously built in better times, to some more lucky tenant who has saved for a rainy day.

Proportionately, the bank reserves in Boston and Philadelphia are in as bad a condition as are those of New York for any active business enterprise. A round hundred millions of dollars withdrawn from circulation above the requirements of government, in these three cities, would but a few years since have precipitated a panic without precedent in America. G.

More Dynamite.

Great excitement prevailed in Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn., last week, over threatening letters received by millers and leading business houses, telling them that by Saturday their places would be blown up by dynamite. The principal mill threatened was the one known as the "Pittsbury." Every morning the Pittsbury's officials received the same word that on or by the 14th, their largest mill would be laid in ruins. On account of the letters, a number of men quit the mill. A strong guard of trusted men was posted at every building. The buildings were not blown up on the date mentioned. The British consul at St. Paul has also been threatened, and advised that a party of Chicago dynamiters were scattered through that city and Minneapolis, and their presence would soon be felt. The origin of the matter is attributed to local publications violently denouncing the works of the dynamiters in England.

The police and other witnesses for the crown in the case of James G. Cunningham, the alleged dynamiter charged with high treason felony in causing the recent explosion in the tower of London, have received letters threatening them with death if they persist in giving damaging testimony against the prisoner.

The members of the Union League of New York city gave a reception to Hon. Wm. M. Evarts in honor of his election as United States senator. The list of prominent persons present, indicates the great satisfaction felt in New York as in the country at the judicious choice of the legislature of the Empire state. The occasion was well worthy of the reputation of the famous club which never does anything by halves. Jacob Wendell, Esq., a native of this city, is one of the vice presidens of the organization.

—A little Illinois boy went to Sunday school for the first time the other Sunday. On his return his mother asked him what the text was. He instantly replied, "Hold a grater to Solomon's ear." Investigation proved it to be, "Behold, a greater than Solomon is here."

Nobody Who Uses Sulphur Bitters

Who uses Sulphur Bitters can remain long unwell. The foreman of the Shapleigh Machine and Screw Works, Boston, Mass., L. B. SMITH, says: Ever since birth I have been troubled with Salt Rheum; my body was covered with scales and patches, and when I bent my fingers the flesh would crack open and bleed. The itching and burning feeling almost drove me crazy. Your Sulphur Bitters has done me more good than anything I have ever used, and I think it is a great blood purifier, and I advise all so troubled to use Sulphur Bitters.

The most prominent people in New England. The wife of DEACON CARLETON, First Baptist Church, Winchester, Mass., says: My eldest son was troubled with Rheumatism so bad that for over three months he was unable to leave his bed; his knees and joints swelled so that he could not feed himself. The best physicians here failed to help him, and I tried Sarsaparillas and all manner of liniments without benefit. A gentleman told my husband to use Sulphur Bitters, as he thought it was an honest medicine. In three days from the first dose of Sulphur he was able to feed himself, which he had not done before for twelve weeks, and in two weeks he was able to return to his work.

Sulphur Bitters

Bitters, for I know it will do you good.

The Engineer of the Wakefield Rattan Works, says: I think your Sulphur Bitters are a most excellent medicine. I have used them in my family for some time, and now would not be without them in all cases of Biliousness, accompanied with those terrible sick headaches. It is the best medicine I ever saw. I have used many different kinds of medicine in my family, but none seem to take hold and do the good that your Sulphur Bitters have done. C. N. YOUNG.

The Postmaster, Winchester, Mass., says: Gentlemen,—I am personally acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Carleton, and was astonished at the remarkable effect of your Sulphur Bitters in curing their son; and its large sale is undoubtedly due to the fact that it is an honest medicine. And I do not think too much can be said in its praise. Yours truly, GEO. P. BROWN.

128 Doses One Dollar.

The Ex-Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, MAJOR GEO. S. MERRILL, says: For a reliable medicine use Sulphur Bitters. I believe it to be the best and purest medicine made.

SONS OF VETERANS BALL THIS EVENING.

The Sons of Veterans ball, which takes place at the skating rink this evening, bids fair to be the event of the season. Already enough tickets have been disposed of to ensure a large attendance. The concert by the Salem band, Ralph L. Reinewald leader, from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock, should prove a magnet to all lovers of good music. A few gallery tickets will be on sale at the rink, this evening, at thirty cents each. Reserved seats are still on sale at Goodrich's bookstore. The costumes have arrived, and all wishing, can procure them by calling on Mr. Hill, at store in Franklin block.

ANOTHER "DEMOCRATIC REFORM."

Mr. Editor: Your remarks this (Monday) morning concerning the discovery by the Times of "another of the republican abuses whereby men were allowed to rob the city" through the getting of thirty or forty cents per hour for shovelling snow from reservoir traps, they holding themselves in reading to "stand all calls" for that work day or night, lead me to suggest that the Times is quite keen at the discovery of mare's nests, as for instance:

We were pleased to notice last evening that the street lamps were kept burning during the evening until the usual time for extinguishing them. It has never been customary for the lamplighters to light the lamps on their routes on evenings which are set down by the almanac for moonshine. It sometimes happens that on some of these evenings the light of the moon is obscured by storm clouds, and many of our streets are shrouded with Egyptian darkness. At such times artificial light is much more needed than if pleasant, when the moon does not shine. There are also times when the moon rises and sets early or late, as the case may be, when a lamp on the street corner would be like an oasis in the desert to a person stubbing his toe on a curbstone, or falling across some one's front gate, which had been left open by careless children. The present administration, after having considered all these circumstances, ordered the lights kept burning dark nights, whether the moon is advertised to shine or not. On last evening, for instance, (which it if had not rained would have been bright moonlight,) street lamps were warmly welcomed by all who had occasion to be out. The board of aldermen have the thanks of all citizens for instituting this long-needed (democratic) reform.

The above I clipped from the Times some weeks ago, intending, as a republican ex-alderman, to answer it, and show that no great glory need be claimed by the "democratic reform" government over previous republican ones, at least in so far as "this long needed (democratic) reform" is involved.

In May, 1874, when the late Hon. Frank W. Miller was mayor, it was voted by the board of mayor and aldermen "that the lamplighters be directed to light the street lights every stormy and dark night;" and in July, 1880, when Col. Sise was mayor, it was ordered by the board "that hereafter the street lights shall be lighted every evening at sunset, unless the moon is above the horizon at the time or shall rise within one hour thereafter," and also on evenings when the moon should set before ten o'clock P. M. These orders were carried out during Mayor Sise's incumbency; if they were neglected under Mayor Treat, their observance by the present board is merely a revival, not a creation.

Mr. J. A. Merrill, secretary of the state temperance union, will lecture in Greenland, Hampton and Rye, this week.

Mr. John Reagan fell overboard at the Concord railroad wharf last Monday, but was extricated with some difficulty. It is no joke to be soused these cold days.

The sale of reserved seats for "Nobody's Claim," to be presented at Music hall Saturday evening, Feb. 21st, commences Thursday at Goodrich's bookstore. Prices, 50 and 35 cents.

Finely wrought curbings of granite for Hon. E. H. Winchester's lot in the cemetery are being made by Mr. Silas Philbrick at his stone and marble yard on Water street.

The Marion will make her trial trip on Wednesday, the 18th inst., for an interval of six hours. The red flag, on Saturday last, was flying at the main, the signal for taking on board powder.

The North parish Sunday school held a concert at the chapel on Middle street, on Sunday evening last, which was largely attended. These concerts will be given once each month, and will be designated as the "Sunday school's evening."

"The German Volunteer" is to be given at City hall, Dover, Feb. 24th and 27th, inclusive, for the benefit of G. W. Sawyer Post, G. A. R., of that city. A large number of persons from this city will be in attendance.

The eagle with a bell attached to his neck was seen on a cake of ice in the river on the 16th inst., feeding on frozen fish. His wings appeared to be shattered, as if having been shot. It would seem that the veteran should be unmolested.

On Sunday afternoon, the 15th inst., people living on Fleet street discovered a strong odor of gas escaping into their cellars. The agent was notified, and early on Monday morning workmen commenced digging for the leak on the corner of Congress and Fleet streets, where they found a four-inch pipe leaking badly.

A tremendous gust of wind, Monday evening, struck an individual weighing gross 130 pounds, carrying him off a yard or two from the corner of Market and Deer streets. The last seen of a seven and an eighth hat it was going toward the Portsmouth Machine Co.'s works. It was a new hat, and if the finder—if not his size—will return it to this office, he will greatly oblige the loser.

A despatch of the 15th inst. from Washington says: "A board of officers, consisting of Naval Constructors George R. Boush and Robert W. NAVAL AFFAIRS.

Paymaster Stephen Rand is detached from the torpedo station at Newport, R. I., and ordered to settle accounts and then wait orders.

The orders of Lieutenant William H. Reeder have been so far modified that on being relieved from the command of the Despatch, he will report to the chief of the bureau of navigation for duty.

The secretary of the navy has called the attention of each officer who signed the petition to Congress against the proposed vote of thanks to the officers of the Greely relief expedition, to the regulations of the navy which forbid officers attempting to influence legislation.

Rear Admiral Jouett, in a general order dated New Orleans, Feb. 5th, calls the attention of those under his command to General Order 307 of the navy department, dated July 5th, 1883, viz.: "Naval officers attached to cruising war vessels, especially commanding officers, are expected to leave their families at their usual or fixed places of abode, and not to attempt to transfer them to more convenient visiting points. Officers disregarding this injunction will be liable to be relieved from duty."

Cheney of Boston, who "expressed" his readiness to make such a contribution as soon as he learned that it was desired. Mr. Cheney is a native of New Hampshire.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Is designed to meet the wants of a large portion of our people who are either too poor to employ a physician, or are too far removed to easily call one, and a still larger class who are not sick enough to require medical advice, and yet are out of sorts and need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood, and oil up the machinery of their bodies so it will do its duty willingly. No other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy.

My friend, you need not take our word. Ask your neighbor, who has just taken one bottle. He will tell you that "It's the best dollar I ever invested."

LEBANON N. H., Feb. 19, 1879.
MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Dear Sirs—Although greatly prejudiced against patent medicines in general, I was induced, from the excellent reports I had heard of your Sarsaparilla, to try a bottle, last December, for dyspepsia and general prostration, and I have received very gratifying results from its use. I am now using the second bottle, and consider it a very valuable remedy for indigestion and its attendant troubles.
Yours truly,
F. C. CHURCHILL,
(Firm of Carter & Churchill.)

Spreading the Gospel in Arkansas.

A methodist preacher in one of the mountain districts of Arkansas one day happened upon a family to whom the light of the Gospel had come only through a glass darkly, and the biblical knowledge of the household was very limited. He at once set about posting the members by reading to them from the Bible. He turned to the story of the Prodigal Son, and was reading to a very attentive audience, until he came to that portion narrating the killing of the fatted calf.

"What's that, mister—what's that?" interrupted the mother excitedly. "Did yer say the old man killed a fat calf fur that boy of his'n?"

"That's exactly what the book says sister."

"Well, yer kin just shet hit up. I don't wanter h'ar sich stuff as thet."

"Why, my Christian friend, that is the Gospel, and there can be nothing wrong in that."

"Yes, thar is, too. I hain't so very knowledgious on ter Scripture, but I knows enough 'bout feedin' children to know that hits the ripsortiest kind o' 'stravagance ter kill a fat calf jis' for one boy, an' I don't want no more sich doctern ez thet norated ter my famerly an' I reckon you'd better be gittin' along down the road, whar people hain't ekernomical like we un's. Good-day, mister. Zeke, go out an' unloose the dog.—Merchant Traveler.

"Come on," called a bridesmaid to a bride who was standing before a mirror touching and retouching, "they're waiting for you." "All right," responded the maiden without moving. "Don't say 'all right' but come on. What do you want to see yourself for, anyhow? You look beautiful." "Oh, yes, I know that; brides always do." "Well, then, what are you standing before the glass for when everything is waiting?" "Because, dear," she answered with provoking patience, "it is well for one to indulge in some reflection before one gets married, you know." The guests at the wedding wondered what made that particular bridesmaid look so pale.

The use of Iodoform or mercurials in the treatment of catarrh—whether in the form of suppositories or ointments—should be avoided, as they are both injurious and dangerous. Iodoform is easily detected by its offensive odor. The only reliable catarrh remedy on the market to-day is Ely's Cream Balm, being free from all poisonous drugs. It has cured thousands of acute and chronic cases, where all other remedies have failed. A particle is applied into each nostril; no pain; agreeable to use. Price fifty cents of druggists.

Don't Look Like a Wreck.

"When a man is going down hill everybody is ready to give him a kick." Yes, that is so. It is sad, but natural. Why, many a man and woman, seeking employment, would have got it if their hair hadn't been so thin and gray. One bottle of Parker's Hair Balsam is then the best investment. It stops falling hair, promotes new growth and restores color. Clean, highly perfumed, not a dye. A great improvement over any similar preparation, and sold at the low price of 50c.

ON THE ENGINE.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River train between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was due partly to irregular habits of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes my head would snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fist. My breath was very offensive, a dull pain occured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as though it were a great raw and sore surface, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the constant ar through on accute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next spring when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this critical time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pain left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good, and it drove every acne, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe DR. FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night a while ago, John Layton, an engineer who runs the main line best train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, Jonny," I said, "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, lifted his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Dan," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, Rondout, N. Y.," said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office—everywhere.

Embarrassing.

"I intended to tell Jane to bring a fresh bucket of water," said the wife of Professor Nottlehead, looking up from her sewing."

"You doubtless mean a bucket of fresh water," rejoined her husband. "I wish you would pay some little attention to rhetoric. Your mistakes are embarrassing."

A few moments later the professor said:

"My dear, that picture would show to better advantage if you were to hang it over the clock."

"Ah," she replied, "you doubtless mean if I were to hang it above the clock. If I were to hang it over the clock, we couldn't tell what time it is. I wish you would pay some little attention to rhetoric. Your mistakes are embarrassing."—Arkansaw Traveler.

A Good Practice.

Your system is now more susceptible to the benefit of a reliable medicine than at any other season. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The center of the population of the United States has for a century moved westward with remarkable regularity, beginning at a point on the east shore of Maryland, and reaching one ten miles west of Cincinnati. It is calculated, however, that progress in that direction is stopped, in consequence of the rapid growth of many Atlantic coast cities, and the advancement of some of the southern states.

Not a Syrup.

Wetherell's Sarsaparilla is no weak syrup with a "Quaker" name attached; nor a "Rum Tonic," but a concentrated extract of the pure vegetable plants of which it is composed. Each bottle contains more medicine for $1.00 than that of any other preparation. Sold by druggists.

A Berlin despatch says the notice issued by the French war officials declaring their right and intention to search vessels in the Chinese seas for contraband of war has put a stop to the sailing from Hamburg and other German ports of vessels loaded with munitions for China. All orders are now transferred to London and Liverpool, where vessel owners are ready to take risks.

Breaking Up.

On every hand we see evidence that winter is breaking up, and will soon have to yield to the advancing spring. It is a most important question amongst scientific men what causes the general feeling of debility and lassitude so prevalent in this region. While some regard it as the result of confinement and inaction, others suppose it to be caused by the decay of vegetable and animal debris during the winter. What is especially needed at this time, however, is something to overcome these influences. It is too late to talk about the causes; what is the cure? Thousands of persons all over the country who have given Kidney-Wort a faithful trial are ready to testify that no other remedy is equal to it for cleansing the system, purifying the blood, regulating the bowels, and curing all kidney and liver diseases. It is in fact the king of all spring medicines.

A bloody affray is reported to have occurred at a dance in Indian territory, Friday night, Feb. 6th, Ned Bounds gave a dance at his home in the Chickasaw nation, at which whiskey flowed freely, and nearly everybody got drunk. Two men engaged in a fight. The friends of both interfered, and the fight then became general. E. F. Craig and several strangers were killed outright, and a number of others were wounded.

Physic is necessary at times for biliousness, costiveness, etc. Use Dr. Arnold's Bilious Pills. 25c.

Charles Chadwick, a mule spinner of Salmon Falls, was found dead in his bed on the 15th inst. It is claimed that he was the inventor of several improvements in mule spinning, but was defrauded by capitalists whom he asked to back him.

Delicate Ladies!

Who have that tired and all-gone feeling, and don't like to be disturbed, will continue to be troubled with this complaint until they renew their impure blood. Sulphur Bitters will cause new and rich blood to course through every artery and vein in the human system. See another column.

NOW USE WETHERELL'S SARSAPARILLA WITH IODIDE POTASSIUM

It is a medicine that will build up the system, cure Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Scrofula, and all humors of the body. The remarkable success of this medicine at home gives abundant proof that it is far superior to any other Remedy.

It Gives Me an Appetite.

L. L. LAMPREY, Exeter, N. H., says: "Wetherell's Sarsaparilla gives me a good appetite. I felt much improved before using half a bottle."

The Best Blood Purifier.

Myself and son have taken three bottles of Wetherell's Sarsaparilla and Iodide Potassium, and consider it one of the best blood purifiers and spring medicines I have ever used, and cheerfully recommend it to all who need such remedies. CHAS. HALEY, Exeter, N.H.

I was attacked last winter with inflammatory rheumatism of severe type—my first serious illness since 1876. I had various kinds of treatment with only temporary partial relief. After seven weeks I was reduced in weight 35 pounds, had no strength or appetite, and was growing weaker every day. In this condition I began Swift's Specific, and in three days began to improve, and in three weeks I was free from disease and up action ling to my regular business. The London Explosion Plot of 1605.

The infamous "Gunpowder Plot," with which the name of Guy Fawkes is associated, will be at once suggested to every mind by the recent explosion in the city of London. The salient features of that event are as follows: Upon the accession of James I., contrary to the expectation of the Romanists the several penal laws of Elizabeth against those of that faith were again put into execution. The result was a plot hatched by Robert Catesby, and abetted by a number of other plotters and conspirators, to blow up with gunpowder the King, Lords and Commons assembled in Parliament. Guy Fawkes, a soldier of fortune, though of gentle birth, was admitted to the plot, and, with the others, took an oath of secrecy and participated in the sacrament administered by a Jesuit priest. At first a house adjoining the Parliament House was taken, and an underground passage partly completed. But this was subsequently relinquished for a cellar directly under the House of Lords, which was engaged by Fawkes, who, being little known, passed for a servant.

All was prepared by May, 1605. The cellar was filled with barrels of powder, carefully concealed, and disposed in such a fashion as to excite no suspicion. It was necessary to await the meeting of Parliament, which was to take place November 5. Meanwhile a number of wealthy and influential persons had been admitted to the scheme, and had taken the oath. It was their not unnatural desire to warn and save their friends in the two houses, who were members of the same faith. The day before the opening, Lord Monteagle, a prominent Roman Catholic Peer, received an anonymous and mysterious caution against attending the meeting. The matter was laid before the King, and a search held at midnight of November 4 by a magistrate revealed Fawkes just stepping out of the door. He did not conceal his purpose, but, though put to torture, refused to disclose the names of his confederates. A meeting of the conspirators was convened, and in the hue and cry that followed all were either killed or taken. These captured, eight in number, including Fawkes, were, after trial, drawn, hanged and quartered in January, 1606.

Fawkes is described by Jesuit evidence as a man "of great piety, of exemplary temperance, of mild and cheerful demeanor, an enemy of broils and disputes and a faithful friend." November 5, set apart as a day of thanksgiving, has been marked by ceremonies recalling in one way or another the happy escape, which is also commemorated in the familiar jingle:

Oh please to remember
The Fifth of November,
The day of the Gunpowder Plot.

George D. Prentice.

There is a sort of general idea that Prentice was "a bad man with a gun," a duelist, and all that sort of thing. Nothing could be more erroneous. The fact is he never fought a duel, but was sometimes, from the nature of his business, forced to personal and sudden rencounters. He was frequently challenged, but always made fun of messages. Once he wrote his challenger that it only took one fool to send a challenge, while it took two to fight, and he didn't wish to be classed in the category. On another occasion he accepted the challenge, and having the choice of weapons, insisted that each man should be armed with a straw and a cask of whisky, and that each should suck with his straw from his own cask until one fell, and that one should be considered vanquished and the other's honor satisfied.

Prentice was an exceedingly candid man, as the following anecdotes will show: Once Will S. Hays, the famous song-writer in conversation with him said: "I suppose, Mr. Prentice, you have seen my last song?" With a sly and quizzical look at the minstrel, he replied: "Well, I hope so Bill."

Coming out of a public building one day, where there were double doors which swung in and out, a young man, who was coming in, pushed against the left-hand side of the door in order to enter, while Mr. Prentice was pushing against the other side of the door, trying to make his exit. The result was a ridiculously awkward halt. Finally, when the two had managed to get the door open, Mr. Prentice said to the stranger: "My young friend, in making your way through the world, if you will only keep to the right you will never run against anybody but a fool, and you needn't apologize to him."

Somebody stole the unabridged dictionary once from the editorial room of the Journal, and Mr. Prentice, having occasion to use that valuable tome, discovered the loss. Forthwith he ordered that another copy of the book be purchased at once. "For," said he, "no one but a shameless egotist would attempt to edit a newspaper without a dictionary."

Mr. Prentice's hat was one of his eccentricities. He always had it more than half full of bits of paper not larger than a postal stamp, on each of which he had written a word or two, in the way of memoranda. Besides, he carried his pocket-knife, pencil, scissors, spectacles and portemonnaie in it, and sometimes, in an absent-minded way, he would put a well-masticated chew of tobacco into it instead of throwing the cud away.

Many persons from abroad used to call on Mr. Prentice when they were in Louisville, as though he was one of the curiosities of the city, or just for the purpose of being able to say that they had talked with such a great man, and this was peculiarly annoying to him, as he was inclined to be retiring and really never thought of comprehending his own fame. On one occasion an old friend called on the editor, and brought with him a callow young man from some undefined locality in the rural districts. This youth was particularly curious, and actually asked Mr. Prentice to say something funny. The ludicrous remark was smoothed over as quickly as possible by the gentleman who brought the young man in, and shortly thereafter some refreshments were ordered to be brought up to the sanctum. Mr. Prentice had chosen a mint-julep, and when it came he held it up and asked the gentleman which of that drink was like his young friend? Of course the young man, feeling flattered by the attention, was eager to know, and begged for the answer to the conundrum. Finally, turning to the gentleman, Mr. Prentice said with a pleasant smile, "This is a greenhorn!"—Will L. Visscher, in Denver Opinion.

Literary Journey-Work.

From an article on Oliver Wendell Holmes, by Edmund C. Stedman, in the February Century, we quote the following: "I have laid stress upon the need of a market to promote literary activity, but it is worth while to note how far. At certain times and in special cases, too ready a sale tends to lower the grade of ideal work. This may even now be observed. On the one hand, new writers are certainly brought out by the competition between our thriving publishers of books and periodicals; on the other, those who prove themselves capable, and are found available by the purveyors, are drawn into a system of over-methodical production at stated intervals. The stint is furnished regularly; each year or half-year the novel is thrown off, cleverly adapted to the popular taste. Ideal effort is deadened; the natural bent of a poetic mind is subordinated to labor that is best paid. The hope, patience, a piration that should produce a masterpiece are cast aside. If there be a general advance it is monotonous, and at the expense of individual genius. My deduction is that matter supplied regularly for a persistent market, though of a high order of journey-work, is not improperly designated by that name."

Six million of dollars' worth of silver is used in this country every year for manufacturing and decorative purposes.

REMEDIES Cuticura THE GREAT SKIN CURES

Mrs. Smith's Case, and what the Rev. Mr. McKinstry has to say about it.

TO THE PUBLIC: I have been a fearful sufferer for fifteen years, most of the time with what has been called Eczema or Salt Rheum, Psoriasis and Lepra, and the like, and have always been told that there was no cure for me, and have been so discouraged that I had no ambition to live. I have been so badly afflicted sometimes that there was not the smallest spot from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet that was not diseased and as red as crimson. It would commence in small white specks, which had a silvery appearance, but were not deep, but if I attempted to heal them, or soon after their first appearance, they would burn and run to gether until there was a complete dry, red scale, which would become so inflamed as to crack and look fiery and angry, and the burning sensation would be almost intolerable.

I was at time so lame that I could scarcely get about, and could not dress myself without assistance. I had tried many remedies, and had paid $ 50 in a single instance to a physician, but have ever obtained only temporary relief. Although helped for a time, I was on a regular again to be as badly troubled as ever, and during the winter of 1881 and 82 I suffered so much as to be entirely discouraged. Last June, however, I was advised by Elder and Mrs. L. C. McKinstry, who are well known in these parts, to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES; and I felt somehow a little courage, from their favorable opinion of them, to try their virtues. About the second week of July last I commenced taking the remedies, and within six weeks I began to see a permanent improvement, until now (Oct 1) I am about as good as new, and my flesh is as fresh as a child.

MRS. BENJ. SMITH.

I certify that the above statement of my wife is correct, and I join with her in expressing my gratitude for the great benefit he has received.

Savings Bank Investments.

The Concord correspondent of the Boston Post, who, it is generally understood, is also the editor of the People and Patriot, has been giving to the former paper his views upon the character of the investments made by the savings banks of this state in western farm mortgages.

There is no doubt of the fact that with the increase of capital and the decrease of the rate of interest, the alike safe and remunerative investment of savings bank deposits is a problem which calls for the very highest financial sagacity, and oftetimes puzzles the most experienced and skilful economist.

The editor of the P. & P., in commending the creation of his own pen, claims to take "a very sensible view of the situation" when he asserts that the capital deposited in savings banks, aggregating over forty-five millions of dollars, ought to be so invested as to promote the material prosperity of the state, etc. To this, as a general proposition, there can be no objection, but the fact remains that despite all legislative enactments, capital is a law unto itself. It adjusts itself to the condition of demand, goes where it finds a market, is employed where it is wanted and where a remunerative sum will be returned for its use,—in fine, it will be employed not where the theorists suggest, but where the opportunity offers.

To keep this sum within our borders would so enhance the prices of local securities and reduce the rates of interest (a result which it is by no means sure would prove beneficial to local borrowers,) that no savings bank could afford to pay its expenses of maintaining its organization, its state tax, and reserve a proper sum for depreciation or loss. In other words, savings banks, like other aggregated capital, must seek a market for their money.

Now, there are two kinds of investments besides real estate (which of course is not profitable for banks to hold) and these are, stocks in corporations, where the holder becomes a debtor, taking all the risks; or a debt where the capitalist becomes the creditor. In fact, banks are made up in their assumed wealth of promises to pay, secured by the integrity of the promisers, and sometimes by a lien upon their property.

The loans on western farm mortgages are made after careful examination by shrewd men, commonly from the east, who know the value of land and the amount of loan it will bear. The loans held by the savings banks in this state are generally small in denomination, averaging, the commissioners inform us, perhaps six hundred dollars, worth on the agent's representation, at least twice as much as the loan.

The business of making western farm loans has become as much a certain, carefully conducted system of employment as are the transactions of a well conducted bank or railway. An emigrant or new settler comes to Dakota for example, and takes 160 acres of land ready for cultivation. He does not have to clear the primeval forest and find a land abounding in ledges and boulders, with an unyielding soil, as do our savings bank depositors of New Hampshire if they attempt to clear a piece of land in their own region, but his Dakota land is ready for the plough, it is easy of cultivation, requiring no dressing and but little labor to ensure a crop, while the local negotiator of the mortgage knows just the amount the new comer can afford to hire upon his land for the purpose of erecting buildings, etc. We at the east have no more idea of the opportunities of the new landholder of the west than we have of the almost boundless region we have never seen. It is rich in land, with labor ready to till it, but it needs capital. The soil can afford to pay a fair interest on small loans for a few years, and it is this kind of landed security which the western farm loan offers to the eastern capitalist. To be sure, if every depositor in a savings bank wanted his or her money at the same moment, it would take some time to raise the cash on these securities. So it would upon local mortgages, or similar investments made in our own state. It is well to discuss these matters, but to suppose that capital will buy "deserted New Hampshire farms" with no prospect save a permanent investment therein, when it can find interest-paying loans at a distance, is to ignore the fact that capital will ever find its way to the best market; and as long as savings bank trustees are alive to the wants of their depositors, they must seek constantly new outlets for their money. This has been the rule ever since New England, the older part of the country, obtained the start in wealth, and became to a great extent the creditor part of the country. So far the farm loans have proved safe, and remunerative. Not as much can be said concerning many of the savings bank mortgages nearer home.

A despatch from Jacksonville, Fla., says the New Hampshire club spent two days last week sight-seeing on the St. John's river and adjacent country, returned to Jacksonville on Saturday night, and spent Sunday at St. Augustine. They left by special train for New Orleans on Sunday afternoon. The party is well and in good spirits. The board of trade of Jacksonville appointed a committee to entertain the club.

Eight cases of dynamite have been stolen from the magazine of the American Dynamite company at Bay Chester, West Chester county, N. Y., and every effort is being made to locate it and apprehend the thieves. As dynamite is not a marketable product, the thieves are believed to be connected with socialistic or other organizations of dynamiters.

Dennis Noonan was found dead at East Taenton, Mass., Sunday afternoon. His death was caused by exposure.

By the upsetting of a kerosene lamp, Sunday evening, Mrs. Thomas Burns of Hartford, Conn., was probably fatally burned.

Jethro Bodwell, charged with blackmail, was held at Lawrence, Mass., Monday, in $500 for the May term of the superior court.

Capt. Phelan, who was murderously assaulted in O'Donovan Rossa's office by Dick Short, left New York last Sunday night with his wife for his home in Kansas City. He said he was tired waiting for justice in New York.

Six inches of snow fell in Washington on Saturday last.

The gale and snowstorm of Monday and Monday night was very severe throughout New England and New York, and as far south as the Jersey coast. Many shipwrecks occurred, and railroad traffic was much delayed in Maine and New Hampshire.

Fortunes as Prizes Won and Paid.

For account of Thomas M. Thornton, of Shelbyville, Ill., there has been collected $75,000 for the first capital prize in the January Drawing of The Louisiana State Lottery. Daniel Shutt of Chicago, a visitor at the Exposition, as the winner of one-fifth of the second capital prize of $25,000 in the same drawing, which also received in an equal prize collected for account of winner by W. Rolling, of the State National Bank, of New Orleans. The winning parties have all been paid in full, and should be very happy about their good fortune.—New Orleans Pic yune, Jan. 18

It is now said that the reason why Mr. Randall desires an extra session after all the talk to the contrary, is that with the present speaker in ill health, he—Samuel—can be chosen speaker. The entire legislation of the country must be postponed to gratify the selfish ambition of this Mr. Randall, who holds the democratic party in the hollow of his hand.

Lawrence Barrett proposes to build a theatre in New York which shall be superior to all others in the great metropolis. One of the projects is to raise the price of admission. As the average theatre-goer in New York is to-day obliged to pay both the manager, and his partner the speculator, before he can secure a seat, we think it decidedly dramatic, this pose of Mr. Barrett's, ingeniously suggesting that the public should be made to pay more than at present, just as profits and prices of every article are being reduced. If Mr Barrett starts his enterprise with this mistake, he will land where abler managers and financiers than himself have in times past been stranded.

Nobody Who Uses Sulphur Bitters

Who uses Sulphur Bitters can remain long unwell. The foreman of the Shapleigh Machine and Screw Works, Boston, Mass., L. B. SMITH, says: Ever since birth I have been troubled with Salt Rheum; my body was covered with scales and patches, and when I bent my fingers the flesh would crack open and bleed. The itching and burning feeling almost drove me crazy. Your Sulphur Bitters has done me more good than anything I have ever used, and I think it is a great blood purifier, and I advise all troubled to use

Sulphur Bitters? The most prominent people in New England. The wife of DEACON CARLETON, First Baptist Church, Winchester, Mass., says: My eldest son was troubled with Rheumatism so bad that for over three months he was unable to leave his bed; his knees and joints swelled so that he could not feed himself. The best physicians here failed to help him, and I tried Sarsaparillas and all manner of liniments without benefit. A gentleman told my husband to use Sulphur Bitters, as he thought it was an honest medicine. In three days from the first dose of Sulphur

Sulphur Bitters, for I know it will do him good.

The Engineer of the Wakefield Rattan Works, says: I think your Sulphur Bitters are a most excellent medicine. I have used them in my family for some time, and now would not be without them in all cases of Biliousness, accompanied with those terrible sick headaches. It is the best medicine I ever saw. I have used many different kinds of medicines in my family, but none seem to take hold and do the good that your Sulphur Bitters have done.

he was able to feed himself, which he had not done before for twelve weeks, and in two weeks he was able to return to his work.

The Postmaster, Winchester, Mass., says: Gentlemen,—I am personally acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Carleton, and was astonished at the remarkable effect of your Sulphur Bitters in curing their son; and its large sale is undoubtedly due to the fact that it is an honest medicine. And I do not think too much can be said in its praise.

Yours truly, GEO. P. BROWN.

The Ex-Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, MAJOR GEO. S. MERRILL, says: For a reliable medicine use Sulphur Bitters. I believe it to be the best and purest medicine made.

POLICE COURT -- BATCHELDER J.

TUESDAY, Feb. 17th.

Joseph J. Morrison, for drunkenness, was ordered to Brentwood for ninety days, and to pay $6.90 costs.

Warren Woodbury, for drunkenness, was fined $3, costs $6.90, which he paid.

WM. D. FOSTER.

We record to-day the death in Provincetown, Mass., of William D. Foster, a native of this city. Mr. Foster learned the ship-carpenter's trade in Portsmouth with the late George Raynes, and when a young man went to Newburyport, where he was for some time in the employ of Washington Jackman & Co., shipbuilders, and also served four years in the custom house as inspector. He afterward took up his home in Provincetown, where he resided until his death; he was highly esteemed by the townspeople, and held several offices of trust, being trial justice at the time of his death. His last sickness was short and distressing; his remains will be brought to this city for interment.

AROUND HOME.

To-day being Ash Wednesday, the beginning of Lent, services will be held in St John's church at 10:30 o'clock this forenoon.

Several parties in this city drew prizes in an Odd Fellows' fair held at Great Falls last week, said prizes ranging from fifty cents to three dollars each.

Mr. Frank A. Cook may be called the champion boxer of the fish wharves; on Monday he put together sixty-three boxes, and could have done a few more. There is an average of fifty nails to each box, and six cents a box is the price for putting together.

Mr. Langdon M. Perkins had on exhibition in front of the post-office, Tuesday, a cake of ice two feet square and over nineteen inches thick, and so clear that the lettering on his business card, which was placed under the cake, could be distinctly read through the two feet of ice. This cake was cut on the old almshouse pond in Rye.

The contract for furnishing the ice for the Oceanic hotel on Star island has been awarded to Capt. Thomas Clarkson of Kittery Point; it will be carried out by the schooner Mary Willey, Capt. Williams, in tow of the tug Clara Batemen.

The saloon of Norman W. Lord, on Vaughan street, was broked into some time Monday night, and what change had been left in the money drawer (eight or ten dollars) taken therefrom. Entrance was effected through a window over the front door, which the robber was enabled to reach by climbing up on a sign, and then through a square of glass which he broke out. A young man who was suspected of being the guilty one was examined Tuesday morning by City Marshal Norton, but was discharged for want of evidence against him.

The managers of the Social Circle of the Universalist society have the reputation of getting up good entertainments where they invite their friends and the public to their festive occasions. The one advertised for this (Wednesday) evening will prove no exception to the rule. A bountiful supper; a musicale; the bestowal of an elaborately-embroidered silk quilt and knitted rug; sale of fancy and useful articles, etc., will give their guests an opportunity for quiet enjoyment, the profitable investment of a few dimes, and an inspection of a Fine-Art collection, antique trophies, furniture, and pictures.—In fact all will obtain their money's worth.

One of the regulars at Appledore kept an account of the numbers of games of whist he had played during his annual sojourns on the island. They numbered 3200 up to several years ago, just equally divided as to winning and losing the game. The best whist player, the man who played the best game of any visitor, was, we are informed, Martin V. B. Edgerly, a Boston insurance man who at one time ran as the democratic candidate for governor of New Hampshire. It will be remembered that though he held at that time a flush hand he lost the game

The Penny Post says that "From a point just above Boiling rock, on the Eliot side of the Long Reach, to Dover point, and from thence on the whole river surface to Exeter, Dover, Durham, Newmarket and South Berwick the ice presents an unbroken thoroughfare, not only to the pedestrian but to the traveller in teams. This condition of things has not been known for many years."

Hon. John S Treat has at his marble works on Vaughan street over 200 finished pieces of marble, some of which are as fine specimens of the art as one would wish to see.

A son of Mr. Charles Gray fell overboard at Four Tree island last Thursday, and was carried under the ice; his father at some risk and difficulty rescued him in a chilled and nearly unconscious condition.

Mrs. George L. Peavey of Lynn, Mass., who was severely injured at South Berwick, Me., in a railroad accident some time time ago, has settled her claim against the Eastern railroad, it is stated, for $3,200.

A Maine Central passenger car was totally destroyed by fire in the yard at Bangor, Me., last Friday morning.

The Concord railroad has adopted a new and quick method of coaling its locomotives. Short elevated tracks run from the coal shed to the road, and dump-cars of three tons' capacity, already fitted, are pushed to the tender and emptied. Coaling an engine thus requires only three minutes, where formerly it took twenty.

Little Rock & Fort Smith railroad shares have advanced in the market of late owing to the increased business from the new bridge at Little Rock, and the opening of a coal-carrying trade, which will give additional business to the line.

Mr. Andrew R. Webber, of York, has put in three hundred tons of ice to supply his former customers at York beach and harbor next summer. Mr. Webber takes his ice from Preble's pond, one of the purest bodies of water to be found anywhere.

Mr. Hiram P. Horn of York beach has been with his son, of Haverhill, Mass., on a trip to Lake Moosehead and vicinity. They shot two bears and caught a fine string of winter trout. They sent a few to Hon. E. C. Moody. One weighed five and one-half pounds.—Exchange.

This statement is a trifle indefinite, in that it does not state whether it was a few bears or a few trout that were presented to our friend, the Hon. Ed.; but there can hardly be a doubt that the "one" which weighed 5 1-2 lbs. was a trout and not a bear.

Work has commenced at the Wells corn factory. They have a large crew making cans, and the prospect is that they will pack more than last season. The company are to have beans raised at Wells and vicinity for this year's packing. The beans raised for the past fifteen years for packing, in the towns of Otisfield, Casco, Poland and Oxford, have proved a large-paying crop. Mr. Windsor W. Chute, of Otisfield, who furnishes the seed for the Wells factory, raised sixty-five bushels from one-half acre planted last season, receiving $130 for the same at the factory.—Biddeford Times.

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK CORNER, ME., Feb. 14th.

On account of the precarious condition of his health Rev. Mr. Card, who has been preaching for some months at the First Christian church at York, has, we learn, offered his letter of resignation, to take effect about June first. We regret the announcement, as Mr. Card is very much liked by the church and by the people generally. He votes the republican ticket, but aside from that is noiseless politically.

And now comes into court Capt. Theodore Weare of Cape Neddick, who was last week reported deceased, and declares emphatically that he is not dead, and that the reader of such rumor told a falsehood. Your correspondent feels heartily glad that he did not have time to write an obituary for the captain to read—because I might have praised him too highly.

Mr. Charles H. Young, of the Cider Hill district, is about as busy a body as any one among us. He is now engaged in cutting and hauling the lumber from Mr. Daniel Harris' land to the sawmill and return, having the same sawed to dimensions preparatory to the building of a large new barn for Mr. Harris. All of which work, we learn, is done by contract. Charles is a hard-working and industrious young man, and is deserving of praise and patronage.

I could fill up a column of your paper with such items as I see in some papers, (and which I think are dry reading,) such as: Ernest Boston had the toothache the other day;—Everett Freeman had a little sore on his face;—Hannah Cook has gone a visiting;—our cat caught a mouse;—and a lot more such stuff, which is no good to anybody. P.

Saved by Her Compartments.

A despatch of the 16th from London says: "The Belgian steamer Western Land, from Antwerp for New York, has put in at Plymouth. She has been in collision with the steamer Holmhurst, which was sunk. Four of the Holmhurst's crew were drowned. The Western Land has two large holes in her bows and her fore compartments are full of water. The collision occurred eight miles off Eddystone light. A dense fog prevailed at the time. The Holmhurst was a collier of 299 tons burden. She was going dead slow, and was blowing her whistle. When the Western Land's whistle was heard the engines of the collier were promptly reversed, but it was too late; the Western Land struck on her port bow and cut her completely in two. The Western Land has on board 800 passengers. The collision happened at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The passengers and crew of the Western Land were panic stricken by the accident. It is expected that it will be necessary to place the Western Land in the dock to repair her."

A Lively Funeral.

At Paris, on Monday, the 16th inst., during the funeral procession of M. Jules Louis Joseph Vallès, the well known socialistic journalist of France, who died on Saturday, a large number of Frenchmen attacked the German socialists in the procession and destroyed the wreath of the latter. The attack was brought on by the fact that they carried a German flag conspicuously hoisted immediately in the wake of the coffin. This provoked the Frenchmen in the streets, who shouted: "Down with the German flag!" The opposition soon extended to the Frenchmen in the procession, and when the flag was not lowered in answer to these shouts, it was stoned. Then a free fight occurred between the supporters of the German banner and the Frenchmen. Forty thousand persons attended the funeral.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Is designed to meet the wants of a large portion of our people who are either too poor to employ a physician, or are too far removed to easily call one, and a still larger class who are not sick enough to require medical advice, and yet are out of sorts and need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood, and oil up the machinery of their bodies so it will do its duty willingly. No other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy.

My friend, you need not take our word. Ask your neighbor, who has just taken one bottle. He will tell you that "It's the best dollar I ever invested."

LEBANON N. H., Feb. 19, 1879.
MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO., Dear Sirs—Although greatly prejudiced against patent medicines in general, I was induced, from the excellent reports I had heard of your Sarsaparilla, to try a bottle, last December, for dyspepsia and general prostration, and I have received very gratifying results from its use. I am now using the second bottle, and consider it a very valuable remedy for indigestion and its attendant troubles.
Yours truly,
F. C. CHURCHILL,
(Firm of Carter & Churchill.)

☞ A gentleman who has been suffering from the Debility and Languor peculiar to this season, says: "Hood's Sarsaparilla is putting new life right into me. I have gained ten pounds since I began to take it." Has taken two bottles. Gained 10 Pounds

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA is sold by all druggists. Price $1 per bottle; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.

A Knowing Parrot.

A correspondent of the Norwich (Conn.) Bulletin is responsible for the following:

The venerable pastor of Putnam, the Rev. Father Vygen, owns a parrot which is a linguist, musician, telephone operator, gymnast, and contortionist. The bird will speak Irish, Dutch, English and French, and learn a lesson in any of them with remarkable facility. Music charms him. He frequently essays to sing, and reproduces the sound of the human voice so well that one can tell whose voice he imitates. His voice and humor are best generally in the morning. He mimics the domestic animals, canary bird, cat, and rooster; whistles for the little poodle, and kindly calls the Newfoundland dog by a pet name. The names of the household members are often on his tongue. His friendship is perpetually particular for a certain individual; he has fits of revenge, and is very violent in self-defense. He commands, exhorts, and denounces as if endowed with human intelligence; has a somewhat regular hour for retiring, manifesting his desire therefore by a screech of impatience. He mistakes to advise children regarding the propriety of going to school, and using a handkerchief when necessary. If the indolent youngsters were as assiduous in their application as this parrot, they would be bright scholars. Although he seemingly distinguishes where there is a difference of rank, he has very little reverence for the most distinguished in church or state, and naturally has no "human respect." At times he assumes a meditative mien, especially after active and talkative scenes. He takes great delight in whistling the raise-up-the-curtain, and hurry-up-with-the-play gamut, common in the opera houses and halls; apparently knows good from evil and is quick to declare that that quality exists in certain things. He put a period to any current nonsense by his imperative "Stop!" appreciates the physiological benefit of a hearty laugh when in the proper mood; holds prolonged conversations by telephone and otherwise, and manifests a love for the so-called almighty dollar on meet occasions. The bird is wonderful above his kind.

The new Duchess of Westminster, wife of one of the richest men in Europe, was married in a dress of white foulard, costing seventy-five cents a yard. This certainly is economy, and economy it is to use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, the great remedy for coughs and colds.

—There is a story of a man who was tried for stealing a pair of trousers. He was ably defended, and the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty. The prisoner's counsel collected his fee and then said to the vindicated statesman: "Well, get out. You're free." "I'll wait till he goes," returned the victim of slander, pointing to the plaintiff. "I don't want him to see me." "Why not?" "I've got them breeches on."

Heart Pains.

Palpitation, dropsical swellings, dizziness, indigestion, headache, sleeplessness cured by "Wells' Health Renewer."

"Rough On Corns."

Ask for Wells' "Rough on Corns." 15c. Quick complete cure. Hard or soft corns, warts, bunions.

—Scene—A concert for the people. Distinguished amateur (about to make his first appearance in public)—"Oh, I do feel so nervous!" Sympathetic friend—"On, there's no occasion to be nervous, my dear fellow. They applaud anything!"

"Buchu-Paiba."

Quick, complete cure, all kidney, bladder and urinary diseases, scalding, irritation, stone, gravel, catarrh of the bladder. $1. Druggists.

—An article begins, "Why boilers explode," and then goes on in a roundabout sort of way, instead of coming right to the point at once and saying that it is because boiler owners think it is more economical to hire an alleged engineer at $5 a week than to employ a real engineer at a fair salary.

The use of Iodoform or mercurials in the treatment of catarrh—whether in the form of suppositories or ointments—should be avoided, as they are both injurious and dangerous. Iodoform is easily detected by its offensive odor. The only reliable catarrh remedy on the market to-day is Ely's Cream Balm, being free from all poisonous drugs. It has cured thousands of acute and chronic cases, where all other remedies have failed. A particle is applied into each nostril; no pain; agreeable to use. Price fifty cents of druggists.

—A little Illinois boy went to Sunday school for the first time the other Sunday. On his return his mother asked him what the text was. He instantly replied, "Hold a grater to Solomon's ear." Investigation proved it to be, "Behold, a greater than Solomon is here."

Tens of Thousand Colds

Lead to consumption, fevers, settled coughs, asthma, bronchitis, whooping cough, croup, etc. Immediate relief by Dr. Seth Arnold's Cough Killer.

Still lives, so do hundreds of others who have been cured of rheumatism and neuralgia by the great blood purifier, Sulphur Bitters. Send for testimonials.

—A Chicago collector of rare books has paid $1,500 for a bible. Thought it was something new, probably.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites.

Its Use in Lung Troubles.

Dr. Hiram Cadoretto, of Jacksonville, Fla., says: "I have for the last ten months prescribed your Emulsion, to patients suffering from lung troubles, and they seem to be greatly benefited by its use."

"No Physic, Sir, in Mine!"

A good story comes from a boys boarding-school in "Jersey." The diet was monotonous and constipating, and the learned principal decided to introduce some old-style physic in the applesauce, and await the happy results. One bright lad, the smartest in school, discovered the secret mine in his sauce, and pushing back his plate, shouted to the pedagogue, "No physic, sir, in mine. My dad told me to use nuthin' but Dr. Pierce's 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets,' and they are a doing their duty like a charm!" They are anti-bilious, and purely vegetable.

—"Just listen to this, Martha!" exclaimed Mr. Jarphly, who was reading his evening paper. "One of the dogs in the London prize show is valued at $50,000! Good gracious! That's more money than I ever expect to be worth in my life." "Some dogs are worth more than others, Jeremiah," quietly remarked Mrs. Jarphly; and Mr. Jarphly eyed her for a moment, and said she need not sit up for him that evening.

"Gentle Spring."

Among spring preparations, do not neglect that which is most important of all—your own body. During the winter the blood absorbs many impurities, which, if not expelled, are liable to break out in scrofula or other disease. The best spring medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It expels every impurity from the blood, and gives strength to every function of the body. Sold by all druggists.

Edwin Booth appears at the Boston Museum March 2d.

"Rough on Rats."

Clears out rats, mice, roaches, flies, ants, bedbugs, skunks, chipmunks, gophers. 15c. Druggists.

ON THE ENGINE.
TAUNTON, MASS.
Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:
DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River train between Fall River and Lowell, reading in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Then I had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was the part to large for habits of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes my head would snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fist. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as though it were a great raw and sore surface, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.
In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the constant jar brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next spring when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and confined that my labor, and my life too, were about over.
Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this critical time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily conceive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.
I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the searching pain left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good and it drove every sore, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.
Why, I believe DR. FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night a while ago, John Layton, an engineer who runs the main fall River train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," said, "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, filled his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. The next day after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Dan," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, Rondout, N. Y." said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.
Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.
This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful in the home, shops, in out-door—everywhere.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM

I was attacked last winter with inflammatory rheumatism of severe type—my first serious illness since 1876. I had various kinds of treatment with only temporary partial relief. After seven weeks I was reduced in weight 35 pounds, had no strength or appetite, and was growing weaker every day. In this condition I began Swift's Specific, and in three days began to improve, and in three weeks I was free from disease and up attending to my regular business. My appetite returned and I rapidly gained my flesh. I have waited this long to be sure in that my cure was permanent

A Queer Partnership.

As most of my young readers are doubtless well aware, there is a continual warfare between the insects and the birds, the latter finding in the former their natural food. Knowing this, any exception we may find to the rule must seem very remarkable, especially when it is a bird and a spider on terms of the closest friendship, and actually partners in house-building. The bird is the purple sun-bird named by naturalists Nectarinia Asiatica. It is common in many parts of India, where it flits among the trees in gorgeous garbs of deep purple-blue, flashing green, gold and yellow.

At the nest-building time, the sun-bird searches the woods until it finds the large shining web of a certain kind of spider. This it proceeds forthwith to appropriate without further ceremony, though we can well imagine that there has been some understanding between Messrs. Spider & Sun-bird.

The web is generally spun between two stout limbs, and upon this web the bird begins to place all sorts of rubbish, such as bits of grass or fiber, and pieces of paper and cloth picked up or stolen from some neighboring camp. At first the spider must be somewhat astonished at the capacity of its net for catching such strange flies. But curiously enough, as fast as the bird places these objects upon the web, the spider secures them with its silk, spinning industriously and assisting its friend as much as possible. Finally, when the materials have accumulated until they reach the limb, they are fastened to it, and bound over and over, first by the bird and afterward by the spider. Now the nest begins to assume a definite shape: in appearance like a bottle, a flask, or a dome; the grass and twigs being generally wound in and out by the bird and then covered by the silk of the spider, both bird and insect working harmoniously, until they have made a perfect dome-shaped nest hanging in the midst of the web, partly supported by it and partly hanging from the limb. In some nests an entrance is left at the bottom; but usually it is at one side near the upper end, with a little platform or awning built out over it by the bird, to keep out the rain.

The nest would now naturally be a very conspicuous object; but the spider's work is not yet done. It continues to spin its silken web around the nest, carrying the threads from one part to another, inward and outward, forward and back, until finally, after spinning miles and miles of silk, the nest is completely hidden behind a screen of web.

Here, together, the partners live; the spider rearing its young on the outside, and the sun-bird caring for its eggs and young within. In this queer partnership the spider is, evidently, not the loser, as it certainly gains peace and protection from the presence of its feathered friend.—C. F. Holder, in St. Nicholas for February.

An Unborn Boy.

What shall we do with our boys? is a problem as perplexing for French as for English parents. A case has just been before the Paris correctional tribunal which will show what great importance some French parents attach to the future trade or profession of their offspring. M. and Mme. Paneton, during the fifteen years they have been married, have had but one quarrel, or rather the same quarrel, for the motive of it is always the same. Here is how it usually begins: Paneton, a journeyman mason, comes home at 7 for dinner, as they say here; in England we should say supper. Paneton's brow is clouded. He throws himself into a chair and says: What a dirty trade! How can parents be so stupid as to make masons of their sons? My son shall not be a mason. O, no, not if I know it." "O, you're right there," replied Mme. Paneton, while cutting bread into the soup. "He shall be a cabinet-maker," continues Paneton. "Never while I live," replies madame, "he shall be a wood-turner!" "A wood-turner!" retorts monsieur; "catch me making a wood-turner of my boy! I know ten of my chums who made wood-turners of their sons, and every one of those lads turned bad characters." "Rubbish! Our boy shall be a wood-turner." "I tell you he shall be a cabinet-maker." "My son a paste pot! I would rather strangle him with these hands." "You are not a mother to the boy; you are a step-mother." "It is you, rather, who are a step-father." At that Paneton seizes the first thing that comes to hand and hurls it at madame's head. She returns the fire, and the row is renewed regularly every night.

The circumstances in the case are that they have no children, though they have been fifteen years married. To be brief, cries of "murder" are heard. The neighbors rush in, restore peace and go away, knowing they will keep quiet for the next twenty-four hours. The nuisance, however, has become so intolerable that we find them at length summoned before the correctional tribunal. The first witness, M. Blanchard, deposeth: "Paneton and his missus are the nicest people you can wish to see but they are always going on with the same quarrel, and sometimes they spend the whole night fighting. Just imagine, your worship, they are not very young, and they can have no family, which embitters their moral qualities; but that is not the fault of the neighborhood, which has often said to them: 'If you keep on this racket we will go and complain to the police commissary,' all the more, your worship, because the older they get the less hope they have of a posterity." To that Mme. Paneton replied: "It is you who make a mistake, M. Blanchard; you must not talk of what you don't understand."

Here the judge interfered and said. "You disturb the tranquillity of your neighbors by a daily scandal, and that apropos of the trade to which you will put a son who is not yet born." He then sentenced each spouse to a fine of five francs for nocturnal disturbances. "I'll pay it when you like," cried Paneton; "but he shall be a cabinet-maker." "He shall be a wood-turner, I tell you," retorted Mme P. "Turn them out, usher. Are they going to begin again here?" exclaimed the judge in amazement. It is evident that the future child will be either a cabinet-maker or a wood-turner, if it is a boy; but supposing it is a girl!—London News.

Rather Late.

Several belated pedestrians on Madison street were surprised last night to see an old man standing in front of a gorgeous saloon and inviting everybody in to drink.

"Come, boys," he said, "this is about the last call. Walk right in and help yourselves. It don't cost anything. The news is too almighty glorious for any use. I'm celebrating as nobody in my family ever celebrated before."

"What is it that you are celebrating?" asked a thinly clad old man who had gone in twice, and with his coat collar up was trying to ring in once more.

"Why, the Democratic victory. Where've you been, you Hottentot? Haven't you heard the news? Jim Blaine beat and old Cleveland elected. If my old father was here there wouldn't nobody sleep in this town tonight."

"Cleveland was elected three months ago," said a policeman who came out wiping his mouth. "You're a little behindhand, old man."

The stranger looked dazed, explained that he had just come in from the mountains of Yuma County, Arizona, and that he had only heard the news by accident that afternoon."

"Gentleman," he continued, "I want to do everything decent and in order. If this here glorious triumph has been properly celebrated in this town we'll quit. Three months ago, eh? That's a mighty close call on me. If I don't bump myself there won't be an office left."—Chicago Herald.

CUTICURA

Mrs. Smith's Case, and what the Rev. Mr McKinstry has to say about it.

TO THE PUBLIC: I have been a fearful sufferer for fifteen years, most of the time with what has been called Eczema or Salt Rheum, Psoriasis and Lepra, and the like, and have always been told that there was no cure for me, and have been so discouraged that I had given up all hope. I have been so badly afflicted sometimes that there was not the small est spot from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet that was not diseased and at red as crimson. It would commence in small white spots, which had a silvery appearance, but were not deep, but if I attempted to heal them, or soon after their first appearance, they would burn and run together until there was a complete dry, red scale, which would become so full and so cracked and look fiery and angry, and the burning sensation would be almost intolerable.

I was at times so lame that I could scarcely get about, and could not dress myself without assistance. I tried many remedies, and have paid $600 in single instances to a physician, but have never obtained only temporary relief. Although helped for a time, I was so respaired again to be as badly troubled as ever, and in all the winter of 1881 and 82 I suffered so much as to be entirely discouraged. Last June, however, I was advised by Elder and Mrs. L. C. McKinstry, who are well known in these regions, to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES; and I felt somewhat a little encouraged from their favorable opinion of them, to try their virtues. About the second week of July last I commenced taking the remedies, and within six weeks I began to see a permanent improvement, until now (Oct 1) I am about as good as new, and my flesh is as the flesh of a child.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

"THE CENTURY" MAGAZINE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16th.

A visit to the editorial department of The Century shows one a suite of rooms rich in adornment, and with conveniences and accessories such as have been rarely the lot of literary men to behold. The mechanical work of The Century is done elsewhere, but the editorial, artist and business rooms of this publication are found or one of the pleasantest squares of New York, and easily reached from the ground floor by means of a lift.

The editor of The Century, R. W. Gilder, is widely known from his poems "The New Day" and "The Poet and His Master." With Dr. Holland, he was engaged on the inception and early rise of this successful periodical. Mr. Gilder possesses in an eminent degree that discriminating judgment which enables him far in advance of the public taste to determine just what material to use for the coming numbers of his magazine. His wife, Helen DeKay, is granddaughter of Jas. Rodman Drake and an artist of acknowledged taste; they live in a bijou of a residence on East Fifteenth street, hard by The Century Club House. His house, by the grace of a corporation having a soul, has a large court yard in front, the entrance to which is through an iron gate the bottom of which is secured by a bar of iron over which poets, philosophers, artists, and an occasional editor have tripped a too, and the frequent ejaculation called forth by this unexpected obstacle has given name to a new hotel over the way. In the summer the author and his artist wife spend their season in their country home on Cape Cod, where exempt from public haunts they each accomplish much of combined rest and labor.

In the editorial work Mr. Gilder is ably assisted by Mr. R. H. Johnson, the second editor, who is a rising man and by C. C. Buel, who just now is visiting the battle grounds and confirming the localities assigned in the war maps and descriptions of campaigns and battles.

In the rooms we visit the work seems to be admirably laid out, as if some superior executive mind held it in grasp. The ordinary reader of a copy of this magazine has but a limited idea of the vast amount of work which this staff of literary laborers executes monthly for the two hundred thousand persons who buy the magazine, nor can one hardly imagine the amount of material which is sought to be accepted by a magazine like The Century. Besides the manuscript sent directly to the magazine, of which ninety-five per cent or thereabouts is declined, literary men in New York city are constantly receiving letters from persons who wish aid in obtaining literary work,—sometimes from new aspirants, then from cultivated persons of reduced fortunes, and from others with all sorts of pleas for help for reasons charitable, ambitious or mercenary. The number of persons who desire to write in this way is incredible, but material for a leading magazine is not acquired in this mode. An editor, far in advance of the publication, determines that he requires an article upon a particular subject, and he looks over a long list of literary acquaintances or men of repute, to select the proper writer. To such a person the editor addresses a little note indicating his desire, and if his offer is accepted he rests assured that the right paper will be seasonably forthcoming.

There is one editor of a magazine in this city who drives around in his coupe to call upon his contributors, who are for the most part celebrities in law, literature, finance, business or similar pre-eminence, and he talks over a desired article, indicates just what he wishes, the length of the article, etc., and arranges the quid pro quo. The remunerative part of the call is said to be of the most a tisfactory character. This I have from others, for alas! the coupe has never ascended to my flight.

The Century's war articles are attracting much attention throughout the country, and the additional orders which have been received since the issue of the February number, especially from the south, show how largely the magazine circulates throughout the land.

One is amazed at the beauties of the surroundings of the office of The Century, and its protege "St. Nicholas," which is growing into such a strong affection on the part of the young folks of this and other countries. As we leave the rooms we can but remark upon the stride in improvement, comfort, even luxury, which they show over those in which the literary grubs of former days toiled. But the world improves in ideas, one of which is that the better the surroundings of a literary worker the better his results. If this be true there is no reason why The Century should not maintain its high rank in periodical literature. H.

Interesting Suit.

An interesting case is being heard before Judge Haskell at Portland, Me., this week. The late John B. Brown in his will appointed John Rand, a well known lawyer, Philip H Brown and John M. Brown, his joint trustees. Mr. Rand, it is claimed by Mr. Brown's sons, has ignored his co-trustees in the trust duty, keeping separate bank deposits of the income, clipping coupons long in advance of their maturity, interfering with the collector of the estate's rents, and treating his co-trustees and the tenants of the estate, and others having business therewith, with anything but Chesterfieldian manners. The Browns ask to have Mr. Rand removed. According to the statement of counsel, the annoyances of Mr. Rand entirely outweigh in their results any benefit to be derived from his eminent legal attainments.

Some months ago a party of girl-artists found picturesque sketching-ground among the granite quarries of Cape Ann, Massachusetts, and they made a number of drawings which appear in the March Harper's. Miss Ellen Day Hale, daughter of E. E. Hale, herself well known as a rising artist, was one of the number, but instead of contributing sketches she has written the paper on the granite industry which the pictures illustrate, giving in a chatty way an interesting account of stone-cutting in general and these quarries in particular. One of the most curious facts she brings out is the idiosyncrasy of various cities in the matter of pavements, Philadelphia in particular "insisting upon having especially long and fair stones." The article and its pictures form an interesting example of feminine co-operation.

Some fishermen report that during the past week they visited Charity island in Lake Michigan, and when the keeper of the light-station on the island saw them he ran down to greet them, and his first question was: "Who's elected president?" He had had no mail or communication with the rest of the world for three months,—and yet there will be a scramble for his position after March 4th.

The latest official announcement concerning the new cabinet is, that the gentlemen who will not be invited to seats at the table will not be quite sure of it until the morning of the 4th of March. NOBODY'S CLAIM.

Says the Boston Gazette of the play which is to be presented at Music hall Saturday evening:

"Nobody's Claim," which was seen at Howard Athenæum last season, was repeated on Monday night with Mr. J. J. Dowling and Miss Sadie Hasson in the leading parts. Since last presented here it has been revised by its author, Mr. E. A. Locke. As will be remembered, it is a melodrama dealing with western life, and has sensation enough for some half dozen plays of its kind. Mr. Dowling played the hero in manly, straightforward manner, and Miss Hasson, as the heroine, acted with spirit, skill and effect, and sang in a pleasing and tuneful style that met with warm appreciation. The company in general did very well, and as a whole is much better than we have been accustomed to in works of this character. The stage mounting was picture-que and excellent, and the performance was received with no end of enthusiasm.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., Feb. 17th.

A corps of workmen from the consolidated Electric Light Co. of New York, under the management of Mr. E. G. Berryard, are engaged in equipping the U. S. S. Marion, now fitting out at this navy yard, with electric lights, the work of which is already well advanced.

Mr. Charles H. Bartlett, proprietor of the Harbor View house, has just finished housing between 275 and 300 tons of extra quality ice, averaging eighteen inches thick, which he will use at his house the coming summer, and to supply his customers at the village.

Mr. Joshua Moore of Biddeford, a brother of Perry C. Moore, Esq., of West Kittery, is visiting friends in this vicinity, the first time in thirty years.

A company of the friends of Mr. Edward R. Fuller, principal of the Newington school, and his estimable wife, assembled at their residence in North Kittery on Friday evening last, and as the boys say "had a kind of a serenade," although it was of a little different cast from what some of them are. Several of the company were from the Point; it is now expected that one in that precinct will be next in order.

Mrs. James Otis, milliner at the village, has just completed a very handsome silk quilt of unique design and finish.

Though we learn all about the new cabinet, dynamite plottings, and that Grover Cleveland eats pie with a knife and like national interests, matters in our midst remain shrouded in original darkness, verified by the following affair. One of the smallest school districts in our town has already employed three teachers for their winter school, all of whom were "armed and equipped as the law directs." After teacher No. 1 had taught one week, a petition was sent to the superintending school committee signed largely by boys who had not voted many times. A meeting was appointed whereto hear the grievances, and after a long waiting four of the petitioners put in an appearance, but as matters were settled with closed doors all the dear public knows is that the teacher was dismissed. Then another fine young man assumed the duties of teacher of said school, so far as to go to the house on a stormy day, where he found two boys who surveyed him with some anxiety, when he concluded to go. [No doubt a draft for his dismission was in readiness.] Lastly a resident of the district, with the courage and zeal of a martyr, took charge of the school, and he no doubt will close in season to attend the inauguration if he so desires.

The gossips are evidently at work in North Kittery, and they do say that one of the unterrified intends to expend the whole of twenty dollars to attend the inauguration; probably he will get a reserved seat on a curb stone, if he can get so near as that.

Charles W. Blackman of Kent's Hill, Me., is now paymaster and bookkeeper of the Phœnix Iron Bridge Co. of Philadelphia. Charlie was but a small boy when his father was pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church in North Kittery, about twelve years ago.

SUB ROSA.

Miss Florence P. Whidden, whose skill and rapid progress in music have won the approval and admiration of her instructor, Prof. Orth of Boston, and many other competent judges of musical excellence, will make her debut as pianist at Music hall in this city on Thursday evening, Feb. 26th, in a complimentary concert tendered to her by Prof. Orth as a testimonial of the high esteem in which he holds her as a successful student of classical music. The young lady was received with much favor by a select audience before whom she played recently in Boston. Mrs. E Humphrey Allen, one of Boston's favorite sopranos, and the famous Temple Quartette, are to appear in selections that cannot fail to gratify all lovers of good vocal music.

Capt. Frank L. Bird, who ran the steamer "City of Portsmouth" between this city and the Isles of Shoals last season, much to the satisfaction of all concerned, will command the steamer "Appledore" on the same route this season. We unders and that Capt. Bird has been offered the command of one of the Nantasket Steamboat Co.'s boats, and also of a steamer in New York harbor licensed to carry four thousand passengers, but could not accept either offer because he had previously engaged with Leighton Brothers. The Appledore will be thoroughly overhauled before the season opens; she will be provided with a spacious saloon on the main deck, be fitted with masts and sails, and be made in all respects as nearly a perfect boat as possible for the business.

Mr. Ralph Deverson, boat-builder, of Newcastle, this week sold to some of the officers of the U. S. S. Marion, and delivered on board the ship, a cedar row-boat, probably for private use on the rivers and in the ports of China and Japan.

Mr. Arthur Fletcher of Concord had a diseased leg amputated just below the knee on the 17th inst., owing to senile gangrene of the foot. The operation was performed by Dr. Stillings of Concord, assisted by Dr. Conn and Dr. Crosby of that city and Dr. Fred. E. Potter of Portsmouth.

There was good skating on the north mill-pond, and lots of young people were enjoying it, on Wednesday.

The Philadelphia & Reading Co.'s steamer William-port, Miller master, arrived on the 18th inst. from Philadelphia, with 1622 tons coal to J. Albert Walker.

Persons who desire to witness the sleighing carnival at Dover to-day can leave by train from the Eastern station at 12:20 o'clock, reach Dover at a quarter to one, see the procession, which forms at one, leave Dover at 2:25, and reach Portsmouth at three o'clock.

Mr. Edward C. Stickney of this city, well-known as the heavy-dumb-bell lifter, will give an exhibition at the Odd Fellows' entertainment this (Thursday) evening, showing his wonderful feats of strength, in which he will introduce several of the most difficult moves ordinarily made by professional athletes, and also some original moves not made by any other member of the profession.

Operations at Mason's steam sawmill are suspended for a few days in consequence of the repairing of the engine at the Portsmouth Machine Co.'s works. Mr. Mason is quite unwell at home, because of overwork.

The fishing fleet remained at the wharves on Tuesday, the 17th, on account of the weather, and did not start for the fishing grounds until late Wednesday morning.

Mr. H. S. DeRochemont, formerly of Newington but for a year or so past conducting a very successful real estate agency in Manchester, has recently sold a farm in Candia belonging to Bradley B. Aldrich, to Samuel Swain of Kittery, Maine.

In the Massachusetts legislature, on the 17th inst., the committee on railroads voted to report a bill authorizing the Eastern railroad company to issue preferred stock, so as to take up all but $10,000,000 of its bonds, which will enable the road to choose its own directors, as well as pay something on this stock.

The steamer Mystic, Captain H. W. Trefethen, passes to and fro between this city and the navy yard daily, loaded down with passengers on the main and hurricane decks, and has to repeat her passages morning and evening. A great many democratic faces are seen on her.

The steamer Seguin, a Kennebec river tug, schooner rigged, bound from Boston for Pool's Landing, Damariscotta river, Me., with the schooner Frank O. Dame, put into the lower harbor on Wednesday, the 18th inst., and the tug came up to the city for coal, leaving the schooner below. The steamer was lying at the wharf in the rear of E. F. Sise & Co.'s coal and wood office, Wednesday evening.

The fishing schooner Nettie Adams floated on to Four Tree Island Wednesday, 18th inst., but came off without damage

Ice was floating up and down the Piscataqua on the 18th inst., but sifted by the tide into small cakes not sufficiently heavy to impede navigation.

The Times says that Mr. Charles H. Grant of Kittery is chief officer of the Belgian steamship Westernland, which sank the British steam collier Holmhurst by collision off Eddystone lighthouse on the 15th inst. in a dense fog, as previously reported. The Westernland arrived at Plymouth, Eng., on the 16th, with her forward compartments full of water.

A DEMOCRATIC VIEW.

A democratic patron of the paper writes us as follows:

"The political pot is beginning to boil here, in view of the soon inauguration of President-elect Cleveland, and the somewhat uncertainty of his course. His party friends, however, judging from the character of the persons around him, consider that his administration will be radically democratic. Their never was a government,—theocracy, aristocracy, autocracy, monarchy or any form, but what supported its adherants. No merchant of any shrewdness would keep in his employment a clerk who was all the time devoting his energies for the benefit of some one else. No man can serve two masters; he will love the one and hate the other. Considering the long lapse of time since the democratic party has been in power, there is not apparent so much sign as might be expected, of a grand amount of scrambling."

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Is designed to meet the wants of a large portion of our people who are either too poor to employ a physician, or are too far removed to easily call one, and a still larger class who are not sick enough to require medical advice, and yet are out of sorts and need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood, and oil up the machinery of their bodies so it will do its duty willingly. No other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy.

My friend, you need not take our word. Ask your neighbor, who has just taken one bottle. He will tell you that "It's the best dollar I ever invested."

LEBANON N. H., Feb. 19, 1873.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Dear Sirs—Although greatly prejudiced against patent medicines in general, I was induced, from the excellent reports I had heard of your Sarsaparilla, to try a bottle, last December, for dyspepsia and general prostration, and I have received very gratifying results from its use. I am now using the second bottle, and consider it a very valuable remedy for indigestion and its attendant troubles.

Yours truly,
F. C. CHURCHILL,
(Firm of Carter & Churchill.)

Michael Davitt's Blackbird.

"I was remitted to Portland Prison on the 3d of February, 1881," says Michael Davitt, in his "Leaves from a Prison Diary," just is ued, "and shortly afterward, through the kindness of the Governor, a young blackbird came into my possession. For some months I relieved the tedium of my solitude by efforts to win the confidence of my companion with the happiest results. He would stand upon my breast as I lay in bed in the morning and awaken me from sleep. He would perch upon the edge of my plate and share my porridge. His familiarity was such that, on showing him a piece of slate pencil and then placing it in my waistcoat pocket, he would immediately abstract it. He would perch upon the edge of my slate as it was adjusted between my knees, and watching the course of my pencil as I wrote, would make the most amusing efforts to peck the marks from off the slate. He would fetch and carry as faithfully as any well-trained dog. Toward evening he would resort to his perch, the post of the iron bedstead, and there remain, silent and still, till the dawning of another day, when his chirrup would again be heard, like the voice of nature before the herald of civilization—the clang of the prison bell at 5 o'clock. One evening as 'Joe' sat upon his perch it occurred to me to constitute him chairman and audience of a course of lectures; and with him constantly before me as the representative of my fellow creatures, I jotted down what I have substantially reproduced."—London Times.

One ton (2,000 pounds avoirdupois) of gold or silver contains 29,963 troy ounces, and therefore, the value of a ton of pure gold is $602,799.21, and a ton of silver $37,704.84. A cubic foot of pure gold weighs 1,218.75 pounds avoirdupois; a cubic foot of silver weighs 655.25 pounds avoirdupois; $1,000,000 gold coin weighs 3,685.8 pounds avoirdupois; $1,000,000 silver coin weighs 58,929.9 pounds avoirdupois.

The Coffin shoe manufactory in Lynn, Mass., a four-story structure, was burned on the evening of the 17th inst. A brick building opposite, occupied by C. B. Tebbetts as a shoe factory, and by George Brothers, dealers in sole leather, also took fire, and was damaged to the amount of $10,000, the stock suffering $30,000 or $40,000. The total loss is put at nearly $100,000.

Don't Look Like a Wreck.
"When a man is going down hill everybody is ready to give him a kick." Yes, that is so. It is sad, but natural. Why, many a man and woman, seeking employment, would have got it if their hair hadn't been so thin and gray. One bottle of Parker's Hair Balsam is then the best investment. It stops falling hair, promotes new growth and restores color. Clean, highly perfumed, not a dye. A great improvement over any similar preparation, and sold at the low price of 50c.

Twelve men were killed and twenty wounded by a boiler explosion on a sugar estate at Santa Clara, Cuba.

The use of Iodoform or mercurials in the treatment of catarrh—whether in the form of suppositories or ointments—should be avoided, as they are both injurious and dangerous. Iodoform is easily detected by its offensive odor. The only reliable catarrh remedy on the market to-day is Ely's Cream Balm, being free from all poisonous drugs. It has cured thousands of acute and chronic cases, where all other remedies have failed. A particle is applied into each nostril; no pain; agreeable to use. Price fifty cents of druggists.

The Boston league base-ball team for 1885, as now completed, is substantially the same as that of the last two years. The team, as at present composed, is as follows: Whitney, Buffington, Davis, pitchers; Hackett, Gunning, Hines, catchers; Morrill, (manager and captain,) Burdock, Sutton, on bases; Wise, short stop; Hornung, Whitney of Buffington, Manning, in the out-fields. This is substantially the same team that won the championship in 1883.

"Hello!" we heard one man say to another, the other day. "I didn't know you at first; why! you look ten years younger than you did when I saw you last." "I feel ten years younger," was the reply. "You know I used to be under the weather all the time and gave up expecting to be any better. The doctor said I had consumption. I was terribly weak, had night-sweats, cough, no appetite, and lost flesh. I saw Dr. Pierce's 'Golden Medical Discovery' advertised, and thought it would do no harm if it did no good. It has cured me. I am a new man because I am a well one."

The Root of the Evil.
To thoroughly cure scrofula it is necessary to strike directly at the root of the evil. This is exactly what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, by acting upon the blood, thoroughly cleansing it of all impurities, and leaving not even a taint of scrofula in the vital fluid. Thousands who have been cured of scrofula by Hood's Sarsaparilla, testify to its wonderful blood-purifying qualities. Sold by all druggists.

The Lancaster, flagship of the European squadron, arrived at Gibraltar Feb. 8th, and expected to sail on the 18th for Porto Grande on her way to the Congo river.

Breaking Up.
On every hand we see evidence that winter is breaking up, and will soon have to yield to the advancing spring. It is a most important question amongst scientific men what causes the general feeling of debility and lassitude so prevalent in this region. While some regard it as the result of confinement and inaction, others suppose it to be caused by the decay of vegetable and animal debris during the winter. What is especially needed at this time, however, is something to overcome these influences. It is too late to talk about the causes; what is the cure? Thousands of persons all over the country who have given Kidney-Wort a faithful trial are ready to testify that no other remedy is equal to it for cleansing the system, purifying the blood, regulating the bowels, and curing all kidney and liver diseases. It is in fact the king of all spring medicines.

Rear Admiral E. T. Nichols, chief of the bureau of yards and docks, will be retired on March 1st, and Captain D. B. Harmony is mentioned as his successor.

ON THE ENGINE.
TAUNTON, MASS.
Dr David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:
DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River branch trip between Fall River and Lowell, stopping in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia and liver complaint. I had such blinding sick headaches that I could see every one. I think this was in part due to irregularities of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes my head would snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fist. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as heavy and uneasy as a man does after a hard meal, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.
In the summer and fall of 1878 when we had the heavy rains I was troubled the constant, or brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the 1st of April when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.
Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this critical time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.
I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the cramping pain left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good and it did me every ache, pain and disorder of a complexion out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.
Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night a while ago, John Layton, an engineer who runs in main line train, came from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down at times. "Nonsense, John," said, "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out a bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, filled his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Twenty-four hours after I saw him looking healthy as a bumpkin. "Tom," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, Rondout, N. Y." said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.
Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.
This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office—everywhere.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM

I was attacked last winter with inflammatory rheumatism of severe type—my first serious illness since 1876. I had various kinds of treatment with only temporary partial relief. After seven weeks I was reduced in weight 35 pounds, had no strength or appetite, and was growing weaker every day. In this condition I began Swift's Specific, and in three days began to improve, and in three weeks I was free from disease and up attending to my regular business. My appetite returned and I rapidly gained my flesh. I have waited this long to be certain that my cure was permanent.

A Young Husband's Woes.

"A welcome home? Well, yes; rather," said a newly-married man, who was receiving the congratulations of his bachelor comrades yesterday at one of the fashionable clubs. "Yes," he continued in a contemplative tone, "a warmer welcome than I anticipated. I never knew before what a married man has to endure. Do you know that when a fellow gets married he becomes the victim of an army of agents, canvassers and all such cheeky cattle, and they never let up till the honeymoon is over?

"Fannie and I got back from the wedding tour Friday night. We drove straight home, counting on a quiet evening together, for the cards, you know, didn't announce us 'at home' until Monday. As I entered the vestibule, I stumbled over a pile of pamphlets, circulars and catalogues as high as a tea chest. We walked around them and went into the library. My desk was buried under a mountain of similar trash.

"'Please, sur,' said the hired girl, pointing to the hillock in the vestibule, 'thim's what's come to-day. If I'd knowed yez was comin' home airly, I'd have lugged 'em outen the way afore yez came. There's ben a reg'lar percession av men and boys a'pokin' 'em under the door all day.'

"I looked over a few of the things before I pitched them into the grate. There were twelve catalogues and price-lists from furniture-dealers, seven dry-goods and millinery advertisements addressed to my wife, cards from three rival bakers, two paper books describing burglar alarms, one illustrated catalogue of baby coaches, four annuals published by insurance companies, and a circular announcing that in a few days Mr. Somebody would call with a copy of "The Housewife's Friend," a compilation of choice recipes, together with a thousand and one domestic hints invaluable to the inexperienced housekeeper.

"You may laugh, but I even found a lawyer's card, inscribed: 'Legal business attended to promptly and without publicity.' Do you suppose the scoundrel thought I'd want a divorce before the end of the honeymoon? But that isn't all. We were swindled out of our quiet evening, too. Can't imagine how they found out we'd reached home but three polite insurance agents called, one after another, before 10 o'clock. Two of them were life insurance men, and each tried to picture to me what a horrible thing it would be for me to die and leave a wife—and perhaps a child—unprovided for, and how likely I was to die instantly. The third was a fire insurance man, who wanted to take a risk on everything in the house before we had time to sleep. From the way he pictured the horrors of a fire you might have thought we were living in a powder-mill. I got mad finally and told him to go to the devil. Well, six more bores called on Saturday. Then I broke down, and to-day I came to the club to get away from them. Take my advice, boys, and when you get married don't put it in the paper."

German Life.

"One is what one eats," says our German brother. Whether this be true or not, he takes pride in his own dishes, and regards foreign cookery with suspicion, if not with contempt. The German deems our sweet breakfasts and melting pastry the mere offshoot of an inferior civilization. A German of culture, remarking upon his experience in the United States, said he had partaken of our first-class fare in hotels and steamers, and yet he longed for the salads and soups, the oils and onions, which alone could go to the right spot. As a fitting preparation to a forenoon's work let us begin with the breakfast. The name of this meal is no polite subterfuge for the generous warm breakfast, with buckwheat cakes, but it is literal, denoting coffee, with two wheaten rolls. These rolls are sold in the bread stalls, and they are delightful as far as they go, but it requires long practice to school one's self into working until noon after such a breakfast. We soon see through it, though, when he learns that it is customary to take a second breakfast, which, from its chief element, is called soup. This is eaten in a restaurant, at the place of business, or at home, according to convenience, and usually at about ten o'clock. Coffee is had immediately after rising, and is served in your room. Most people include coffee when they engage rooms. Dinner occurs between twelve and two. There is never any hurry about dinner. The guests at the hotels sit at the table from one to two hours, seldom less than an hour and a half. All dinners begin with soup. After the last course, which is some innocent jelly, or cake, or ice, cigars are lighted, and you then see how sociable and animated a German can be. With the exception of a minute preparatory roll, white bread does not appear at dinner. In the restaurants brown or rye bread goes with the dinner. The "black bread," as it is called, is the great staple food of the peasants, who can afford very little meat, and, in fact, it is a prominent part of city fare. It comes in loaves of several sizes, the largest being gigantic. Every day you see wagon loads of them passing from house to house or out to the villages. No German housewife is ever troubled with the setting and baking of bread. It would cause hard times for the peasant if the rye crop should fail. The supper hour is from seven to eight; however, it occurs oftener at about eight than at seven. There is no regular supper-table or supper-hour at the hotels; their dining-rooms are all changed into restaurants and the guests eat when and what they will according to the bill of fare. In the family the evening meal corresponds very nearly to our tea. During the summer the custom is to sup in a public or private garden and to make an evening of it with the help of games and music.

The Slow-to-Get-Married Young Man

The young man of Macon, Ga., who asked to have his wedding day postponed, is one of many thousand who, with or without asking, are constantly putting off the fatal day, and naturally enough, the question arises in inquisitive minds: Why is this as it is? The philosophers say that every event has its cause. And this state of things is a big event. All right-minded men agree with the Scriptures that whosoever getteth a good wife secures a treasure and a blessing. And the experiences of happily married men in all generations confirm this view of the case. Unfortunately the records of divorce courts and the unrecorded conversations of the club rooms do not quite chime in with this beautiful view of the question, and the knowing, modern young man hangs his head and fails to come to time. The young man of the period says that the girls do not now marry for love, or because they want to provide cultured and happy homes for their husbands and families, and so become the choicest aspirations of general society. They say the girls marry for money, or for homes for themselves—that is, for surer centers of social trivialties; that the idea of becoming a helpmate has vanished in the feminine mind, and of course young men do not want wives that drag them down. The girls tell a very different story, and blame it on the miserable selfishness of the men. It is hard to decide.—Philadelphia Times.

"Come on," called a bridesmaid to a bride who was standing before a mirror touching and retouching, "they're waiting for you." "All right," responded the maiden without moving. "Don't say 'all right' but come on. What do you want to see yourself for, anyhow? You look beautiful." "Oh, yes, I know that; brides always do." "Well, then, what are you standing before the glass for when everything is waiting?" "Because, dear," she answered with provoking patience, "it is well for one to indulge in some reflection before one gets married, you know." The guests at the wedding wondered what made that particular bridesmaid look so pale.

"He jests at scars, who never felt a wound," and a man may stand with his hand in his pockets and laugh at a poor, worn rheumatic, but if he is a gentleman, he'll step into the nearest apothecary shop and buy him a bottle of Salvation Oil at the small expense of only twenty-five cents.

The Rev. Edward W. Bacon, pastor of the First Church of Christ of New London, Conn., went to California nearly a month ago on a vacation for the benefit of his health. The Santa Barbara Daily Press says that he has become pastor of a church there, and Connecticut people don't know what to think.

The War in the Soudan.

A despatch of Feb. 17th, from Korti, says Gen. Gordon's trusted messenger, George, has arrived at Abu Klea. He says that almost all the natives' accounts agree that Gen. Gordon, on finding himself betrayed, made a rush for the magazine near the Catholic mission buildings. Finding the rebels already in possession he returned to the government house, and was killed while trying to re-enter it. The rebels were admitted to Khartoum at ten o'clock on the night of Jan. 26th. Another account says that Gen. Gordon rushed toward the magazine intending to explode it, and thus prevent the ammunition, of which there were several tons, from falling into the hands of the enemy. The Arabs quickly realized his intention, and shot him dead.

Another refugee from Khartoum, one of Gen. Gordon's servants, says that Farag, upon whom Gordon relied implicitly, was really the person who delivered Khartoum over to El Mahdi's troops. When they entered the city it was Farag who prevented the garrison from firing upon them. The story that Farag had once been a slave, and that Gen. Gordon secured his liberation, and that when he subsequently entered Gordon's service, the latter was deceived into mistaking Farag's zeal for evidence of gratitude, is corroborated by this man. He says that when Gordon made Farag military commandant he used to receive letters from El Mahdi. When Gen. Gordon would ask him about this correspondence, Farag would say the letters were unimportant, and Gen. Gordon apparently took him at his word.

A London despatch of Feb. 18th says great anxiety is felt at the war office as to the position of Col. Buller's force from Gubat. The Mahdi's reinforcements sent to Metemneh will increase the force there to 7500 men. The rebels have ten long range guns, while Col. Buller has no heavy guns at all. The reason for the abandonment of Gubat was the advance made by El Mahdi with 10,000 men from Omdurman toward Gubat; the retreat was ordered when the main body of the Arabs was twenty miles off, but an advance guard of 3000 men with five cannons was within seven miles of the British lines. Col. Buller had less than 2000 men all told under his command."

A few copies of a leaden medal struck by Gen. Gordon, to commemorate the long seige of Khartoum, have been received in London, and are selling for double their weight in gold.

J. J. Sullivan, who is under arrest for perjury in the Mackin trial at Chicago, has made confession that his testimony on behalf of the defence is untrue, and that it was part of a conspiracy entered into by himself and others who were to receive for their services a considerable sum of money. Sullivan states that in connection with Mackin the latter told him the substance of the evidence wanted, and promised him a position in Washington. Gilmore, another witness in the case, has also been arrested on a charge of perjury, and other arrests are expected. All three cases grew out of the wholesale election frauds by which the democratic managers in Chicago sought to carry Illinois for Cleveland, and the state legislature for a democratic United States senator.

Daniel Needham, national bank examiner, has written to F. S. Sanford, president of the Pacific National bank at Nantucket, stating his satisfaction that there are no losses on account of the mismanagement of the late cashier, William H. Chadwick, which have not been made good. He congratulates the board on the efficient action adopted, by which means the bank has been entirely saved from loss.

John Carey, a bushelman, employed at Haley's clothing factory, Newmarket, was found in the street at Dover on a recent evening, covered with blood. His face was badly battered. He said that he went into a saloon, and on leaving it he was shadowed by three young men, who knocked him down and robbed him of $8. He identified one as Hugh McSorley, who was arrested and sentenced for four months in the county jail.

While times are dull in the United States, they are even more so in England, and especially in the iron and steel trades. The production has gone down nearly one-half in fourteen months, as shown by an official report from the Northern Iron Trade board of arbitration, while the price of plates, bars, angles and rails is the lowest ever recorded. The stagnant condition of trade is chiefly due to the ship-building collapse, and the opportunity was never better for the English government to enliven the great industry by strengthening the British navy. When it is possible to alleviate public distress by undertaking a work of great public utility and benfit, a double purpose can be served, embracing two of the principal aims of government, whether national or municipal.

George Parsons Lathrop was born on board the American ship Montreal, John Chadwick master, on a voyage from Boston to San Francisco, via Honolulu. An officer of the ship recently came across this memorandum in his log: "Friday Jan. 22, 1849. This is quite an important day for one individual I wot of on board this good ship, who made his first appearance on the stage of life this morning—an ocean-born child—a son of Dr. Lathrop, who ought to be christened by Neptune by the name of Montreal. He ought to be made a sailor when he is old enough. Lat. 20. 39, long. 152 30."

Mrs. Hannah Swasey, who died in Alameda, Cal., Feb. 5th, was ninety-six years and six months of age, and quite a celebrated woman. She was the granddaughter of Lord Plaisted, who left England because of religious persecutions, and settled in Dover. On her father's farm, at the same place, Gen. Washington drilled his men, and upon one occasion picked her up in his arms and kissed her, as she was accustomed to relate.

NOBODY'S CLAIM.

Of "Nobody's Claim," while it was being played at the Howard Atheneum in Boston recently, the Post said:

The piece abounds in excellent scenery, consisting of a bewildering fire scene, a beautiful snow scene, among the Rockies, and scenes on the western frontier. The play is presented by an excellent company. The principal parts are taken by J. J. Dowling as Ward Devereaux, an army officer; J. P. Clark as Dell McWade, chief of the Black Blanket Band; J. Dyllyn as Maj. McWaddigan, and Frank Lawton as Calandemus Philpps, each of whom performed the parts assigned to them in a very satisfactory manner. Dyllyn and Lawton were recalled to render song, banjo and whistling solos. Miss Sadie Hasson, as Madge, the heroine of the play, rendered a difficult part in a very satisfactory and entertaining manner. The other parts were played by the respective players in fine style.

This sensational frontier drama will be performed at Music hall to-morrow evening. See advertisement.

THE COLONIAL SKATING PARTY.

THE CARNIVAL.

The sleighing carnival at Dover, Thursday afternoon, was a complete success, the weather being all that could be asked, and the sleighing good. The city was literally crowded with people and teams, a large number of both going up from this city. Beacham's barge, the Grace Irving, drawn by six fine horses and carrying twenty or more young men; Edgar D. Stoddard, driving a beautiful span of bays hitched to a fancy sleigh; Mr. Seavey, a blacksmith, with an old-fashioned turnout; and probably a hundred or more other teams, went up by the road, while nearly 400 tickets for Dover were sold at the Boston & Maine Eastern Division ticket office in this city.

The procession was of a great length, and consisted of a large number of teams representing the various manufacturing interests and business firms of the city, followed by the "antiques and horribles," six or eight double teams with children from the schools, etc., and private conveyances ad lib.

MATRIMONIAL.

The parlors of the residence of Ex-Alderman William Woolley at 154 Princeton street, East Boston, were on the 18th inst. well filled with the friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hill of South Boston to witness the marriage of their daughter Estelle to Mr. Langdon B. Parsons of New York, senior member of the firm of Parsons & Neale of New York and Cedar Keys, Fla. The officiating clergyman was Rev. F. E. Clark of Phillips church, South Boston. Charles O. Brooks and J. A. Neill, a brother of the bride, acted as ushers. It was expected that Adjutant George W. Rand of the Seventh Regiment of New York, a personal friend of the groom, would be present to act as one of the ushers, but on account of the snow blockade he was unable to be there on time. After the ceremony was performed a reception was held, after which the guests were conducted to the spacious dining-room, where a wedding dinner was served.

The wedding presents were very numerous and costly, among them being a silver tea set of six pieces with large salver, from Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Parsons; dozen silver knives from Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Parsons; silver berry spoon, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hill; silver butter knife, Mrs. John F. Blinn; two silver desert spoons, Mrs. A. D. Drake; six silver spoons, Frank A. Bachelder; large berry dish with stand, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Brooks; berry dish and two silver desert spoons, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Harvey; cake dish, D. J. Parsons; vase, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Baker; vase, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Walker; six after-dinner coffee spoons and sugar spoons, Miss Amy F. Cades, a particular friend of the bride's; dozen silver forks, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Parsons; antique pitcher, Miss Clark of New York; sugar sifter, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hill; ice-cream spoons, Mrs. George Fiske; silver fish knife and fork, Herbert L. MARITIME NOTES.

The British schooner "Mary C.," Publicover master, bound from Port Medway, Nova Scotia, for Newburyport with a cargo of wood pulp, struck on the Eastern Sisters ledge, off the sea face of Gerrish's island, about midnight on the night of Wednesday, the 18th inst., and hung on the rocks about half an hour, when she came off with her sternpost started, and leaking badly. The schooner was headed into this harbor and up the river, and by keeping the pump constantly going she was kept afloat until she reached Four Tree island, where she was beached about 2:15 o'clock Thursday morning, the water being then over her cabin floor. She remained on the beach Thursday evening, the tide ebbing and flowing in her. She is of eighty-four tons register, and was built in Liverpool, N. S., last year. Had the old "Jersey bull" been at its former moorings at Kitt's rock, instead of the bell-buoy, which is only fit for summer duty, the schooner would quite likely have gone clear.

A portion of the fishing fleet came in on Thursday afternoon, the 19th inst., having experienced heavy weather; their fares were limited, and prices were about $5.50 per hundred pounds. The nets of the crafts which use them were very much torn up, and many of the vessels propose resorting to trawls again.

The cable steamer Minia, Capt. Trott, has arrived at St. Pierre, Miquelon, after successfully repairing the Direct Cable, which was broken 350 miles from Torbay, N. S. The vessel left Halifax on Sunday, Feb. 8th, and completed the final splice on the 17th inst. This repair is remarkable for being the quickest ever made on an Atlantic main cable in winter. Capt. Trott reports very severe weather, and large fields of floating ice.

The Dover Navigation company, which began business in 1878 with $13,121 invested in one schooner, the John Bracewell, had a capital stock Jan. 1st, 1885, of $85,338, represented by six vessels. From their capital the owners have received in dividends up to the present month $53,450. The stock has recently been increased to $114,778 by the building of the schooner John J. Hanson, now on her first trip.

Among the speakers at the reception of Gov. Hale and the New Hampshire club, at the New Orleans exposition on the 18th inst., was Hon. Daniel Marcy. The party visited the flagship Tennessee before going to the exposition, were entertained with an elegant lunch, and received a salute on leaving the ship. The club started for home Thursday night.

Tarr's carriage repair shop at Dover point was burned last Thursday afternoon, with its contents.

Col. John Pender, of Gov. Hale's staff, started on Thursday morning last for Boston, to meet at the Quincy house the other members of the staff, and proceed to Washington to be in attendance at the dedication of the Washington monument on Saturday, the 21st inst.

Mr. Editor: I notice a good deal said in the Portsmouth papers about "shovelling" to clear the sidewalks of snow. It may be remembered by some of your citizens that when I was with you that I got up some snow ploughs for the work. They worked well, and one could clean three miles of a walk in an hour, and if used in season, would prevent the snow from being trod hard. All cities of the size of Portsmouth, within fifty miles each way and more, use them. When frost is in the bricks, horses' feet do not hurt them. Use the ploughs and do not quarrel or go to law with the abuttors, and you will have better walking.

SAMUEL BAKER.

An item is going the rounds to the effect that Father Moody of York, the great-grandfather of Ralph Waldo Emerson, was the first author in the limits of Maine, a sermon having been printed by him in 1701.

No. 312,272. W. W. Hubbard, assignor to C. B. Bradley, Manchester, Machine for reducing leather to a uniform thickness.

The whole number of patents granted to citizens of the United States for the week ending Feb. 17th, was 371.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Is designed to meet the wants of a large portion of our people who are either too poor to employ a physician, or are too far removed to easily call one, and a still larger class who are not sick enough to require medical advice, and yet are out of sorts and need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood, and oil up the machinery of their bodies so it will do its duty willingly. No other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy.

My friend, you need not take our word. Ask your neighbor, who has just taken one bottle. He will tell you that "It's the best dollar I ever invested."

LEBANON N. H., Feb. 19, 1879.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Dear Sirs—Although greatly prejudiced against patent medicines in general, I was induced, from the excellent reports I had heard of your Sarsaparilla, to try a bottle, last December, for dyspepsia and general prostration, and I have received very gratifying results from its use. I am now using the second bottle, and consider it a very valuable remedy for indigestion and its attendant troubles.

Yours truly,

F. C. CHURCHILL,

Railway Accidents and Color Blindness.

It has not been the duty of the writer to investigate cases of accident which might have been caused by defects of sight, but he has been assured by officials that a solution will hereafter be found in them for those hitherto insoluble mysteries where men, otherwise credible, have so flatly contradicted themselves and the circumstances of the case. By one prominent officer he was told that, being upon a train at night, delayed by some slight accident, he himself took a red lantern, and, going a proper distance back, placed himself in the way of an on-coming train, but, finding his light not observed, he was compelled to dash it into the cab to attract the engineer's attention, and arrest him in his progress to a collision. Under the examination of another engineer, his superior officer being present and convinced of his marked color-blindness remarked that, but a short time before, the man had run into the rear of a train properly protected by a red light in the hands of a brakeman some distance in the rear, that the most careful investigation resulted only in the suspension of the brakeman for not having gone far enough back, but that he was not satisfied that the color-blindness of the engineer had been the real cause of the accident. Some slight or minor accidents recently led to the discovery that another engineer had by some oversight not been tested in his division, and this led to his examination and detection there, and to his conviction by the writer as a color-blind. Still another case now presents itself. An engineer some time ago ran over and killed a brakeman, holding a danger signal on the track in front of his engine, and no satisfactory explanation could then be given; but the division examiner predicted that he would probably be found color-blind, and on his examination this proved to be the case.—Dr. Wilkins Thomson in Popular Science Monthly.

The use of Iodoform or mercurials in the treatment of catarrh—whether in the form of suppositories or ointments—should be avoided, as they are both injurious and dangerous. Iodoform is easily detected by its offensive odor. The only reliable catarrh remedy on the market to-day is Ely's Cream Balm, being free from all poisonous drugs. It has cured thousands of acute and chronic cases, where all other remedies have failed. A particle is applied into each nosril; no pain; agreeable to use. Price fifty cents of druggists.

It's no secret nostrum. We speak of Dr. Pierce's Extract of Smart-Weed, composed of best French brandy, smart-weed, Jamaica ginger and camphor water. It cures cholera morbus, colic or cramp in stomach, diarrhœa, dysentery or bloody-flux, and breaks up colds, fevers and inflammatory attacks.

The New Hampshire exhibit at the New Orleans exposition was on the 18th inst. the scene of a reception tendered to Gov. Hale of this state by the state commissioners. About 2000 persons were present. Speeches were made by Gov. Hale and Commissioner General Moorehead. A poem, written for the occasion by Mrs. Abby H. Darne, was read, and a number of commissioners from other states also spoke.

Biliousness

Is very prevalent at this season, the symptoms being bitter taste, breath offensive, tongue coated, sick headache, drowsiness, dizziness, loss of appetite. If this condition is allowed to continue, serious consequences may follow. By promptly taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, a fever may be avoided or premature death prevented. It is a positive cure for biliousness. Sold by all druggists.

A farmer who lived near Bangor, Me., recently learned that his daughters, fifteen and seventeen years old respectively, were receiving attention from two young men whom he disliked. In order to put a stop to the affair he sold his farm, bought tickets to Indiana, and started for the west. When near Waterville he feel asleep, and on awakening discovered that the older of his daughters had left the train. He went to Boston with the other girl, and went to a friend's house at Cambridge on Tuesday evening, the 17th inst. He was much relieved to find his missing daughter there, but on Wednesday morning he found that during the night both girls had left the house.

Breaking Up.

On every hand we see evidence that winter is breaking up, and will soon have to yield to the advancing spring. It is a most important question amongst scientific men what causes the general feeling of debility and lassitude so prevalent in this region. While some regard it as the result of confinement and inaction, others suppose it to be caused by the decay of vegetable and animal debris during the winter. What is especially needed at this time, however, is something to counteract these influences. It is too late to talk about the causes; what is the cure? Thousands of persons all over the country who have given Kidney-Wort a faithful trial are ready to testify that no other remedy is equal to it for cleansing the system, purifying the blood, regulating the bowels, and curing all kidney and liver diseases. It is in fact the king of all spring medicines.

In the Illinois legislature, Feb. 18th, Hon. John A. Logan had 101 votes for United States senator, out of 202 votes thrown. One democrat and one republican member were absent.

ON THE ENGINE.
TAUNTON, MASS.
Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:
DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River boat train between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was due partly to irregular habits of eating, and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes my head would seize like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a mast-head. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as though it were a great sour and sore surface, and when agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.
In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the heavy continued rains, I was constant or brought on accute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next spring, when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor, and my life too, were about over.
Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Boston and Lowell. At this critical time DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines, you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.
I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pains left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good, and it drove every ache, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.
Why, I believe FAVORITE REMEDY will cure anything. One night, a while ago, John Layton, an engineer who runs the main 'it-o boat train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," I said, "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out my bottle of FAVORITE REMEDY, fitted his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Dan," he said, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, Rondout, N. Y.," said I. "Well, I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.
Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.
This preparation goes to the root of disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office—everywhere.
